

MYSTERY PLAY IS FEATURE AT HELLIG

"The Unholy Three" Declared to Be Tod Browning's Best Thriller

"The Unholy Three," a crook drama directed by Tod Browning for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and now being featured at the Hellig theater, can aptly be described as one of the best pictures of this class the screen has ever known.

Browning has succeeded in injecting a large amount of heart interest into the film and has left out the old bromide situations about mortgages, snow storms and villains who claim the beautiful young heroine in lieu of certain amounts of money owed by poor parents.

He has filmed the adventures of a trio of museum freaks who unite as a criminal band called "The Unholy Three." There is a fourth member but she becomes the heroine in the early part of the picture and fades out in the arms of an innocent lover who has been framed by her erstwhile friends.

The picture is not lacking in comedy and it is interpreted by an all-star cast that has used every opportunity to a good advantage.

The cast includes Lon Chaney, Mae Busch, Matt Moore, Victor McLaglen, Harry Earles and Mathew Betz, as well as a number of lesser names.

Great credit should be given the director for the masterful way in which this production has been made. Yet it must be conceded he started with an out-of-the-ordinary story, Tod Robbin's popular mystery novel, and an extremely good continuity which is the work of the seasoned Waldemar Young.

Mae Busch proves in this drama that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer made a real find when they placed her under contract to play heroine roles for the next few years. Lon Chaney is an outstanding success of the production, and Matt Moore is extremely good as the lover.

Both Victor McLaglen, who is a celebrated English actor, and Harry Earles, a 35-pound midget, deserve commendation for their forceful interpretations.

"The Unholy Three" is very likely to live in the minds of picture fans as one of the greatest crook dramas of the age.

Popular Actors in New Action Story

"Tainted Money" a new Perfection Picture will be at the Bligh Theatre today. It will feature William Fairbanks and Eva Novak supported by Carl Stockdale, Bruce Gordon. The picture was directed by Henry McCrae and is a wow in the opinion of a previewer. Action galore such as a car running off a steep cliff, runaway horses, and a whole side of a mountain blown up in order to block the construction of a road. A thrill fight on the edge of a cliff hold brings you out of your seat. A clean love story which runs through rounds out an excellent picture.

William Fairbanks does some of the best work in his career in this picture. The producers of this picture have Mr. Fairbanks under contract for a long period and they may well be congratulated. Stunts are meat for him though it must be said that in this picture none of the story is sacrificed for the stunt as too often happens.

Upon the recommendation of Miss Covington, city librarian, the school board indorsed the appointment of Constance Clark as children's librarian.

A request was brought before the board for a lock on the room containing the lockers used by the athletes. The men have complained that at the present time there is no way to lock up the room, and several of them have reported losses in money and belongings from the lockers. The request was referred to the building committee.

It was revealed at the meeting that it is up to the teachers of the various schools to give the examination required by the new state law. Cases of doubt are to be referred to Dr. Ross, the school physician.
