

COACH HUNTINGTON IS RETAINED BY STUDENTS

MONEY FOR SALARY VOTED BY COUNCIL WEDNESDAY

Deadlock Broken After Coach Had Demanded Action One Way or Another

Coach Hollis Huntington is to be retained at the Salem high school, according to action taken by the student council of the associated student body of the Salem high school Wednesday afternoon.

The deadlock between the students and the coach was brought about by the student council, which had authority to vote the student funds, when they refused to appropriate money to pay part of the salary of Coach Huntington. They deemed that the appropriation to repair the high school athletic field added to the sum needed to pay the coach's salary was too heavy a drain on the student body funds.

The appropriation of $500 yesterday towards Huntington's salary, was made after action had been taken on the money voted to repair the athletic field. It is alleged that the student council did not consider themselves bound to pay the appropriation on the field. This matter will be settled at a later meeting, it was decided.

BAIL FRAUD IS CHARGED

NEW EVIDENCE UNCOVERED IN DISBARMENT TRIAL

SEATTLE, June 3.—Testifying in a disbarment hearing before the state board of law examiners, Mrs. Anna R. Webber declared that she had paid Thomas Page, Seattle attorney, $395 for his fee and expenses for arranging a defaulted bail for her son.

Page had posted $1,000 bail for Reginald William Holl, Mrs. Webber's son, on a larceny charge, and when he did not appear in court on the day on which he was to be sentenced, the bail in the ordinary course of proceedings would have been forfeited.

Mrs. Webber testified Page sought to get her to pay him the $1,000 and when she was unable to raise that amount of money took her to her bank in a taxicab and wrote out a check for $395, which she signed to "fix it," with the judge and in payment for his services.

CLUB SEEKS MEMBERS

Members of the Rod and Gun club of Salem met last night and put some of the final touches to their organization. Followers of the rod and of the gun presented plans to further the organization here, which has shown a big development since its revival this year. A definite membership campaign is to be inaugurated in the future, which is designed to put the local organization in the lead of gun clubs in the Willamette valley.

RUSTLERS ARE KILLED

ALLEGED CATTLE THIEVES ARE SHOT TO DEATH

MONTROSE, Colo., June 3.—A revival of range war against cattle rustlers today resulted in the killing of Henry Hendrickson, 30, and his brother, Frank, 35, alleged rustlers in a battle with a sheriff's posse, 30 miles from Naturita, near here.

The gun fight ensued when Sheriff Phillips of Montrose county, Sheriff Van Aken of Delta county, and two deputies surrounded the brothers on a ranch where they sought refuge.

When the officers approached the Hendricksons opened fire. The officers returned the shots and both the fugitives fell mortally wounded. The brothers were accused of rustling cattle in this section for many months and driving the stolen animals into Utah where they were sold.

