

Mrs. Arthur J. Rahn Makes a Distinctive Appearance Yesterday at Oregon Theatre

Mezzo-Soprano Pleases With Both the Quality and Range of Voice; Professor Petri at the Piano

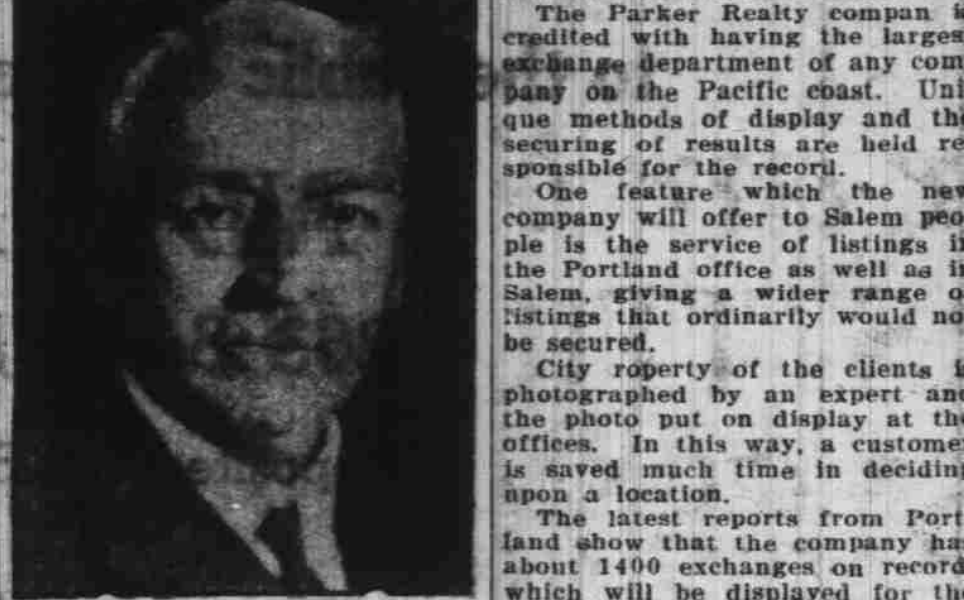

By AUDREY BUNCH. "Beautiful as a May day" her friends called her, when in vocal recital yesterday morning at the Oregon theatre, Mrs. Arthur Rahn, mezzo-soprano, came onto the stage with her accompanist and instructor, Professor Paul Petri, for an hour of surpassing song.

Rahn sang with equal ease light bit or the operatic aria, the sacred song or the secular melody. The extremely wide scope of an extremely interesting program well showed this. Mrs. Rahn sings with a certain rounded strength and yet her voice never falls that woefully mellowness that makes it so good to hear.

Dr. T. E. Green, Red Cross Worker, to Address Lions Club

Dr. Thomas E. Green, member of the staff council of the American National Red Cross will be the guest speaker at the Lions club luncheon Friday. His association with the Red Cross during the World war and since promises an inspiring address, covering outstanding world events that have transpired during the past seven years.

For the past 20 years Dr. Green has occupied a unique place in American public life. While he has filled no public office, probably no man here had a wider hearing. A journalist by instinct, a statistician by training, he has utilized his continual travel around the world in the gathering of a vast store of unusual information. Dr. Green, as associate editor of Hampton's magazine has written numerous works on American and international subjects.

Briton Observers Sane Taste in Wall Coverings LONDON—All the jazz arrangements of stripes, circles and triangles in wall paper are rapidly being abandoned, says a declared Professor Henry G. Dowling speaking recently before the Royal Society of Arts on the history of wall paper as a decoration of the home.

Immediately after the war a vogue set in for futuristic designs of all kinds, the professor explained, and for a time nothing appeared too extravagant in color arrangement or top wild in motif. But that phase of color decoration is beginning to pass and the idea now is for something more sensible.

"Whatever you have in your room, think first of the walls, for it is they which make your house 'rad' or 'home,'" asserted Professor Dowling.

Buenos Aires Passenger Buses Travel Rough Roads

BUENOS AIRES—Motorbus accidents are increasing at such an alarming rate in Buenos Aires that the municipal authorities have been obliged to take hasty measures to assure the safety of the passengers using the busses, which were practically unknown in the city a year ago.

The accidents are attributed to the light construction of many of the cars, overloading, rivalry between motorbus and taxi drivers and inadequate municipal regulations controlling their routes and speed, especially in narrow streets.

The motorbus drivers say that many accidents are caused by the jealousy of taxi drivers who make felts to run into them when they can safely do so, and even motorbus drivers take opportunities to bump them, while the motorbus passengers themselves strongly object when the police try to make them reduce speed.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

DISREGARD OF TRAFFIC SIGNALS UNIVERSAL

Paris has introduced the use of red and green lights to control—at least, such is the purpose—traffic from the Rue de la Paix onto the boulevards.

To date it has not been reported that the use of colored lights has been any too successful. Taxicab drivers and pedestrians, even the French traffic officers, have not yet gotten around to the point where they take the lights seriously.

This cannot be explained by exclaiming: "French temperament." Not at all. Go to 42nd Street and Broadway, or 52nd Street and Fifth Avenue, in New York, or Michigan Boulevard in Chicago—each city in the United States of any size seems to have one such street—and you will find pedestrians determined to walk or run against traffic signals.

When they do that they risk the lives of themselves and of others.

Just how to get the pedestrian to realize that traffic signals are for his safety and protection is a problem.

The pedestrian has rights on the streets, as well as on the sidewalk. The burden of responsibility rests upon the motorist to see that the pedestrian is unharmed. The man or woman who walks must be permitted to cross streets—when the signal permits—before cars making turns are permitted to move.

A pedestrian will wait on the corner to cross the street. When he gets the signal to go he is menaced by a car coming around the corner. That is wrong. The pedestrian must be allowed to pass first.

Thoughtfulness on the part of motorist and pedestrian, each respectful of the rights of the other, will work out this problem. But it seems evident that it is going to take time.
