by Indian neophytes, under the supervision of the Franciscan padres and the "Queen of the Missions" was destroyed by an earthquake in 1812, but before the dust had hardly settled, the padres began reconstruction of the present structure.

Another ancient landmark to suffer slightly was Casa de la Guerra, home of Captain Guerra y Noriega, a wealthy don of 1826. He owned 50 leagues of land, 20,000 head of cattle and 12,000 horses, and was known as "the defender of the poor." The colorful history of Casa de la Guerra records it as the gay gathering place of the Spanish social elite of those days.

Damage to the de la Guerra was nominal.

Other old Spanish structures of adobe design throughout the city, although still standing, present gaping holes in their walls, torn by the force of the quake. Efforts at reconstructing the adobe houses are under way.

Another landmark upon whose ruins the residents gaze in regret is the lighthouse which for 69 years has warned mariners of dangers attending the rugged coastline of the channel. It was situated on the plain of La Mesa and its light, lying in the ruins, is extinguished for the first time since December 19, 1856, when Capt. Albert J. Williams, the builder, lighted the kerosene burner and took up the first vigil on the lonely headland.

While the commercial loss of the new buildings is rapidly being repaired, residents of the quake-torn city feel deeply the damage done to the old mission, the homes and the lighthouse, and have announced plans to restore the ruins as nearly as possible.

Bits For Breakfast

And will be more so as the pickle business develops.

Have you arranged for your celebration of the fourth?

Celery harvest for the Labish district will soon be in full blast. Bigger than ever before.

The Hunt cannery, in Salem, yesterday put up 168,000 cans of fruit; loganberries, cherries and black raspberries. Put a peg there. That's the record.

Loganberries are coming back. The right kind of leadership could put the juice business on the map in large letters.

Some cities have reached the point where the motorist carries a bicycle along so he can ride to work after he finds a place to park. Not that had in Salem yet.

Some one has figured that the average American spends 18 per cent of his time standing in line for something.

In the year 1904 only an insignificant number owned all the stock of the great corporations, while in the year 1924 there were 2,000,000 who owned stock in public utilities alone. Twenty years ago or less there were 43,000 persons who owned United States Steel stock; now there are 159,000; from 6,000 stockholders in the Standard Oil group the number has jumped to 300,000; from 7,000 American Bell Telephone and Telegraph stockholders the increase has been to 342,000, and so on through the list. There are 45,000,000 persons in the country who are, in effect, stockholders in insurance companies, while 36,000,000 have invested their earnings in savings banks.

MORE CHERRIES SHIPPED

NUMBER OF GROWERS DELIVERING ON INCREASE

Although the quantity of cherries being handled by local concerns for this season is not as large as has been handled in some previous years, the quality has never been excelled, and if valley cherries do not yield a good return to their producers it will only be because there is no market for cherries.

Three cars of cherries were shipped by local concerns yesterday. Two being from Young & Wells and one from Denney & Co. The number of growers who are delivering cherries rose to 70 on Wednesday and is increasing daily. Cherries will be received at the local offices of Young & Wells and Denney & Co. for at least 10 days more, and longer if not all delivered by then.

Business Schools Urged to Teach Machine Figures

INDIANAPOLIS, July 1.—Teaching of machine bookkeeping and machine calculation in commercial high school was urged today by J. C. Springman, of the Commercial Department of the Pontiac, Mich., High School, before the Business Education Department of the National Educational Association in annual convention here.

Mr. Springman said this work should be given pupils with the requirements of business constantly in mind, and that the nature of the work should be governed by the kind of machines used in the community by industry.

C. A. Hyre, business manager of the Cleveland Clinic and Associated Hospitals, declared indications point to the establishment of a system of commercial training that will be similar to the work received by medical graduates in interne service and law students in moot courts.

Cruiser May Bear Name of Hawaii, Under Plans

HONOLULU, July 1.—One of the new large cruisers to be built for the U. S. navy may bear the name of Hawaii. Governor Wallace R. Farrington announced that he had proposed to C. D. Lufkin, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Hawaii, that that organization bring the suggestion before the secretary of the navy. Lufkin has taken up the proposal with the executive committee of the associated chambers, and, in a letter to the governor, expresses the hope for early action.

It was learned also that Representative Burton French, of Idaho, a member of the house committee on appropriations, who visited Hawaii recently, has written a personal letter to Secretary Wilbur, expressing himself in favor of the suggestion.