LAST RITES ARE SIMPLE

CEREMONY FOR MARSHALL MARKED BY DIGNITY

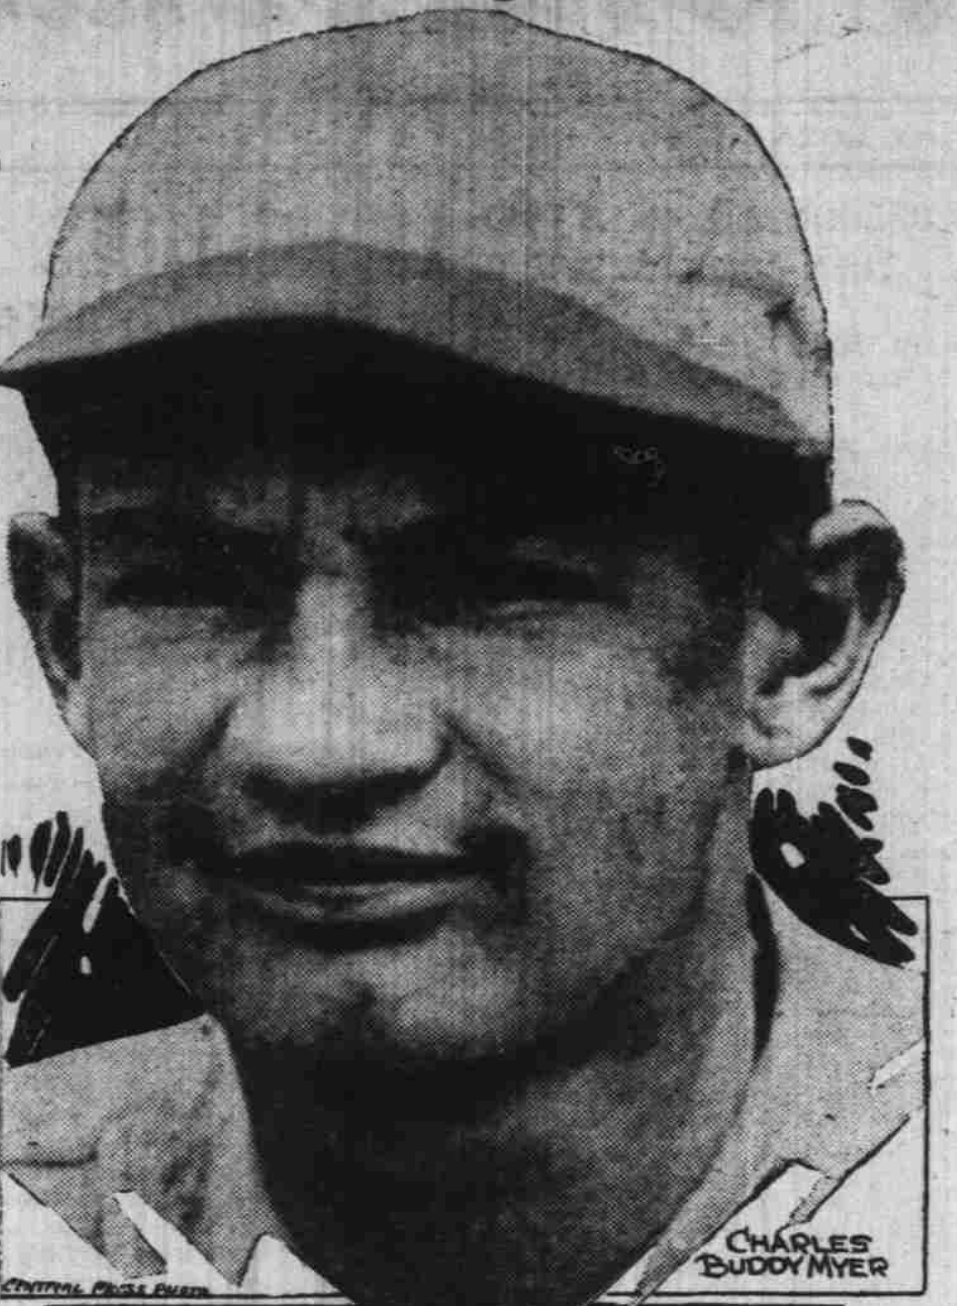

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 3.—The body of Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president of the United States, rested here tonight in the quiet of his Hoosier home.

The capital of the state over which he once presided as chief executive claimed the body with such simple ceremony as it was believed he would have approved. The train bearing the casket from Washington where his eyes closed forever last Monday was met here today by an escort composed of friends and members of organizations with which he had been affiliated.

Through streets silent except for church hymns, pealing out his favorite hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," the procession passed to his residence, where tomorrow Scottish Rite services will be held. The body will then be placed in a receiving vault to await a decision by Mrs. Marshall as to its final disposition.

There was no display except of grief and reverence. It was the home coming of a simple citizen, beloved of many for his kindness rather than the return of one who had been high in state and national councils.

Short Stop Star of the Minors Sets New League Fielding Mark

CHARLES 'BUDDY' MYER

By NORMAN E. BROWN The latest sensation in the minor leagues is Charles "Buddy" Myer, dashing shortstop of the New Orleans Southern Association team. Myer's latest feat, in proving his worth as a shortstop, was that of setting a new minor league record, for accepting fielding chances in a game. Playing against Little Rock in a recent series Myer accepted 18 chances, nine assists and nine putouts.

This record dums the American League record of 17 chances, set on June 10, 1902, by the famous old Bobby Wallace, with the St. Louis Browns. The National League record is one over Myer's. Back in 1892 Dan Richardson with the Washington club in the National League then accepted 19 chances.

This feat of Myer's was not a flash-in-the-pan affair. Myer has been setting the league on fire all season. In addition to fielding his position brilliantly he has been hitting at a .316 gait. His general showing is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that this is his first real experience in professional baseball. Tris Speaker, Indian boss, grabbed him from Mississippi A. and M. after he had helped that team win the Southern conference title and, barring a few weeks in the Cotton State League last year he had never played pro ball.

When Myer joined the New Orleans club last spring Manager Larry Gilbert had two high priced, experienced men available for shortstop duty. Myer warmed the bench until sent in as a pinch hitter one day. He socked out a homer with two men on. That listened good to Gilbert. A few days later the boss sent Myer in to finish a game at short.

The quickest way to describe his showing after that is to chronicle the fact that the two other shortstops were disposed of. Owner Heinemann of the New Orleans club, says he has a clear claim to the lad and so far spurned offers of at least three big league clubs for him—Washington, the Yanks and the Cubs.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Johnny Dundee has severed connection with the Johnstons, who managed him, and says he'll manage himself.

ago his own affairs in the future, Johnny ought to be able to find his rocking chair and slippers without any trouble.

It takes more than physical power, brute strength, to make a good ball player. "Hack" Miller, erstwhile outfielder for the Chicago Cubs, can vouch for that.

Miller is known as the strongest man in baseball. He comes naturally by his strength. His father was famous as a Sandow. Many tales are told about the power in Hack's mighty arms, legs, back and jaw.

Speaking of Johnny Dundee, the Scotch Wop is now being forced to go through with a match with Ed Terris, considered by fair-minded critics one of the best lightweights in the game today. All of which means that Dundee is getting old.

Time was when Jonathan took 'em all on. The younger they came the better he liked them. And he gave the old boys classy laces every now and then to keep in form. Now he is growing cautious as one does when a fall on the ice or a draught on the neck becomes no laughing matter.

up to get out of the bout, Terrie's adherents say. He announced two weeks before the battle that he had a hard cold and that he was quite sure he wouldn't be able to shake it in time for the bout. The doctors looked John over, at the request of the New York commission, and decided that a mustard bath for his feet and two or three funny looking pills would fix him up.
