

SEVENTY-FIFTH YEAR

SALEM, OREGON, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1925

OVER 450 RIDERS IN BIKE PARADE

McKinley School Wins Trophy; Prizes Awarded to Other Entrants

Something like 450 bicycle riders, ranging from 86 years down to the little youngsters of 6 and 8 years, were paraded through the streets of Salem Saturday morning, headed by T. A. Raffety, chief of the Oregon state traffic division, and John Rodda, representative of the Cycle Trades of America, flanked on either side by police.

The first division was composed of Boy Scouts, followed by the girls' decorated bicycles, boys' decorated bicycles, and then the plain bicycles. The formation was on Waverly street, and moved out onto Court promptly at 10 o'clock, going west on Court, south on Commercial, east on State, to the Willamette athletic field, where the usual demonstration took place.

The first feature of the program was a very instructive talk by W. A. Marshall of the Oregon Industrial accident commission. The subject of Mr. Marshall's talk was "Accident Prevention," and he ably handled the subject, outlining that it was far better to prevent accidents than it is to be sorry afterwards.

Probably the oldest man that ever took part in a parade in the United States was Nick Biers, 86 years of age, who rode the entire distance.

There were some 2,000 spectators in the grandstand at Willamette athletic field, who greatly enjoyed the demonstration and the awarding of prizes.

McKinley Wins Cup
McKinley school won the Cycle Trades of America trophy cup with 11 and 6-10 per cent of their enrollment. Mercedes Miller was on hand to receive the cup from John Rhodda.

Lisbon Poor Pay Homage to Well-Beloved Actress

LISBON, Portugal, May 1.—Enormous crowds blocked the streets of the city the other day when Angela Pinto, the popular Portuguese actress, was buried. The slums of Lisbon emptied themselves to come and see "Our Angela" pass to her last resting place. She was the idol of the people, and her remarkable versatility ran from comic opera to tragedy. Her favorite roles were women of the people.

Beggars and poor old women whom the popular actress had aided in her lifetime were seen vainly trying to touch the side of her bier as it was drawn past them in the street.

Portland Hotel Man Buys Newport Hotel

Visitors to Newport all are acquainted with the service rendered by the Abbey Hotel. It is under new management now but the same genial spirit of welcome that has made the Abbey among the best known and popular hotels on the coast still prevails.

In 1871 the Abbey was built by Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Abbey and was conducted under their management until 1911 when M. H. and E. J. Abbey assumed control. At this time a modern concrete building was erected.

Mr. J. J. Tobin of Portland, the manager, was associated with the Cornelius Hotel in Portland before moving to Newport, and was owner of the Electric Hotel at Oregon City for 15 years. Mr. Tobin intends to thoroughly renovate the building and install many improvements.

PARRISH PARAGRAPHS By DORIS GODSEY

Monday afternoon the entire student body assembled to listen to Mr. Weisenganger, a state forest ranger. As this is Reforestation week he has been chosen by the state to speak to the boys and girls in the Willamette valley on this subject. He told us of the work of the forest ranger and the best ways to fight fire. The last of his talk was illustrated by about one hundred slides showing the growth of the fir tree and the forest after the fire. At the end of his talk he gave us a treat by playing a couple of selections on his harmonica. The different departments of the school are observing Reforestation week, especially the art, civic and occupation classes.

Another assembly was called at 12:45 Thursday. Mr. Marshall talked to us about the uses, care and safety of the bicycle. Mr. Benner from the local post office talked to the occupation students Thursday on the subject of "Civil Service." His talk was enjoyed by all.

A program was held Friday night in the gym. It was given by the girls' physical education department and the music department. A large audience attended and it was a splendid success. Two representatives from Parrish went to the county spelling contest Saturday. Frances Reed represented the 7th grade and Katherine Laughrigo represented the 8th grade.
