LIONS CLUB PICNIC IS ATTENDED BY OVER 100

ANNUAL GATHERING HELD LAST NIGHT IS SUCCESS

Splendid Time Had by Club; Excellent Program Provided by Committee

The Salem Lions club held its annual picnic at Lion Lloyd Reynolds' place 3 miles north of Salem on the Pacific highway last evening. There were over 100 Lions and Lions' wives present and everyone said that the picnic was the best ever held by the club.

On arrival at the grove the ladies were given papers and instructed to get the names of every other lady present and the occupation of her husband. Mrs. Hardin was able to secure more names than anyone else and won the prize of a large box of candy, offered by the committee. Mrs. William Hickey won the booby prize, the privilege to sing for the entertainment of those present.

While the ladies were busy getting names the men were playing ball. The battery for one side consisted of Lanson, Springer and Harding and for the other side Rathbun and Bates. The feature of the game was the fielding of "Bob" Alken and the batting of John Rottle.

A barrel tilting contest was won by James Smart and an egg carrying contest was won by Lion Fitzgerald.

After the ball game the call for cate was sounded and all lined up for the feed. There were sandwiches, salads, baked beans, more sandwiches, more beans and more salads, coffee, cake, ice cream and everything good to eat.

When everyone had finished eating the program of the evening was started. The stage was set on one of the Giese-Powers trucks which had been furnished by Lion Alken. Electric lights of various colors lighted the grounds and a piano was on hand to furnish the music. Speeches were made by Professor Harding, his subject being Evolution; Dr. Emmons whose subject was Married Life; J. H. Willet, who talked on Drugs and Beauty Preparations. Frank Neer and Lloyd Reynolds gave reports of their trip to the Lions' convention and entertained with some of the songs they learned on the trip. As singers they were weak, but those present got the idea, anyway. "Rufe" White spoke on Evolution and seemed to be well informed on his subject. After continued request and much urging, he gave his famous oration, "The American Eagle." This oration the Lions have listened to at almost every special gathering or social function but seemingly they never tire of it, as they always demand it. "Rufe" has the ability to change it and spring something a little different each time.

Perhaps the most important event provided by the entertainment committee for the evening was the three-round boxing match between "Terrible" John Rottle and "Bob" Alken. Alken, who stands over six feet, and Rottle somewhere in the neighborhood of five feet, made a real match—at least it kept the others in a continual uproar. In the third round

Alken went down for the count after Rottle had landed one in the solar plexus—that's as high as he could reach. It was thought "Bob" faked the knockout, however, for when Dr. Brown approached with a bucket of water to pour on his face, "Bob" jumped to his feet.

James Smart entertained with a few selections and all sang "Till We Meet Again." The committee in charge of the entertainment were Williams, Frasier, Springer and Scott. Those in charge of the cater were Dr. Brown, Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John Orr and Mrs. Harry Scott.
