Evolution

has played its part in clothes-washing

A famous writer once said, "Nothing permanent but change." Read how true this is of laundry methods. Note how this laundry has evolved new scientific methods, now using pure materials only.

Imagine This a Hundred Years Age

Clothes - washing was a crude art one hundred years ago. There were no laundries then. Some still took clothes down to the riverbank to wash. Folks all made their own soap in those old-fashioned days. And usually they mixed in it a strong lye, which softened water and got the dirt, but proved extremely hard on clothes.

Then fifty years ago the laundry sprang into existence. A rather crude institution in those early days, indeed! About all those oldtime laundries attempted was to wash and "polish" men's collars. The brighter and slicker the polish, the better customers liked it.

> Note Today's New Methods

Out of that modest beginning has evolved the presentday scientific laundry - an evolution that has been gradual. Yet like other present - day achievements, its greatest strides have come in very recent years.

A few years ago laundries began to offer a less expensive family service, doing washings by the pound. At first this proved unsatisfactory to many critical people. They considered the price still high, and the methods realized we must improve methods, lower prices, and secure volume, in order to be successful.

We larger laundries soon

So we employed modern science. A research laboratory was established at Mellon Institute, in Pittsburg. Countless laboratory tests were made there by our chemists. Old formulas. materials, and ways were tested, and then discarded.

Now we use only the purest of materials, in which you may safely wash your face. Modern invention gave us new machines. Now there is no rubbing, no friction-no chance of tearing or wearing. Now we use more water-giving clothes nine baths - each time in fresh, clean water, never used for a previous batch.

Wet Wash

Try our economical Wet-Wash service. It saves you far more work

than an electric machine,

and actually at less cost.

Everything scientifically washed with purest of materials and returned

City Laundry than if done

by less scientific home meth-

Looking into the future, we see the present trend having reached its goal. We venture that there will be no wash-tubs-no wash-boards -no washing machines-in any home a hundred years from now.

The people of that future day will see these reminders of ancient home drudgery only in a museum, along with the spinning-wheel and other relics of by-gone days.

Right now hundreds of Salem housewives are finding freedom from this dreaded home slavery. They are learning that Capital City Laundry methods are no longer hard on clothes that we return clothes snowy-white, sweet and clean, as sterile as a surgeon's gown. They are learning that it costs less than with an electric washerand saves them ALL the drudgery of washing, instead of just the rubbing.

So why not join these happy women in freedom? Try our service two weeks. Put it to this test. Our telephone number is 165. Ask to have a route-man call.
