Demand

N the early days of the telehone, when the 16-mile circuit from Boston to Salem was the longest in existence, an old lady visited the Boston exchange and asked for a connection to Chicago so she could talk with her son.

The need for voicing thought to far-away places began with the nation's expanding activities. Long before the telephone art permitted it, long distance service was demanded. A national service was, from the beginning, the beacon of the telephone's founders, and the inspiration of the scientists and engineers whose achievements gradually overcame the obstacles to the transmission of human speech.

These conquered, national expansion has more and more been made possible; and the uncertainties of separation have diminished. Today any community in America can talk with any other so promptly and satisfactorily that men have difficulty in imagining a time when universal service was an ideal yet to be reached.
