A group of Modern Writers was charmingly entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Perry Reigelman. Following a six o'clock picnic supper, an out of doors program was enjoyed. Adding to the pleasure of the evening was the special guest, Dr. Han Leonhartsberger, recently of Vienna, who at the request of the writers, told of existing conditions in the Austrian capital. The revival of interest in art and music and the existing conditions in the universities were described by Dr. Leonhartsberger, in a most interesting fashion.

The evening's program was opened by Albert Roy who read a story entitled "A Mighty Good Cook." Mrs. J. C. Nelson followed with two poems, "Wander" and "Certainty." Mrs. Blanche M. Jones delighted her audience with an essay, "Just a Wood," which she wrote some time ago. "Enchanted Fields," a poem, was read by Mrs. P. S. Barten and was followed by another poem, "Un-fettered," read by Miss Reniska Swart. Perry Reigelman read a poem which he wrote some time ago as a tribute to Hazel Hall. The poem which he named "Caged" received honorable mention when it was read before a meeting of the Northwest Poetry Society at Forest Grove near Forest Grove last Sunday. Mr. Reigelman also read another of his poems, "Life." Mrs. F. G. Franklin spoke briefly on the proceedings of the meeting of the Northwest poetry Society at Forest Grove. C. J. Lisle contributed two poems, "Rocky Mountains" and "Beach Pines."

Miss Grace Elizabeth Smith presided at the meeting. Additional guests included Mrs. Murray Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman McDonald. In addition to those contributing numbers the group was composed of the following writers: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clifford, F. S. Barton, J. C. Nelson, Mrs. Reigelman, Mrs. Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paulus.
