RECORD CROWD ATTENDS JEAN WEBSTER'S PLAY

Smith, Donna Voorhees, as Judy, herself was an unusual type of actress who carried the lead with vigor and naive charm. The auditor may have fancied Judy would be the frilly, butterfly type, but Miss Webster meant her very much as she was presented last night—exuberant, energetic, expressive. Frank Dure and Harriet Eells took the respective parts of Mrs. Semple and Miss Pritchard, and of Griggs and Silas Wyloff.

The afternoon program, featuring Miss Margaret Byers, assisted by Jeanne Chandler, was a complete diversion from the ordinary. Miss Byers and Miss Chandler were both cast for prominent parts in the evening drama as those present noted. Miss Byers, as Freddy was an impetuous youngster with a great propensity for nickels. As Freddy's sister, Margie, she was adorable in pink frills, while as a surprising Miss Byers, herself, coming from Alabama, she was delightful in her afternoon frock of pink with a skirt of dainty tiers in rainbow tints. Miss Byers sang, read, and told stories in a joyous manner.

Today, the last day of Chautauqua, closes with the Maupin Singing Band.

M'MILLAN HEARD FROM

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., July 15.—(By Associated Press.)—The following from the MacMillan naval polar expedition was received tonight by Operator John Bausola, station 4ASK, of this city: "Message No. 7,152 — From Bowdoin, July 15, 1925. To the National Geographic society of Washington, D. C., via station 4ASK: "Bowdoin still back in Hopeville, while Peary is off Greenland coast south of Disko island, beyond Arctic circle after crossing at low tide this morning. Locked on broken propeller wire removed with shaft foot and a half under water. Too deep to permit heavy handling. Necessary to remove and sub spar propeller. All heavy weight, including spare anchor chain and ammunition carried forward. Eleven 400-pound cans of gasoline (transhipped to small boat while six hoghead pontoons are used under to lift it farther onto shore.

"Other activity is impeded by a small tidal movement and the worst plague of mosquitoes that Hopeville has seen in many years. Men slept little last night, some climbing to top of mast to seek relief after fighting mosquitoes for three days. Heavy work comes at high and low tide, night and day. To maintain morale and keep men fit, game of playground ball is played.

"This afternoon several Labradorians in this section came down to see the game. Young Eskimos peeped interestedly at us and Eskimo dogs looked suspiciously at our baseball bats. Women carrying water added color to the setting of our sport.

"Weather here is unseasonably warm. Men have been swimming with water at 53 degrees. This proved an interesting sport to Eskimos, who live in boats but cannot swim."

SCHOOL POPULATION IS INCREASING IN SALEM

FIGURES FOR LAST FIVE YEARS ARE PREPARED

Enrollment in Next Few Years is Anticipated to Show Substantial Gain

A report being compiled for the school board of the growth and activity of the school district during the last five years, shows interesting data concerning the increase in enrollment during that period, and its relationship to the increase in the city's population. The report is being prepared by Superintendent George W. Hug.

The report gives the city's population in 1917 as 17,679, and in 1925 as 22,894. Estimating on this basis it is figured that the population of the city in 1930 will be 30,000. This increase in population means that the enrollment in the schools would be increased to between 1400 and 1500 in the senior high school, approximately the same number in the junior high schools and from 2800 to 3000 in the grade schools.

The increase in enrollment in the public schools between 1920 and 1925 is shown to be as follows:

Junior high schools, 902 to 1126; senior high school, 711 to 1090; grade schools, 1984 to 2442.

Further statistics show the relative cost per pupil for instruction in the various departments. These statistics show that the cost per pupil for instruction in shop and drawing is the highest, being $42.16. The cost per pupil in the physical education department is the lowest, being, $4.18.

DRILL TEAMS BRILLIANT

ELKS AWARD PRIZES FOR SHOWY PARADE DISPLAYS

PORTLAND, Or., July 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Bakersfield, Cal., won first prize in the drill team contest at the annual convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks here this afternoon. Jackson, Mich., was second, Pasadena, Cal., third, Detroit fourth, Seattle fifth, and Boise Idaho, sixth.

In the drum corps competition, St. Paul, Minn., took first place, and Dallas, Texas, second and third. The third prize was given to the team farthest away from home. The demonstration on the field opened with a spectacular review in which each competing drill team and drum corps participated.

