A MEMORY OF SANTA BARBARA

Yea, Santa Barbara is fair; A sunny clime and sweet to touch, For tamer men of gentler mien, But as for me—another scene.

The present; Take it, hold it thine, But that one hour out from all The years that are, or yet shall fall, I pluck it out, I name it mine,
And whistle by the rest, and laugh
To see it blown about as chaff;
That hour bound in sunny sheaves,
With tassell'd shocks of golden shine,
That hour, wound in scarlet leaves, Is mine. . . . . .

One hour arches like a bow Of promise bent in many hues, That tide nor time shall bid decline; Or storms of all the years refuse. Joaquin Miller.

One of the most brilliant weddings that ever took place in Shasta daisies, while the rails and Shasta daisies, while the rails and pillars were festooned and entwinded with roses and delicate foliage. A profusion of ferns were used to give greenery. The background for the event was arranged under the personal direction of Mrs. F. A. Baker with the assistance of the Breithaupt florists. A feature lace. Her slippers were gold, and Rev. R. L. Putnam, paster of the Court Street Christian charch, assisted by Rev. Fred C. Taylor, paster of the First Methodist church, who delivered the benedictory prayer. Miss Turner is the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs.

That was entirely unique was the placing of two diminutive maids, roses caught with a huge bow of mauve and gold tinted ribbon.

An artistic innovation was introduced when the bridesmaids entered, each carrying a shepherd's in the air.

bridesmaids, each in a gown of ravishing loveliness. Immediately after the bridesmaids came the matron-of-honor, then the little ring-bearer, and then the little flower girl, followed by the bride on the arm of her brother, Mr. Rex A. Turner of Seattle. She wore a lovely gown of heavy crepe black satin, paneled entirely down the front with an exquisite edging of rose point lace embroidered to the panel with crystal and pearl beads. The long court train three and one-fourth yards in length—was lavishly embroidered with pearl and crystal. A flowing vell of bride's tulle fell from a coronet of lace and orange blossome the full length of the train, which was borne by two small pages, Adair Birtchet and Made-line Knowles, wearing white satin suits with jade green-lined capes and gold buttons. The delicate lace used in the bridal accessories is an heirloom which has been in the Turner family for more than four generations. The bride car-ried a shower and cushion bouquet of deep pink butterfly roses which lay against a rich pillow of satin and lace with crystal-adorned ribbon forming the shower.
