Revival services being held at the Armory by Mary Agnes Virehestain, 17, are attracting a great amount of interest. The services began Wednesday night.

crop of other growers in that section also. In all there are about 40 acres in that section, and another year will see double that amount.

The still is of 200 pounds capacity and the oil is bringing higher prices this year than ever before. The entire pool of this year was sold to Dan J. Fry of Salem for $11.05 a pound. Mr. Gilmore has been put to a lot of expense in installing the new still and has equipped the plant with all modern conveniences, which cuts down labor to a great extent.

The place is attracting a lot of attention and sightseers are there every day.

to go before the people. "I am still convinced," he declared, "that the most important thing before the city today is the water situation."

Taking up the plea that if it was necessary to leave one of the revenue measures off the ballot it should not be the appropriation for the repair of streets, Alderman Purvine took the floor declaring: "Bridges won't deteriorate but our streets will. If we don't patch them now we are going to lose the capital which we have already invested in them.

"We're up against a stone wall," was the opinion expressed by Alderman Dancy. "We must have the bridges, but we must also have the fire equipment. We will have to have the street repair also. Perhaps the people will refuse to vote the money, but I think the only thing we can do is to put the whole thing up to the people and then if they refuse to grant the money, we can sit back and say that we did our best."

"As chairman of the fire and water committee I consider it imperative to ask the city for at least one new pumper. If we ask for it and don't get it, we can at least say that we did our duty and can pass the buck right back to the people."
Explaining the need for at least one new pumper he declared that it would be placed in a new station in East Salem. Southern Pacific freight trains, he pointed out, often stand on Twelfth street for as long as ten minutes which would be precious time in case of a big fire in the eastern section of the city. If more pumpers are granted stations will be located in North and South Salem.

AUTO CRASH KILLS BOY ANOTHER SERIOUSLY INJURED; SPEED SAID CAUSE

OLYMPIA, Aug. 21—(By the Associated Press.)—Vernon King, 19, was almost instantly killed and Arthur Trot about the same age suffered a fractured pelvis bone when the automobile in which they were driving left the Pacific highway about 4 miles east of Olympia this afternoon and overturned.

Three other youthful occupants of the car received only slight injuries it was said. All are residents of Olympia. It was reported that the car was traveling at high speed.
