OWN YOUR OWN HOME!
The instinct for a home is as natural in humanity as the instinct to mate. A young couple beginning family life in their own home, secure at once a back ground, an anchorage.
Children brought up in their own home have the supreme advantage of a domestic sentiment that is one of the most valuable of spiritual possessions.
Without their own house, there is an inescapable sense of being transients, of having no firm foundation for family life.
We have several new bungalows, 4 rooms and breakfast nook, we will sell, just like rent.

LEADER DISAPPROVES OF FATAL FLIGHT, SAID

that Commander Lansdowne was charged with complete responsibility for the ship at all times. The main purpose of this line of examination is to fix where blame for the loss of the ship, if any there be, is to lie.

The confidential documents which Captain Steele laid before before the court disclosed an almost ever-recurring difference of opinion between the bureau of operations and Commander Lansdowne regarding the western flight in which the great ship came to her end.

As early as last June Commander Lansdowne outlined in a letter the difficulties attending a western flight and suggesting landing facilities at several places. This letter was forwarded to Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of operations, who replied:

"It is not the policy of the department to erect mooring masts at various points selected for refueling on a cruise of this nature. If the limitations and apprehensions outlined in this letter are sound, it would appear that our airships are of little military or commercial value and that the great cost of their upkeep and repair would not be warranted. However, the chief of naval operations is not ready to concur in these opinions and believes that these ships can be operated safely with the exercise of care and judgment within the discretion of the commanding officer and within reasonable limit of time."

The first proposal was that the flight be made in July but the department deferred to the opinion of Commander Lansdowne that the voyage should be postponed until September when the period of violent thunderstorms over the middlewest would be ended.

The idea of the Shenandoah visiting the state fairs was advanced in July and it was then that Commander Lansdowne was directed to make a new itinerary for the voyage westward so as to include these fairs during the first and second weeks in September.

AIR MAIL PROGRAM REVIEWED BY BOARD

cipalities cooperate by providing local air ports.

"I believe that by this minimum extension of governmental activities," he said, "we can secure commercial aviation in the United States without subsidy. It seems to me certain that we can not have successful development of commercial aviation until some government service provides for it."

He believed aviation would necessarily grow route by route and that the bureau he proposed would at the outset "need perhaps $400,000 a year and that the subsequent expansion would depend upon the growth of the industry."

Describing how the federal government lights and marks channels for water navigation, constantly issues advice to navigators, provides for safety inspection of water craft and licenses navigators, Mr. Hoover said the cost of providing a parallel service to aviation "would not be an extravagant sum."

"Much of the work," he continued, "of such service can be undertaken by the extension of existing bureaus of the department of commerce which have already technical personnel and established organizations."

The secretary reviewed the problems confronting development of commercial aviation in Europe and he believed "that the establishment of regular air service in the United States is much nearer self-supporting practibility than in Europe."

He presented these recommendations:

"First, the establishment of an aviation bureau.

"Second, we should contract out the carriage of the mails.

"Third, the establishment of airports at the important municipalities."
