

NEWSPAPERS' VALUE TOLD TO ATTORNEYS

Meeting Held in Detroit Acquaints Bar Association With Advantages

DETROIT—Closely related between bar associations of the country and the press were urged by Julius Henry Cohen of New York in his address as chairman, opening the conference of bar association delegates today.

The progress that has been made in the formulation of ethical standards, in the improved machinery and administration of the law, in the raising of standards for admission to the bar, could never have been brought about except through the cooperation of the press," said Mr. Cohen. "But the press is not organized as is the profession of medicine, or even as ours is, though as we have pointed out, our own organization is still in the making. Newspaper publishers are men of business. Newspaper editors are beginning to evolve just now a form of journalistic activity. The serious attempt made last year to bring about a formal relationship between the two professions was unsuccessful. The two professions are not yet properly organized for formal cooperation. There must be cooperation between the press and the bar, but for some time to come it will be cooperation of a different kind."

Mr. Cohen referred to a committee report to be made which would outline a plan of cooperation between the two professions by closer relationship between the organized bar in each state and the newspapers of that state.

"What the bar is doing in the improvement of machinery for the administration of justice, for the modernization of legal institutions, for the maintenance of high character qualifications for admission to the bar, and for the disciplining of those who offend, are all matters about which state bar organizations will find the press of its state only too willing to inform the public and to aid in the formation of supporting public opinion," the speaker continued.

"The modern newspaper has so many fields to cover, the changes taking place from day to day are so kaleidoscopic, that no newspaper, no matter how well informed or how well organized, can keep abreast of the activities of the bar associations of the country unless those activities are brought to its attention. Every state bar association should have a committee whose business it is to see that the press of its state is kept fully informed of associational activities."

The suggestion recently made by Don C. Seitz of the New York World, that in every bar association there be created a bureau of correct information, is a valuable one. Such a bureau could furnish the press with correct information regarding pending cases, the issues involved and decisions rendered. Conducted by a bar association and speaking in its name, there would be no danger of its improper use. The newspaper could rely upon receiving disinterested information, uncolored by desire to favor one side or another, and free from suspicion of self-exploitation or advertisement. The existence of such a bureau would in itself prevent error from occurring in the first instance, provide for its correction if it did occur, and avoid its repetition.

"The modern newspaper is keen for news—all news. There is much news, much interesting news in litigated cases, more than the public is aware of. But if the lawyer brings his case to the attention of the press, he is open to the charge of self-exploitation. If, however, his case be one of real interest or moment, his bar association can, through its own bureau, bring it to the attention of the local press. The properties can be observed, yet the public is informed."

Mr. Cohen reviewed the progress made by the legal profession, its relations with the public, the efforts to create and maintain standards of legal education and rules for admission to the bar that will protect the public from incompetent legal advisers.

BETTER ROAD AD IS WRITTEN BY SORLIE

Governor of North Dakota Takes Hand in Boosting His Own State

BISMARCK, N. D.—Governor A. G. Sorlie, who was a salesman before he organized a business of his own and which he devoted to the executive chair, has put some of his advertising practices into state use.

In the state highway bulletin, which hopes to aid in developing popular support for a statewide better roads campaign, a whole page is devoted to what is labelled "An ad by the Governor." Another title says "A. G. writes to the boys."

The advertisement is a letter which the governor has sent to every employee of the state in which he said in part:

"We are in the public service business—you and I—let's do our part to put our products on the market and merchandise our product wheat. We have an exclusive wheat that is raised only here. 'The Best of the West.' It makes the best flour in the world."

"The people of North Dakota have created a state laboratory called the Mill and Elevator. It is a research bureau that makes tests on a large scale and therefore must be conducted as a commercial enterprise in order to fully function. For the economic welfare of the agricultural sections it is essential that the laboratory succeed."

"You and I are state employees who get our living from the same people who have provided this laboratory and who must defray the costs of these researches not met by its commercial earnings."

"Dakota Main, the product of our state laboratory, is the best flour from the best wheat. If North Dakota is to prosper, then Dakotans must use its products first and all the time. As state employees, we owe it greater loyalty than the average citizen."

The state mill and elevator to which the governor refers was one of the enterprises into which the state plunged following the rise to political power of the Non-partisan league. It has failed to show profit to date but one of the governor's campaign promises was that he would put the $3,000,000 concern on its feet and make it pay. He is the manager of the institution, its direction having been placed in his hands by the last legislature. Gov. Sorlie was elected as a Nonpartisan.

DALLAS ROUTE IS CHOSEN FOR TEST

Carrier Allowed Commission on Deliveries Under Present Experiment

DALLAS, Ore., Sept. 5.—(Special.)—Dallas rural route 1 has been selected as one of 50 in the United States by the postmaster general for an experiment to develop and encourage the transportation of food products directly from producers to consumers and vendors, according to notification received by Postmaster Coad. It is the only route in Oregon designated for the experiment.

The experiment has not been in progress a sufficient length of time to determine a whether it will make any material increase in the parcel post business originating on the route or not. The experiment apparently is designed to determine whether there is sufficient demand among farmers to market their food products direct to consumers to warrant extending the provision to the entire rural carrier system of the country.

The experiment includes all manner of food stuffs originating on the rural route for delivery to the patrons on the route or in the city or town at the regular local rate of five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional two pounds. Packages originating in the city or town for delivery on the route are not included.

P. H. Morrison, mail carrier on the route, will be allowed 50 per cent of the postage on the food products mailed directly on the route and collected and delivered by him, in addition to his regular American film production. "Every-one for himself, but all for Europe." is the motto he recommends. Dr. Schacht says American film producers persistently outbid European rivals and buy or erect agencies or theatres and have managed to acquire a controlling influence in many of the largest foreign companies. It is high time, he urges, for European producers of all countries to join forces in the matter of their productivity, rather than the marketing of their products.

Pennsylvanian Who Was Prominent in Islands, Dies

BAGUIO, P. I.—George F. Haight, one of the picturesque figures of the Philippines, died recently in the military hospital at Camp John Hay. A native of Pennsylvania, Haight came to the Philippines in 1899 as a soldier in a volunteer regiment and served during the insurrection.

Taken ill after his discharge from the army he believed he was suffering from tuberculosis with little chance of recovery. He went to Mount Pawin, 8,000 feet above sea level, where he eventually regained his health and determined to spend the rest of his life in the mountains.

Haight established a rest house, which became known throughout the islands. It was visited by many persons, notwithstanding it required a 20-mile ride on horseback to get there. He leaves a widow and three sons.
