rain. When a "dry country" is wet it seems to be "wetter" than our own Willamette valley. The park at Ashland attracted much favorable comment. A trip to the summit of the Siskiyou on Thursday morning, when twelve hundred delegates enjoyed a barbecue breakfast at the community house, was one outstanding feature of the entertainment offered by the citizens of Ashland.

(Under the heading, "Have Faith in Mining," the April issue of Mining Truth, Spokane, Wash., contained an editorial article from which the following are excerpts:)
Recently the New York Herald-Tribune, one of the most conservative dailies in the east, created considerable chagrin among certain investment brokers by publishing the following opinion:
"One of the things that investment bankers have had to admit is that the gold and silver dividends of the United States during the past two years are greater than the combined dividends of all the banking institutions of this country, and on the head of that the government figures show the average returns on capital invested by banking interests to be about 6 1/2 per cent, while the return on mining were 182 per cent, and Dun and Bradstreet show that only 32 per cent of mining investments fall against 54 per cent failure in other lines of business."

The impression is rapidly spreading that the whole blue-sky hysteria was cunningly devised by a group of New York and Chicago financial houses to get control of a greater share of the investing public's savings.
The series of bank failures in middle west and mountain states, brought about by bad investments in farm paper, has done a great deal to prove to the public that losses are possible in any business.
Farming is dependent on the caprices of wind, water and winter. No cyclone ever blew an ore-body out of the owner's ground.
Railroads are falling now and then, due to ship or motorbus competition. There is competition among mines, but no substitute for minerals.
Public utility corporations are finding it increasingly difficult to pay dividends because of the growth of rate regulation and demands for public ownership.
There is no serious movement for nationalization of minerals.

Services were held in the auditorium at the home at 3 p. m. Mr. Rorick, the superintendent, spoke on "The growing family housed here, and the need for a new building for the children, saying they have now fifty-eight members of the family, including twelve children. Mr. Hugh Black, of Dallas, presided. Jesten's concert orchestra of Independence opened the program.
Barbara Burnett of Independence gave a piano solo.
Rev. C. F. Trimble offered a prayer.
Mrs. Grow, of Independence, gave a whistling solo, "Jerusalem."
Mrs. Bow, of Dallas, sang.
Jane Hammell, of Falls City, rendered a piano adaption of "Nearer My God to Thee."
Rev. C. F. Trimble, now superintendent of the Oregon-Washington Knights of Pythias home in Vancouver, delivered a very interesting and impressive sermon. This was followed by music by the Josten concert orchestra and a piano solo by little Miss Nadine Jesten.
After a closing selection by the orchestra Rev. M. Trimble pronounced the benediction, closing a most inspiring meeting.

public attention, are practically without exception heavy users of mine products; they cannot grow and prosper without adding to the demand for the stores of nature's warehouses.
Mining is not today—and never was—a picker's game. But as a substantial business proposition, a producing mine with any considerable ore body is a more desirable property to own than a railroad, a farm, a commission bossed power or gas plant, and many a factory.
