LONDON, June 2. - American gray squirrels, imported some years ago, have made themselves perfectly at home in this climate, and, like the English sparrows sent to the United States from the British isles several generations back, have begun to scatter about the country. The first squirrels of this variety were given their freedom in Regent's park, London, and already they have been found in forests as far as 25 miles north of the British capital. The squirrels have made friends in the parks here among the visitors, and take food from the hands of children. The saucy little fellows have bea peanut, peanuts not being so common here as in America, that public of Agentina. During his they have nearly forgotten what one tastes like.