Bakersfield with its team of 16 men uniforms of white with purple Sam Browne belts, white caps and shining sabers, executed military formation in near perfect style.

St. Paul drum corps, which took first place, was handsome in uniforms of purple and nickel plated "tin" hats. Dallas, Texas, drum corps literally shot onto the field in cowboy fashion and then settled down to business, giving a spirited review.

Competition stopped about midway when Philadelphia put on a show of its own. It came onto the field with its cavalry unit, its strangled orchestra, motorcycle squadron, guard of honor and its drill team.

Purple and white motorcycles, 12 of them, brought from Philadelphia with the rest of the equipment, did a drill of their own, and in keeping with the spirit of the occasion, emitted purple smoke from their exhausts. The guard of honor, composed entirely of overseas veterans wore handsome outfits and camouflage helmets of purple and white. The drill team included 32 men, a leader and three guides.

SCIENTIST WITNESS IN EVOLUTION CASE

The jury, permit the witness to answer questions and then argue the competency of his testimony.

Dr. Metcalf told of his years of study and work as a teacher of zoology. He recounted his degrees and connections in scientific research. After this detail, Clarence Darrow asked:

"Are you an evolutionist?"

"Surely," replied the witness, as the attorney general seemed about to interpose an objection.

"Do you know any scientific men who are not evolutionists?"

Was Mr. Darrow's next question, and Dr. Stewart's objection was in this time before an answer could be made.

The court instructed the witness to whisper his answer to the court stenographer and admonished that court attaché not to permit the press to get it.

The answer was whispered and entered in the record.

Then Dr. Metcalf was asked to give his definition of evolution. The witness said that he was opposed to definition, but was willing to give descriptions. The question was finally lost in the shuffle, but after the jury had walked away, Mr. Darrow was ready with another.

"Will you state what evolution is in regard to the origin of man?"

Finally it was agreed that certain questions on evolution might be answered to furnish the basis for the discussion to follow before the court.

"Evolution," said Dr. Metcalf, "and the theories of evolution are fundamentally different things."

"The facts of evolution are all theories. There are dozens of theories. There are dozens of theories of evolution, some of which are largely mistaken and some almost wholly true."

"We are in possession of scientific knowledge to answer flatly that evolution has occurred. Evolution in its final analysis means change of an organism from one character to a different character. The change of an organism from one set of characteristics to a form having a different set of characteristics may be found, in general, to be evolution."

"Starting with the inorganic world, there has been a tremendous series of changes. The situation is comparatively young. The earth has gone through long courses of change. But we have to conceive earliest forms of life subsisting solely on inorganic food. Only plants can do that. No animal has been able to live solely on inorganic food."

"From the first living things developed whole series of forms in plant groups, gradually becoming more conspicuous. These form a beautiful series as we study their bodies in the rocks."

"I'm inclined to believe there may have been whole series of animals and plants in the earth completely wiped out. They were succeeded by other series of plants and animals on the earth. The evidence is insufficient to determine when the first life appeared. Geologists measure age not in years, and I am not an expert in that line. I would say 600,000,000 years is a modest guess."

"Alongside of plants whole series of animals were developed. Animals hustle to get their food and therefore developed locomotive organs. Plants have not. It is not so easy to tell the order in which plants evolved as to tell about this change in the higher animals. In plants there is a series of increasing perplexities."

"Animal life and plant life probably began at the borderline between the water and the land. A long period in early life all living things were marine. When terrestrial life began conditions were more difficult and needs meet these difficulties of existence have been the occasion of developing conditions to supply these needs. Considerable portions of life on the land have gone back to the sea."

Dr. Metcalf, in describing a mammal, said hair developed or rudimentary, is a feature and that mammals also suckle their young. They have a vertebral column and two pairs of limbs which always have a shoulder or hip girdle.

Man was classed among the primates. He was not so highly developed in his body as some other animals. His hand was not so skillful as the claw of a bird. Primates included monkeys, tailed and tailless, man and others of which fossil forms had been found.

Fundamental proofs of evolution were found not in man so much as in lower animals. Various proofs found throughout the universe made a tremendous probability in favor of evolution of man.

"The series of proofs are so convincing that any informed man can not doubt the probability of man's evolution," Dr. Metcalf concluded for the day.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents.

Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whiteners, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.
