Photo shows the Cherry City Milling company building, Church and Trade, which was destroyed by a spectacular fire Sunday night. The loss, estimated at $135,000, is two-thirds covered by insurance. A modern fire-proof building is contemplated to replace the wooden structure.

Mills and the new corporation formed, with the old concern moving to the quarters destroyed by fire. The building was built in 1902. Members of the firm are P. W. Geiser, Salem; Marion and Ernest Palmer of Silverton; Marion Palmer is president and Mr. Geiser secretary-treasurer of the firm and manager of the mill.

seltz Knapp Breed, Boston's charming entertainer, afforded them in the new tent which was raised, shortly before time for Miss Breed's arrival on the platform, to replace the one destroyed by the fire of Sunday evening.

Miss Breed comes to every new audience with the unqualified success of all previous appearances to recommend her. Her program was a fascinating miscellany of monologues, anecdotes, short stories, and sketches the latter group of which was given in special, characteristic costumes which Miss Breed donned in the presence of her audience to assure husbands that it isn't at all fair to say a woman needs a whole day to dress.

Probably the audience was as pleased over the monologue, "Freddy at Lunch," the opening number, as with any other feature on the program. A series of pointed anecdotes added variety to the early part, after which Miss Breed gave an engrossing story, "Tired of Your Husband." The Chicago factory girl at the movies, with her powder puff as big as a bath mat and cheeks as pink as peonies, was a "scream." In utter contrast was the pallid-cheeked Aunt Eliza of Maine with dainty black lace mitts, tiny fluted parasol and seagate bonnet, who decided instead of taking a $3000 automobile she would be quite willing to buy one for $5000 if she could be sure it would "go a mite faster."

The Italian impersonation, also in costume, was the most serious of the numbers offered. The children were generously remembered and Miss Breed took particular heed of her juvenile audience. The closing number was a joggling description of a girl's first automobile ride.

In both programs today, in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, and in the evening at 8 o'clock, the Charles Mitchell Mixer Concert Trio will be featured, with T. Dinsmore Upton, who comes with unique recommendations, is the lecturer of the evening.

USE OF KKK DISPUTED

GEORGIA KLAN FILES SUIT AGAINST OKLAHOMA UNIT
PAWHUSKA, Okla., July 13.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Ku Klux Klan of Georgia brought suit in the state district court here today against the Ku Klux Klan of Oklahoma, alleging the Oklahoma organization was improperly using the name Ku Klux Klan. One million dollars damage was asked.

Attorneys said the action was not directed against the regular organization of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma but against a new organization formed November 8, 1924, near Shidler, Okla.

Immediately after the papers were filed, it was understood the action was against the original Ku Klux Klan, but a later statement from W. D. Pierson, local attorney, asserted the suit was against the alleged spurious organization.

The suit brought W. S. Cumberton of Washington, represented as the chief counsel for the Ku Klux Klan of Georgia, through Pierson, besides asking damages, seeks to gain a complete accounting of the organization's finances and an injunction to bear the latter organization from using any name of which "Ku Klux Klan" is a part.

Convention Pays Tribute to Dr. Daniel A. Poling

By EDNA GARFIELD,
Salem may well be proud of the fact that she can lay some claim to Dr. Daniel A. Poling, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Poling of this city, who was recently elected president of the International United Societies of Christian Endeavor, succeeding Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the movement, who, because of advancing years, requested that the leadership of this work be placed upon younger shoulders.

Dr. Poling—or "our Dan," as he was affectionately termed by the Oregon contingent during the convention—was born in Portland where he attended public school; then Lafayette seminary, established by his father and Dr. W. C. Kantner of this city, which was later consolidated with LaCrosse academy of Dallas, of which Rev. C. C. Poling for several years was president. At present "our Dan" is pastor of the famous Fifth Avenue Marble Collegiate church of New York, North America's oldest protestant church.

Dr. Poling made several notable convention addresses, the last of which, "Success," was an eloquent plea to young people for the adoption and maintenance of high standards and lofty ideals.

"There, are those," he said "who judge all things by the standard of gold value, and spend their days accordingly, and while money is by no means to be despised, yet it is not the true measure of success. A venerable old man at Independence, Or., once defined success as 'health, happiness and heaven!' Is short," said Dr. Poling, "success is doing your best—your dead level best, putting into life your brain, your heart, your soul; and to do that you must find a task worth while."

Dr. Poling paid reverent tribute to his early Sunday school teacher at McMinnville, who, 33 years ago, organized there a Junior Christian Endeavor society, which Dr. Poling, then a mere boy, joined. "Thank God," said he, "that in that Oregon village this woman, unknown to fame, gave to life her best, and urged us to do likewise."

His latest book, "The Furnace," is cited by New York critics as one of the widely discussed books of the day, being a story dealing with the methods of the steel industry, the author having been, says the New York Evening Post, "secretary of the investigating commission of the interchurch World movement, which delved into the rights and wrongs of the steel strike in 1919."

In an unusually lengthy review of this book the Post further says in part:
"The commission reported the causes of the strike lay in grievances, which gave the workers just cause for complaint and for action and that these unredressed grievances still exist in the steel industry."

