Vice President Dawes has the great advantage of being right in his fight on the absurd rules of the United States senate; also in having the sympathy of practically all the people of the United States. But even so, he has a hard fight. The senate is "set" in its conservatism.

The Statesman of Thursday, in the Slogan pages, has tried to prove that Salem is an automotive center. It surely is.

Dawes does not talk well for the radio. He puts too much of his own personality into what he has to say, which makes him a great speaker for the audience that both sees and hears him, and a poor one for his air audience listening in from near and far places. And Billy Sunday is still more so. He has to be seen to be appreciated, or even well understood.

C. A. Bartell, the big hotel man of Cottage Grove, has a number of pet deer, and he is making a study of their habits and needs, with a view to breeding deer on a commercial scale, for the sale of the venison. Why not? Venison can be marketed for around 80 cents to a dollar a pound, and perhaps it can be produced at a large profit, if carried on intelligently and thriftily to say nothing of making a better quality of venison.

Judge Gary, head of the steel trust won't have to take a trip to Europe for his health. He has lost six pounds and feels fine. That's the difference a little weight sometimes makes in an indoor worker of middle age or older. "Eat less and feel better" is good advice for many. The steel trust's head took a three weeks' course of dieting in one of the trust's private hospitals.

He lived on fresh fruit, especially orange juice; fresh vegetables plainly cooked; potatoes with jackets on and spinach boiled in its own juice and the juice eaten as well as the greens; not much meat and that simply cooked with little seasoning and almost no sweets, which is hard on a man who likes pie. However dieting does not mean starving one's self. Most persons may avoid over eating without knowing much about dieting. Quit just before you have enough and get that full feeling.

CAPTAIN DOLLAR GOOD CAPPY RICKS

He is 82 and Still Literally Going Strong, Clear Around the World

The Portland Oregonian of a couple of days ago contained this editorial paragraph: "Captain Dollar, bringing one of his own ships safely off a reef, is living up to the best traditions of Cappy Ricks."

(The reader will have the explanation of the above from the following very interesting news article from the New York Commercial of August 29:)
Captain Robert Dollar, 82 years of age and operator of a big fleet of American merchant craft, came back to New York, from his sixth trip around the world, on the Dollar liner President Garfield, firmly convinced that the pioneer service around the world which he established more than a year ago, is here to stay. Despite his age, Captain Dollar is the most active executive in the steamship company which he heads. With the enthusiasm and spirit of a newly appointed salesman, he personally interviews shippers abroad, seeking trade for his ships. On the voyage around the globe which he is making with Mrs. Dollar, he interviewed 237 foreign merchants.

Crusade Would Restore Religion in Home Life
