

DEMOCRACY OF WEST IS EMPHASIZED BY DONEY

PEOPLE LACK COURAGE TO COME OUT TO OREGON

Strata of Society Lacking Here; Must Find Way to Help Colonization

"People of the eastern part of the United States lack information about Oregon, as well as the courage necessary to pull up and leave for the west," declared Dr. Carl Gregg Doney, president of Willamette university, who addressed the Rotary club at its regular meeting Wednesday noon at the Marion hotel.

"We are a homogeneous people here in the west and do not have the five or six strata of society. In the east there are different strata. There are more wealthy people than here; an aristocracy of culture exists; the business man of wealth, who is seeking to increase his holdings, and the man who is living in a small way.

"Underneath we have a submerged class, the emigrant who is struggling to adapt himself. They are an unfortunate class of people," continued the speaker.

"The people here are enterprising, because they had the strength of courage to come here. They are a class apart. It is good for us to carry the information of the west to the people of the east. We must find a way to give them courage, and give them help to colonize the land of Oregon.

"New England has made substantial contributions to the commonwealth of America," declared Dr. Doney, in speaking of the eastern part of the United States. Because of her age she has secured many universities and colleges that have a vast endowment and resources. They have influences that radiate here with significance.

SO THIS IS LONDON, COMING TO THE GRAND BROADWAY SPECTACLE TO PLAY IN SALEM MAY 26

Original Star Is Brought Here; Comedy Is Rich in Humor and Wit

"So This Is London," with Lawrence D'Orsay as the star and a company on a par with that seen on Broadway will be the attraction at the Grand theater, Tuesday, May 26.

It should prove the amusement event of the year in the city and according to Henry Duffy, the producer, the cast is the peer of any to appear in several seasons.

D'Orsay was the original star in this great George M. Cohan comedy when it was first staged on Broadway, and it should prove a real treat to see him in the characterization of Sir Percy Beauchamp, which he created with such distinction. He is an internationally known actor, and as "The Earl of Pawtucket," earned himself a reputation the country over. Robert Toms, who last starred in "The Cat and the Canary" will have an important part and the leading woman is Ivy Crane, former vaudeville headliner on the Orpheum circuit. She will be seen in the delightful and winning role of Lady Duckworth, which she is said to assume with fine dignity and winsomeness.

"So This Is London" is a comedy of delicious situations, keen wit and subtle humor. It has had tremendous vogue everywhere and has proved a great drawing card both in this country and the British possessions. It is laughable in the extreme without being ludicrous or absurd and is said to please every type of theatre goer.

UPWARD TREND TAKEN ON NEW YORK MARKET

EYES TURNED TOWARD WEST FOR PRUNE SUPPLIES

Better Outlook in Store Declares W. T. Jenks; Short Market Is Realized

The New York Prune market has taken a considerable upward trend during the past few days and the markets there are looking towards the west for supplies, according to reports that have been received here by local dealers.

W. T. Jenks, local prune authority states that the stocks will be cleaned up, although an extreme low price has prevailed. The prices are advancing, however, and a better outlook is in store. Many of the prunes were bought at a higher price than what they were sold for, it was stated. The shippers were out the transportation costs and a part of the price that was paid for the purchase.

Buyers in the east are realizing that the prune crop of the west is short and they are picking up on the bids, it is stated. The reports from the foreign markets have not come to influence the markets in the United States.

The prices that will be adopted are to be determined by the French and Serbia prune crop. Early reports stated that good settings were on the foreign trees, but much can happen, before the crop is taken from the trees.

The reports for the 1924 crop shows that the total output of prunes for Oregon and California prunes was 160,000 tons, while the estimate based upon good authority is stated at 137,500 tons.

PRISON DATA IS SOUGHT

WARDEN AUTHOR OF PAMPHLET ON PENITENTIARY

That these are desired by students, who seek the most information, is indicated in a request for five copies from N. V. Drew, librarian at the Franklin high school, Portland, who wanted the copies for the school library.

Another pamphlet has been reprinted setting for rules and regulations for the guidance of officers and employes of the institution.

APOLLO CLUB CLOSES EIGHTH SEASON

With Fine Concert Here Last Night

Genevieve Howard, Dramatic Soprano and Byron D. Arnold Assistant, Singers Under Direction of Dr. John R. Sites

By AUDRED BUNCH

The Apollo club, assisted by Genevieve Howard, dramatic soprano, and by Byron D. Arnold, accompanist and piano soloist, closed its eighth season in a triumphant manner last evening at the Armory where a large crowd gathered for a rich song-fest under the genial and able direction of Dr. John R. Sites. The club, which sings under eminent directorship, with the expected fidelity and harmony, closed with "Waltz for De Moon to Shine," featuring Lyman McDonald. In answer to the applauding crowd, the number was repeated.

The Douglas County Concert band, of Roseburg, has been selected as the official band for the state fair this year. One night of the horse show will be devoted to the Umpqua Chiefs and Squaws, the Roseburg booster organization and its auxiliary, who will present a pageant.

The best real estate buys are always advertised in The Statesman first.

SEES STRANGE SIGHT

Rev. W. C. Kantner, who returned to Salem last night from a visit in Seattle with his son, reports a strange sight during a Near East Relief drive while there. Men in that city staged a parade while wearing shags and stockings and old fashioned barrel. Needless to say, the drive was a success.

Elizabeth Brown accompanied the quartette.

The biggest ensemble number of the evening, "The Pilot," by Protheroe—opened the program, the club singing in fine style under the animated baton of the director. A pleasing Welsh Folk Song completed the first group.

Genevieve Howard, who added note and charm to the program by simply being on the stage, made it, by singing, a memorable success. Mrs. Howard, in her blue brocade with coral ostrich fan, was a picture when she sang with great ease and expression the aria, "One Fine Day" from Madame Butterfly. Her charm was enhanced again when she came to the stage, her arms laden with the pink glory of snapdragons and roses, to sing her encore, "Gray Days," by Johnson. After her second group, later in the program, two encores were given with the same incredible verve and luscious tone. Dr. Sites, who understandingly accompanied the soprano during the evening, received a host of congratulations for the success of his pupil. Her final two encores were "May Morning" and "The Angel Cake" by Clay Smith.

The Apollo Four, who are invariably received with immense favor, easily doubled their standing with the audience last night and granted a heavy schedule numerous with encores. One of the most interesting of the numbers was the song "My Home in Oregon," the words and music both being written by a member of the quartet, Mr. A. B. Hansen, second bass. Among the encores which The Four granted were "Tripping Along the Lane," "Green Grass Growing All Around" and "I Was Seeing Nellie Home."

Byron Arnold, with his finished performance of Liszt's brilliant study, "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 11" won the admiration of a large audience. Playing with full technical ease, the entire number was packed with substantial tone. As an encore, Mr. Arnold played
