Bonesteele Gets Contract

The Bonesteel Motor company of Salem was the successful bidder for the contract to haul crushed rock from the new Silverton plant to roads under construction and repair in that territory. The Bonesteel company set the charge at 15 cents a yard per mile. This is said to be an extremely low price for the work. The contract calls for the hauling of about 4,000 yards of material.

Hindsight Always Better Than Foresight

THERE is hardly a man living in Salem who cannot look back ten years and see what he might have done from an investment standpoint if he had only had confidence in Salem and the Willamette Valley. This is "hindsight."

There is every reason to believe that in the next ten-year period Salem will see a greater growth than during any ten years of its existence. A few far-seeing men who have confidence in the community will recognize these prospects, take advantage of the opportunities offered and ten years hence reap a reward. This is "foresight."

Luck Plays Small Part

Why not get into the "foresight" class rather than the "hindsight" class? Save a little money to take advantage of the many opportunities which will be available during the coming year. Luck plays a small part in the affairs of the average person who prospers, although a prosperous person is usually referred to as being lucky. As a matter of fact, he simply used his head while other people sat around doing nothing.

Look into the Future

To get a forward looking picture of Salem ten years hence, try and visualize one street such as Liberty, which is typical of many others. It is no stretch of imagination to see a bridge across the creek on South Liberty or to see business buildings extending north and south paralleling Commercial street. We can see the vacant land today. Ten years hence we can see substantial improvements. These improvements will be new industries, new growth in population, and increased business for every part of the city. The forward momentum of a growing town has a cumulative effect similar to compound interest. From the standpoint of growth Salem is now in the compound interest class. With such a future before her, let our "foresight" be greater than our "hindsight."
