FIRE EQUIPMENT ASKED

LIONS VOTE TO SUPPORT PURCHASE OF MATERIALS

At the weekly meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon the organization voted unanimously to support any campaign started for the purpose of securing adequate fire equipment to enable the fire department to meet all emergencies that may arise. The organization included in the above resolution a commendation of the work done by the fire department during the fire last Sunday night.

Frank Neer, district governor of the Lions club, who has returned from the international Lions' convention at Cedar Point, Ohio, gave a report of the convention. The convention next year is to be held at San Francisco. A keen rivalry between Los Angeles and San Francisco delegates sprang up on the train on the way east, and was decided only after a caucus was held on the train and delegates from the two rival cities made to see how futile would be the attempt of either city to gain the convention.

The work of the Lions' club, as shown at the convention, was outlined by Mr. Neer, who also stated that the club was a very active factor in a movement to rid the country of the many obscene magazines and books that are being published of late. According to Mr. Neer there have been 18 magazines that "out-French the French," published for the first time, during the last six months in the United States. In one or two instances the Lions have taken it upon themselves to arrest distributors of this obscene literature on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

SCOPES TRIAL MAY CLOSE ON TUESDAY

lawful "to teach any theory that denies the story of divine creation as taught in the Bible and to teach instead that man has descended from a lower order of animals."

The exchange between Darrow and Stewart continued for a few moments with the judge taking no part. Eventually it shifted to a discussion of the proper method of getting the testimony of the scientists into the record of the case. Defense counsel submitted that witnesses should be heard in the presence of court and absence of the jury.

The attorney general submitted that sufficient testimony should be permitted in the record to enable the supreme court to pass upon the proposition, but argued that no long drawn-out examination could be conducted, "and make a farce of your honor's opinion."

Arthur G. Hayes said that the defense should have the right to argue before the court that the law is unreasonable.

The attorney general suggested that the excluded evidence be put in substance, Darrow replying he was willing to do that.

W. J. Bryan entered the discussion, asking the court if the witnesses were permitted to testify as experts for the information of the court, if they would be subject to cross examination. Judge Raulston replied that the state would be given the opportunity to cross-examine if the witnesses went on the stand.

This drew a statement from Mr. Darrow that the state had no such right. Finally the court ruled that the defense might put its testimony in the form of affidavits, but if witnesses were used they would be cross-examined. Then we will make statements of what we expect to prove," said Darrow. "Can we have the rest of the day to draft them?"

"If your honor takes half a day to write an opinion—" the judge interrupted, but the defense counsel spoke up again:

"We want to make statements here of what we expect to prove. I do not understand why every request of the prosecution should meet with endless time, and a bare suggestion of anything that is perfectly proper on our side should be immediately overruled."

"I hope you do not mean to reflect upon the court," said the judge.

"Well, your honor has the right to hope," said Darrow.

"I have a right to do something else, perhaps," suggested the judge.
