OWN YOUR OWN HOME!

The instinct for a home is as natural in humanity as the instinct to mate. A young couple beginning family life in their own home, secure at once a back ground an anchorage.

Children brought up in their own home have the supreme advantage of a domestic sentiment that is one of the most valuable of spiritual possessions.

without their own house, there is an inescapable sense of being transients, of having no firm foundation for family life.

prehending glances, and I bent over her with my hand upon her houlder.

"You are all worn out, Mother." I said, tenderly, "I'll close the window in my room and switch on the electric heater until it's so down and have Katle make get chilled, and then you must lie could do with a couple of cups down in there and go to sleep. Katherine and I will take turns watching Junior."

"It Is My Punishment."

She shook her head fit ful dissent. Katherine. her closely, gave me a\si; mificant nod and slipped out of the room. I knew that she would at and to the preparation of my room for Mother Graham and was not surprised when she returned with a tiny glass containing a colorless

Katherine put the glass into To hand and I held it to my mother, in-law's lips. She drank it obed ently, but her tears did not cease. and presently she caught hold of my dress, murmuring distracted-

"It is my punishment. If be had died I would have been to blame."

"What nonsense is this, Motier?" I said with the steraness which I knew was the only weapon to use in the face of her bysteria. "Nobody is to blame, and he's all right. Come and lie down until my room is warm. I helped her to her feet, and she leaned against me heavily. Then to my surprise-for my motherin-law is never demonstrative, except to her beloved "Richard Second"-she put her shaking old arms around me and clung to me wildly.

A Sensible Suggestion-

"You don't know," she said. "I tried to make myself beliefe everybody else was to blame, but his running out and getting lost this afternoon was nobody's fault but my own. He was with me all the time, bless his haby heart"-she choked again-"and I was so takthat I didn't miss him until too late to stop him. And-that isn't all."

She stopped, took a deep breath, and straightened he self in my arms, putting her hands on my shoulders.

"I-haven't made things as eavy for you about the child as I might, Margaret," she said, "and I're She, Mother Graham and I were stuck to my own way of taking grazing down at Junior, sleeping care of him when I knew you had peacefully for the first time since altogether different ideas. And the horrible croup spasms had then tonight it wasn't enough for seized him. palms, as is always his want when when I had noticed the same thing my arms, and I shivered involuntarily as I glimped the possibili-ties of serious illness following such a chilling. But I held my mother-in-law closer, and spoke. with cheery decision.

"You are exaggerating things. Mother. Any one of us might knows better than I bow hard it is to keep him rovered. I don't blame you in the least, and you must stop blaming yourself. "Pardon me," said Katherine erisply, but in the whispered unof the night," she said, and then dertone we were all using, "but surely you know, Mother Graham. that this attack of croup might have come upon him if he hadn't been subject to exposure at all. But he needs rest and quiet. The sooner we all get settled down the better for him, and he needs all the air there is. If you'll just stay here until the other room gets warmed for you. Madge and I will thoroughly warm, so you won't each of us a cub of coffee. I very nicely.
