VETERAN DEAN IS HIGHLY HONORED
Prof. Cordley of the Oregon Agricultural College Has Done Great Work

In recognition of 30 years of service to Oregon agriculture on the staff of the state college, Dean A. B. Cordley of the school of agriculture was deluged with words of praise and affectionate appreciation by more than 100 of his staff, associates, and friends at a banquet in the new Benton hotel Thursday night in celebration of his initiation into Alpha Zeta, national agricultural fraternity. Dean Cordley is the first man to be elected to Alpha Zeta as an honorary member from Oregon and one of the few ever selected in the United States.

"The work that Dean Cordley has done alone for the agricultural interests of Oregon is worth more than the entire cost of Oregon Agricultural college since its inception," declared W. K. Newell of Eugene, former state food and dairy commissioner. He cited the work of Dean Cordley in discovering lime sulfur spray, said to have saved millions of dollars in Oregon alone.

A beautiful silver service was presented to the dean by his staff in agriculture at the close of the banquet. Telegrams from former students and associates from all over the country were read, expressing the widespread appreciation of the lasting results of his long service as teacher, scientist, and leader in scientific and practical agriculture.

Ten years after entering the course in agriculture at Michigan Agricultural college in 1885, Dean Cordley came to OAC, where for 30 years he has been a leader in scientific work and the development of the strong school of agriculture at the college, now recognized throughout the country for the high quality of its courses and of its graduates. He holds the degree of doctor of science from his alma mater in recognition of his services to agriculture and the nationally known value of his scientific contributions, particularly the development of lime-sulfur sprays, and control of anthracnose and codling moth in the northwest.

SALARY INCREASES FOR PROFESSORS UNDER $200
For the first time in a number of years Willamette university is completely out of debt, was the statement of President Doney at the commencement program yesterday. The budget some 20 years ago was less than $8100, while this year it will be around $130,000.
It was explained, however, that this did not mean extravagance on the part of the university, but that the standards are being raised and more students are being cared for. Another announcement of interest was regarding the teaching personnel. Mrs. G. L. Rathbun will discontinue handling the girls'

THE CALIFORNIA GARAGE ALL RIGHT
It Has No Helpers, They Are All Mechanics, and Stand Behind Their Work

"We have no helpers in our garage—they are all mechanics." This, declared Guy Hickman, manager of the California garage, 1000 South Commercial street, is the reason that every job turned out in their shop is guaranteed to stand up under severe conditions.

"We do not give a mere implied understanding that our work will meet all requirements—we give a guarantee that it will, and we back up that guarantee to the limit."

The California garage was formerly known as the Highway garage. Unusual conditions forced a change of name. Although Mr. Hickman had his shop registered first as the "Highway Garage," other service stations and garages opened up in Salem under similar names, obliging him to seek a less commonplace title. He then chose the name of California Garage although he states that he has in no way relinquished his position as a native Oregonian.

Hickman's shop is equipped to give service on any make of car, in either mechanical or electrical work. He also specializes in high-pressure lubrication and greasing, using one of the latest compressed air shop guns. Tires, tubes, oils, grease, tools and spare parts are among some of the things on sale at the shop.
A special service to customers is given in that the garage calls for and delivers cars left in their shop to be repaired. A new service car is being constructed, completely equipped for towing, and will be ready in a week or so. Mr. Hickman has grown up with the automotive industry, and has been working on cars since the days of the two-cylinder Reo, and the time when they cranked Fords on the side. He was recently offered a position with the General Motors company, where two of his brothers are working.
Within the next four or five weeks, a large addition will be made to the garage, enabling greater service, due to enlarged floor space. This will add greatly to the scope of work handled. Mr. Hickman now has a complete service station and an up-to-date garage.
