HIGH SCHOOL TO STAND

McMAHAN REFUSES TO DIS-SOLVE GERVAIS UNION.

The union high school at Gervais will not be dissolved, according to an order handed down in the circuit court yesterday by Judge L. H. McMahan. The order requires the county judge to declare the election result as favoring the continuance of the school. The matter first came into prominence about a month ago when voters in the four districts comprising the union school held an election to decide whether the school should be continued. The result of the election was at first announced as favoring the dissolution of the school. Those desiring the continuation of the school protested the vote, however, and an injunction was granted to declare the result of the election to be that the vote of dissolution had failed and that a majority of the districts voting at the election did not vote in favor of dissolution.

According to the law, all districts in a union school must be in favor of dissolving the school before it can be discontinued.

Harold Fearing, a student at Willamette university, has returned to Salem from a week's trip to the Hills near Tacoma.

Mrs. L. B. Bellinger, librarian at the Salem high school, and during vacation period assistant librarian at the Salem public library returned from Tacoma yesterday morning. While in Washington, Mrs. Bellinger attended the National American Librarian association convention held in Seattle last week.

C. P. Wells of Young & Wells, fresh fruit shipping company and family left Monday for Seaside, where they will spend a month's vacation.

G. B. Williams, of the Central Life Assurance society of Des Moines, Ia., whose offices are in the Oregon building, returned from a business trip to coast cities Sunday.

Lee L. Hornsburger, formerly employed at the Valley Grill, is now the manager of the Lunch Box restaurant, located at 181 South Liberty.

Senator Sam M. Garland of Lebanon, recently appointed a member of the state fish commis-

Bite For Breakfast

Fine harvest weather— And it is about 50-50 as to those wanting more of it or rain.

The Salem Elks ought to pull down a prize or two at the great parade in Portland on Thursday. They certainly have the goods.

Three more big days of the Salem Chautauqua. They are all big days this year.

The Slogan editor is finding a goat boom (Angora and milk) in preparing the annual goat Slogan number for Thursday's Statesman. We should have a bigger goat boom. Oregon should have a dozen to fifteen Angoras for every one in the state now, and 1,000 milk goats for every one in Oregon at the present time.

No woman who has come to Salem recently has more quickly found favor in the sight of a large number of people than did Mrs. H. K. Stockwell, who passed to eternal rest at the Salem hospital yesterday after a few brief days of suffering from ptomaine poisoning. The announcement of her death will come as a great shock to many here, though she had come to Salem only a year ago in April. She had at once taken up with the work of the First Congregational church, having been a member of that denomination since early girlhood. Dr. Stockwell and the son, Donald, will have the sympathy of all Salem in the sad loss of loving wife and devoted mother.

Flax pulling is going forward quite generally. There are a number of small tracts in the Aurora district, the largest being that of John Kraus, five acres. When Mr. Kraus got ready to commence pulling he found two men in his neighborhood who had pulled flax in their home lands in Europe, but in different countries there. One of them pulls the Irish way with a flip over the knee. The other pulls with each hand working at the same time; a different system. But both are right, and doing good work, and so are the novices whom they have taught.

Vernonia—New Johnson-McGraw shingle mill will employ 20 men.
