POPULAR PLAY OFFERED

"DADDY LONGLEGS" AT CHAUTAUQUA TONIGHT

"Daddy Longlegs" dramatization of Jean Webster's famous book which swept the country with a lasting wave of popularity when it was written, is to be the play offering of the Chautauqua program. It will be given here this evening following the junior day afternoon program.

Old time stage producers claim that no play has ever been produced in America that makes such lasting effect on a community as "Daddy Longlegs." On its first appearance in San Francisco it is claimed that 84 adoptions of children resulted from the sympathy aroused through the plight of the orphan, Judy. Even though Judy happily escapes from her bondage as slavery in the drear New England "home," and the story has the happiest of endings, the emotions of the public are always lasting and the story does good by "carrying on."

"Daddy Longlegs" will be produced here by the Elias Day players with charming Donna Voorhees in the role of Judy and Lawrence Johns as Jergals Pendleton ("Daddy"). Miss Pritchard, the happy go-between, who brings about all the good luck Judy finally enjoys through being adopted by her unknown and unseen benefactor, will be in the hands of Miss Harriet Eells, who is capable in every way. Miss Jeanne Chandler as Daddy's niece and Judy's college room mate, is a talented, vivacious and thoroughly experienced artist. Jimmie McBride, college boy aspirant for Judy's hand, will be portrayed faithfully by James Puresell.

"Daddy Longlegs" will never grow stale in the affections of the public and producers say it will never lessen in its miraculous "drawing" power. The Elliott-White Service is to be congratulated on its selection of this classic for the Chautauqua season play.

Bluebottle Fly Breathes to Entertain Scientists

LONDON—A large bluebottle fly was the center of attraction recently at an assembly of members of the Royal Society, who witnessed the working of an instrument called the Shakespeare katharometer with which it was possible to measure the fly's respiration. It is claimed that the katharometer can measure also the breathing of a plant, find the water vapor in the air and detect the most minute leakage of gas in the envelopes of balloons and airships. Tests are to be made to determine its value in medical research.

Comfortably accommodated in a glass tube, the blue bottle fly was brought to London from Cambridge. After being inspected by the scientists, fresh air was admitted into the tube and the insect was seen to take deep breaths, much to the delight of the audience, who realized that the breathing performance of the bluebottle fly would provide ample opportunity for the instrument to show its worth. At the same time, it was announced, the staleness of the atmosphere inside the tube was also recorded by the device.

RIVER BOAT SERVICE TO BE RESUMED TODAY

"NORTHWESTERN" LEAVING PORTLAND WITH CARGO

Tripp Found Necessary at Brentano; Trucks Will Haul Freight Here

The river boat Northwestern, owned and operated by the Salem Navigation company, and until recently engaged in carrying freight between Portland and Salem, will resume operations this morning.

It became necessary some time ago to discontinue freight carrying on the river because of low water, and since then it has been feared that it would be impossible to resume traffic on the river this summer.

The Northwestern will leave the Portland dock this morning, and make it way up the river to Brentano, a place some 20 miles below Salem. At Brentano the cargo will be transferred to trucks and brought on to Salem by highway. The boat will leave Portland at 4 o'clock every morning and will arrive at Brentano at about 10 o'clock. The trucks from Brentano will arrive in Salem some time in the early afternoon and will be unloaded and then loaded with freight for Portland and way points, which it will take to Brentano and transfer to the Northwestern. In this way a daily service will be maintained between Portland and Salem. It is impossible for the river boat to make its way up the river above Brentano.

A warehouse will be erected at Brentano and freight received there for shipment either to Portland or Salem. The company will handle not only merchandise, but

A pledge of fair dealing

THE strongest pledge of friendship and fair dealing known to the early Norsemen was the simple act of one man placing his hand between the hands of another. Ruthless, terrible and cruel as the Vikings were, no man broke this pledge without forfeiting his honor and the friendship of every true man.

Today modern business forms friends in every corner of the world through the pledge of the printed word. Advertisements are pledges made especially for you . . . pledges that advertised goods you buy are exactly as claimed.

No sane business man would advertise an unworthy product. Nothing could bring ruin more quickly. For when a product is advertised, it invites the criticism of millions of people. It must make good its claims, or it forfeits the patronage of thousands.

A product that is not advertised may be worth buying. But it is little known and its merit or unworthiness lies hid in comparative security. Every product you see advertised must be worthy. It is tested daily by thousands. It is proved in the pitiless glare of publicity—pledged to you in the advertising columns regularly.

Read the advertisements to know which goods are advertised.

An advertiser's pledge can be redeemed only by your entire satisfaction
