OREGON FLAX MILL LARGEST IN WORLD

The Oregonian's Salem Correspondent Tells About the State Flax Plant

(The following is from the Portland Oregonian of Sunday morning last.)

SALEM, Or., Aug. 1.—(Special)—The Oregon state penitentiary, with 24 machines in operation and a crew of 50 convicts at work, now has the largest and best equipped flax scutching mill in the world. Oregon's nearest competitor in the flax industry is in Ireland, where there is a mill with 23 machines. As an inducement for good work and attention to business, the state pays the convicts employed in the flax plant 50 cents a day. Similar compensation is provided for convicts engaged in other departments of the flax industry, including work of stacking the raw material, operating the retting tanks and taking care of the flax in the drying fields. The drying process follows retting of the flax and requires a period of approximately ten days.

Large Industry Foreseen
Although flax operations at the penitentiary have been in progress only a few years, Governor Pierce and other persons who have observed closely the development of the industry, are of the opinion that it is no longer in an experimental stage and that it will some day become one of the largest resources in the entire west.

Col. W. P. Bartram, who for many years was closely identified with the flax industry in Canada, said recently that the Oregon climate was well adapted to the growing of flax and that the quality of the product produced in the Willamette valley was equal to, if not better than that grown in Canada and some parts of Ireland.

In an effort to promote the flax industry as rapidly as possible a movement has been launched here for the construction of the largest processing mill in the United States, if plans carry the plant will represent an expenditure of $650,000. Most of the capital already has been subscribed. The investors being prominent men of Salem, Eugene, Albany, Corvallis, Portland and many other cities.

2323 Acres Sown to Flax
Records in the office of the state penitentiary show that approximately 2323 acres of land in Marion, Polk and Yamhill counties were sown to flax this year. All of this flax is under contract with

OREGON SURE TO DEVELOP FASTER

National Advertising Helping Our Growth and Will Foster Greater Growth

(The Portland office of the Botford-Constantine company, general advertising agents, San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, in answer to a request of the Oregon editor, sends the following:)

National advertising is doing much to bring the state of Oregon and its resources, advantage and opportunities before the people of the United States.

The result of this will be a steady growth in population, new capital brought into the state, new and enlarged industries, a bigger and better Oregon.

While often the results of advertising are so intangible that it is difficult to accurately say that a thing has been accomplished through advertising which would not otherwise have been done, Oregon and Salem can look upon a large percentage of tourist travel through the state as the result of advertising.

Pacific coast states, Oregon included, have spent large sums of money exploiting the coast as an ideal vacation land. The railroads of the United States have also added their large resources to these campaigns. But they have gone a step farther. They have pointed out that Oregon and the Pacific Northwest is the place for homes.

Last year the State Chamber of Commerce ran a small classified advertising campaign in Canadian papers, and as a direct result of this 58 families moved to Oregon. With the advent of the tourist who comes here as a result of national advertising there comes a need for more good roads well kept up. All this development helps the growth of the state. And tourists who come here spend money which makes business better. As business as a whole is better so is the prosperity of the individual better.

But tourists and settlers who come to the state are not the only benefits Oregon obtains from national advertising. There are in Oregon firms whose products are sold in every state of the Union. Their distribution and the volume of their business has been increased many fold by their national advertising, aggressively and continuously carried out. This increase in their volume of business results in more wealth in the state, more families.

ed many fold by their national advertising, aggressively and continuously carried out. This increase in their volume of business results in more wealth in the state, more families. National advertising is broadcast through one medium or another the message you wish to place before the people of the United States. National advertising of Oregon and her industries is impressing our advantages and our manufacturers upon the consciousness of the American people. Our development within the next few years will, it is predicted, be much greater than in the same length of time in the past. And advertising, that powerful force of modern life, will have played a prominent part in that development.

the state penitentiary flax plant. Prices for the flax range from $22 a ton for the short-mowed straw to $33 a ton for the long-pulled straw. The best fiber is obtained from the long straw. Although this year has not been favorable for the production of flax in the Willamette valley, approximately 2500 tons of flax straw will be produced and turned over to the prison plant for processing.

The contracts existing between the penitentiary and growers are simple. The farmers harvest their own flax and deliver it to the prison plant. It is stocked in open sheds outside the prison walls and later goes to the retting tanks. These tanks have a capacity of approximately 100 tons of straw daily and more are being added as the production increases. During the past few weeks nine new wooden tanks having a capacity of five tons each have been added to the equipment.

Much Work Ahead of Plant.
After being treated in the retting tank for ten days the straw goes through the drying process. It is loaded into trucks, hauled out into the fields and spread out under the sun. There it is left for ten days more. Because of the weather conditions in Oregon the drying process is limited to the straw again is placed in the sheds, where it remains until sent to the straw breakers and scutchers. The plant was in operation most of last winter and enough flax is now in sight to insure work until late in the spring of 1926.

With Few Corrections

is very good, with a few corrections. The capacity of the present retting tanks is not 100 tons a day. It is about 100 tons in 10 days, or about 300 tons a month. That will not be enough for a normal crop. The capacity ought to be much increased, because the time for drying is limited to the sunny days of the spring, summer and fall. Drying by artificial heat has never yet been successful, after 6000 years of experiments. The number of scutching machines at the state plant is 25 now. There is room to double the number, which will no doubt be done. Scutching can be done only in a humid atmosphere. But the state scutching plant will be equipped, before next spring, for making the air humid by artificial means; with humidifiers.—Ed.)

THE DENNEY CHERRY POOL IS PAYING OUT
Growers Getting a Little Above Eight and a Half Cents, May Get More

(The following letter is being sent to growers who furnished Ding and Lambert cherries to their pool, by Denney & Co. There were nine cars in the pool; eight from Salem and one from McMinnville. The payments being made now to the growers is at the rate of slightly above eight and a half cents a pound for the cherries. Following is a copy of the letter:)
"We have completed the cherry pool, and we are herewith handing you statement of your account, with check to balance.
"We wish to advise you at this time, that one car was sold very low. Our records show that this car was in a very good condition when loaded, and the car arrived in New York in bad condition, which, without question, was the fault of the express company, and we are filing claim for the full amount.
"We are also filing claim on other cars that show delay, and when these collections are made it should add to your returns a substantial amount, just what, of course, we cannot say, but we will keep right after them and whatever settlement we get, we will then make a further accounting with you.

"We wish to say further to you at this time that we don't believe you realize just how much we appreciate your business and we have worked hard to please you. Whether we have done this successfully or not we don't know. This is a matter that will have to be left entirely to you, but we did our very best.
"Our office will be maintained at Salem and if there is anything further you would like to know, please take up with our Mr. Hurst."