"Like the hero of the book, Dr. Poling is a powerful man, who believes in a fierce, indomitable Americanism. During the war he served with the rank of major as a chaplain with the First division. While actively helping his comrades in the front line trenches he was gassed and invalidated to Scotland." Dr. Poling generously autographed copies of his book for convention delegates and friends.

D. V. Poling, L.L.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Albany, is a brother of Dan Poling; another brother, Charles, is pastor of the Ridgeway, Pennsylvania, Presbyterian church, and another brother was graduated from Willamette university this year.

During the convention in Portland Dr. Poling was conspicuously honored in many ways, in addition to his elevation to the international presidency of that organization; all of which he receives with an innate modesty and reticence characteristic of all his activities.

Mrs. Poling and their seven interesting children accompanied Dr. Poling on his western trip.

Dr. Poling will occupy the pulpit of his father, C. C. Poling, this morning at the First Evangelical church, and this evening he will fill an engagement at Gladstone Chautauqua.

CLAIM SAUNDERS ESTATE DEATHBED PAPER HELD BY CORVALLIS WOMAN
SPOKANE, Wash., July 13.—Claim to the entire $20,000 estate of the late W. W. Saunders, justice of the peace at Spokane, has been made by Mrs. Cecil Rennie of Corvallis, Ore., on the ground that Saunders gave it to her, two days before he died. The alleged agreement of Saunders giving Mrs. Rennie his entire estate was witnessed by Harry J. Anderson and C. M. Leedham at Corvallis.

Mrs. Minnie Saunders, wife of the Spokane justice, died recently and left her estate to many Spokane women and provided Mrs. Rennie was to receive $8000 of her estate. Justice Saunders died later and provided his personal property go to Mrs. Rennie, that $500 go to F. C. Highsmith for "a good time" and the rest go to nieces in Texas.

While the estate was being probated the heirs of Mrs. Saunders sued to have all the property declared owned by Mrs. Saunders.

years ago he killed a man at Albany who had made slighting remarks about the woman he loved and her sister, later marrying the woman. He was convicted of first degree murder, escaped jail and was recaptured by F. P. Hogan. Upon his second trial he was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. After serving 10 years he was pardoned. While in prison he was a great favorite among the convicts.

After leaving Salem Mr. Saunders went to Spokane where he was befriended by Hogan. He practiced law and became justice of the peace. He came from a good Texas family and amassed a small fortune through mining operations. At one time he was editor of the Corvallis Gazette, returning to that city to spend his last days. The Rennies formerly lived in Salem and were well-known here.

FRUIT SHIPPERS RESTING HAVE LITTLE TO DO UNTIL APPLE CROP HARVEST

Local green fruit shippers are resting on their oars after the recent activity in the cherry market and are expecting continued inactivity until the apple crop is harvested.

It is stated by officials of the local fruit shipping companies that practically all of the best blocks of pears have been contracted for by the canneries. What few are not already contracted for will hardly be worth while shipping.

In speaking of the prune prospects for this year, it was stated that in all probability the amount handled by green fruit shippers will be small. The crop is everywhere slight, and most of it already contracted by the canneries. The price approximates $33 a ton, it is said. Because of the scarcity of the crop this year, prices will doubtless go even higher than it now is, and if it does it will make it impossible for shippers to compete for the crop with canners.

The outlook for the apple crop is generally good throughout the valley, with only here and there traces of scab.

PLANS FOR REBUILDING MILL TO BE DISCUSSED

in the vicinity of the main fire. Having had such a start, the fire could not be controlled, but the firemen did much excellent work in preventing its spread. Several streams of water were played on the ruins all night and one stream Monday all day and last night in an effort to drown the smouldering grain. Only a few of the heavy walls of grain cribs remained standing yesterday. Both safes were raked from the ashes, their contents examined and found intact.

W. H. Dancy, chairman of the fire committee of the city council, calls attention to the city's lack of adequate fire fighting apparatus. Had the wind not died down prior to the blaze the fire would have spread to other buildings, and it is doubtful if it could have been checked, he declares. The purchase of two more pumps is advocated.

Sales in the northwest and western Oregon cities from products of the Cherry City Milling company varies between $350,000 and $500,000 annually, Mr. Geiser said yesterday. The mill has a monthly payroll of around $1600. The firm was organized in 1913 when it was known as the Cherry City Mills. The plant was located on Trade, between Church and High. In 1919 a consolidation was effected with the Capital City

Washing . . . Washing . . . Washing!

BY THE side of many a stream in Europe you can see women doing the family wash in that old, back-breaking way. They carry heavy baskets down to the stream—soak the clothes and scrub, scrub, scrub on the bare boards and hard rocks.

Contrast that with the average American home where washing is done in comparative ease. New labor-saving soaps and compounds eliminate much of the old scrubbing, even in homes where electricity does not eliminate it all. Wash-day is over in a few short hours. Time for pleasure, for other things.

Not only in washing, but in practically every phase of woman's work, new products and inventions are freeing her from home drudgery and slavery. She has leisure now and comforts that the average foreign woman cannot even imagine.

To a large measure this has been due to advertising. Advertising has familiarized American women with new inventions. Advertising has made possible the wide distribution of new products. By increasing sales, advertising has reduced the price of modern household utilities to the reach of the modest purse.

Advertisements add new ease to life. Read them.
