PLUMBING AND GENERAL REPAIR work. Graber Bros., 141 Liberty St. Phone 550. THE CURIOUS COURSE MOTHER GRAHAM DECIDED TO ADOPT Mother Graham turned from

Junior to me, with eyes innocent of tears, but filled with anger. with withering emphasis, the words Junior had reproduced so

"Until I go I shall remain in my own room," she haughtily continued. "Do not send me up my meals. If I want anything I shall ask Mrs. Bickett. She is to come home from the hospital today, and I shall engage her at once to take care of me until I leave. Richard certainly can do that much for his mother. And if that ape of a Kathrow he out bodily."

What Madge Remembered

She walked from the room majestically, closing the door behind her with emphasis and yet with wart from Panama. It had been dignity. . Her exit closed a scene with which I am only too familiar. for whenever my mother-in-lav becomes thoroughly angered as Dicky or me usually me-she retires to her room and announces her intention of leaving as soon as she hears from either Elizabeth her daughters. She rarely leaves, however, and when she does, she invariably reto ne within a ridiculously short

I can understand her willingness to get away from Mrs. Harrion's house, for my sister-in-law Elizabeth, is a most unpleasant her power, as I discovered when woman, and unkind to those in and expedient and hereby declares sire and her children visited us a its purpose and intention to imfew months ago. tened to comparisons between Harmaids under my mother-in-law's riet Braithwaite's perfectly-trained regime, and loving, hard-working. yet harum-scarum Katie! Yet I have noticed that Mother Graham returns from the Braithwaite home. with but little less joy than she betrays when coming back from the Harrison menage.

The secret, of course, is Junior -Richard Second, as she invariably calls him. It is positive torture to her to be separated from her idolized grandson, and her growing less frequent as our little trips away from our home are lad grows older.

"Get he Two Schickens."

I was very she that her present declaration of go,"g away was only a giguntic bluff. But the sardonic smile which first & me to my lips was quickly wiped oft, as with remorseful anxiety I noted the feebleness of her attempt to make her exit the arrogant, impressive departure, it used to be. Useless, however, for me to say anything to her until the first force of ner anger should have spent itself. With a little sigh at the unfortunate contretemps which had marred my homecoming, I took Junior by the hand and started to the kitchen in search of Katie. I found her on the kitchen porch in excited conference with Jim, whom she evidently had hastily summoned from the wood lot. "You remember now, you get me two dose yungest schickens hatched last of all last fall. I goin' have smothered schicken for my Misses Graham for dinner, so you step lively now, shoost same as if you on subway." "What are you going to do with the roast the butcher brought just now?" Jim asked.

Katie put her arms akimbo, and cocked her head at him saucily. Katie will coquette with her husband when she is 90, I verily be-Heve. "You poor boonch of soup greens!" she exclaimed. "Do you tink dere no ice box in dia house? I put me roast on ice box till to-"So I cry not because I feel bad, morrow, but my Misses Graham, but when I am mad, to get my she like smothered schicken, und own way"—she repeated slowly, she going to have cet, so shoost put dot in your pipe und schmoke cet. I not know vot beesness cet perfectly from his father's lips. ees of yours anyway, emarty."

"Of course, I know who first | She flirted her apron at him as went on, punctuating her sentence quickly forward to greet Jim, I with quick, short node of her head saw with a thankful heart that the toward me, "but it is only what I romance of my faithful little" might have expected. There is housekeeper and her husband-lovonly one thing for me to do. of er, had not been hurt by the recourse. I shall write to Elizabeth membrance of the dead ruffian or flarriet and go to one of them Joe, who for so long was a menace to Katie's happiness. (To oe continued.)
