Two Irish Radio Plants Are being Dismantled

DUBLIN—The two great Irish wireless stations at Clifden, County Galway, and at Ballybunion, County Kerry, are being dismantled and sold in lots or broken up for scrap. Clifden, during the Irish fighting was destroyed by the irregulars, and though compensation for the damage was made dependent on its reinstatement, the owners preferred not to reconstruct, and sold it to a Sheffield firm of iron merchants. The most conspicuous feature of the plant was four steel masts, each 325 feet in height, and each with its guy ropes weighing 100 tons.

The Ballybunion station was originally erected as a possible rival of the station at Clifden and was bought over by the owners of the latter and never used. Its masts were of wood and were 525 feet high. Difficulty in disposing of it caused by the fact that there is no transport by rail. The monorail railway connecting Ballybunion with the general railway system at Listowel has been discontinued. When constructed it was supposed that its smaller demand for space for the track would lead to its general adoption throughout Europe but it found no imitators.
