Smith weather in New York—
And La Follette winds blew in Wisconsin.

Tomorrow's Statesman in its Slogan pages will tell of Salem's wood working plants. Doing pretty well; but should have more.

Eugene is thinking seriously of taking up the linen mill proposition that has fallen down at Vancouver, Wash. Eugene has a wonderfully live bunch of boosters, and they may get into the flax and linen game with a jump.

The man just out of prison who wants to tell what he knows about running prisons should not be taken seriously, as a general rule. The man who has learned his lessons in prison generally keeps his mouth judiciously shut.

There are rumors of one of the great packing concerns getting hold of the idle dehydration plant in Salem. It would be a fine thing to have that plant in operation; preferably in the line for which it was built.

How the State Helps the Farmer—How do you wear your hat? Your hat may provide the finishing touch in a costume to make its wearer distinguished or dowdy, individual or common, and, particularly, old or young. A lot lies in the way one wears it. The hat should be placed firmly on the head, usually with a slight slant to one side to take away the mathematical stiffness of the absolutely horizontal lines. A hair arrangement showing a little on the forehead and over the ears gives a softness that is desirable and becoming. Never should the hat be perched on top of the hair; in these days of no hatpins hats being held well down on the head. An extreme in the other direction is almost as bad, for a hat pulled viciously over the eyes gives a determined aspect that is seldom attractive. A looking-glass and a hand-mirror will help in the placing of one's hat to the best advantage and in achieving its greatest becomingness.—Bulletin of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.
