

COLLEGE DISPLAY SHOWS RESOURCES

"Oregon in Miniature" is Best Description of Exhibit From Corvallis

"Oregon in miniature," is the tabloid expression of interested visitors after inspection of the state fair exhibits. The states variety and richness of resources are shown in the many county and state department displays, among them those of the state college and experiment station.

Recovery of cedar oils from sawdust and myrtle oil from leaves and wood are shown to be possible on a profitable commercial scale. In small plants the oils are being distilled and refined. The sawdust runs about 1.6 per cent cedar oil, and from a single mill, that of the Port Orford Lumber company of Marshfield, 1,800,000 pounds of sawdust are going to waste annually. This means that almost 40,000,000 pounds of valuable oil may be recovered. Already a small plant there has recovered 7000 pounds of oil, returns from which have paid expenses even on the semi-experimental scale. Most of the oil has been sold to German concerns.

Oregon forest gifts are seen on native Christmas trees, loaded with useful and ornamental wood products and bright with twinkling electric lights. Mines, both placer and free and base ores, are busy actually sifting gold and other metals from Oregon mines. A cement plant shows how to pick and mix materials and cure them for the stoutest and most lasting cement for use on roads and in construction. Safeguarding the town and the farm home against "germy" milk and water adds to a feeling of safety. And handling the farm to get the profits is shown in landscape, picture and materials.

Girls' and boys' club work has a leading part on the state exhibit and impresses the visitor from Oregon and out of the state as well with a feeling of security for the future. Fair and state officers have excellent reasons for gratification with the character and conduct of the state fair.

SENTIMENT IS NEEDED PUBLIC OPINION IS HELD AID TO PROHIBITION

"Prohibition enforcement is fixed not by the number of arrests made, but by the molding of public sentiment," W. S. Levens, state prohibition commissioner, declared Wednesday in an address before the Salem Rotarians at their weekly luncheon. As proof that public sentiment is coming to favor prohibition, Mr. Levens said: "There was less intoxication and rowdiness at the Pendleton roundup this year than in any large crowd I have ever seen." "The world is getting better, not worse," is Mr. Levens' opinion, and he explains the apparent crime wave by the fact that many things are called crimes now that in former days were not even thought about. He declared now more than ever patriotism and love of law and order is being taught in the public schools.

In soliciting the aid of the Rotarians in molding public sentiment to favor prohibition, Mr. Levens asserted that "it is not a question of being wet or dry, but of being able to frame our own laws and to enforce them."

Photoplay At the Heilig Depicts Virile Americanism on the Screen

The old order changes, in motion pictures as it does in everything else, yielding place to new. For a period one type of picture holds the place of honor on the silver screen. Then comes another and with its advent the previous mode fast fades into the mists of yesterday.

No one knows this fact better than Emory Johnson, the noted young producer-director of such famous F. B. O. successes as "The Third Alarm," "In the Name of the Law," and "The Mail Man." And he considers that this state of affairs is good; a healthy condition in which to find any industry.

"When the process of crystallization sets in, you can count any business on the down grade," said Mr. Johnson recently in an interview given out in Hollywood. "I do not mean a mere temporary solidification. I mean that when an industry has ceased to change it has ceased to progress. No body, and nothing, can afford to stand still, or merely to copy the prevailing type.

"We have just passed through a period of costume pictures with their inevitable panoply and fanfare; the gold lace, the powdered wigs, the courtesans—all the atmosphere which was typical of continental Europe of many years ago.

Many of them were magnificently done, but I think it is appropriate that we should turn from subjects which are largely un-American and certainly do not deal with life as we find it today, to something which is distinctly patriotic and up-to-date."

Mr. Johnson has just finished "The Spirit of the U. S. A.," his portrayal of the effect of a world war upon rural life. The picture is now playing at the Heilig theater.

No photoplay could better illustrate modernity and the motivating processes behind life in the United States today than this epic which is so aptly named.

That Director Johnson has blazed a way to a new vogue in pictures which will be followed by many of the leading producers, there is little doubt. And "The Spirit of the U. S. A." is a worthy trail-blazer.

WILL EXAMINE STUDENTS DR. C. A. DOWNS IS NEW WILLAMETTE PHYSICIAN

Dr. C. A. Downs, who was recently appointed to serve as physician for Willamette university, and an assistant will make a medical examination of every student taking physical education. The examination is given in conjunction with the physical education department of the university of which Coach Guy L. Rathbun is the head.

After the medical examinations have been made, Rathbun and Miss Gabriel, physical instructor of women, will make a physical examination of all those taking physical education.

This is the first time that the regular services of a physician have been available to the students of the university free of charge.

PLAN LARGE ORCHARD SITE FOR CHERRY HOLDINGS NOT YET SELECTED

What promises to be the largest cherry orchard in the Willamette Valley is fast taking shape and the 200 acre tract will be located in the Macley district on the Harry Taylor place. George Vick and O. E. Brooks, who are heading the movement, are very enthusiastic over the proposition. Already a good many have shown their willingness to buy stock in the orchards. L. T. Reynolds, who was one of the first to actually take stock in the company, suggested the name of Lambert Orchards as the future name of the farm, and the other stockholders feel that since all the orchard will be of the Lambert variety, the name will be exceptionally appropriate.

The champion kicker is one who sighs for the good old hard times when it wasn't hard to find parking space.

MOTOR SHOW GIRLS WILL MEET FRIDAY

Miss Hankinson, Director, Arranges Session At Vick Brothers Garage

A meeting of all girls and women who are driving cars in the Motor Style Show parade and review will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock in Vick Bros. display room, according to Miss Alice Hankinson, director in charge of the show. It is very important that all drivers be present at this meeting as complete instructions will be given out at this time.

Among the many beautiful cars which will be seen in the review will be the new Locomobile eight, entered by the McDonald Automobile company. Both the sedan and open sport model will be entered. They are in two colors of olive, ripe and green. The new Locomobile is the first to be shown in Salem, is attracting considerable attention each day at the fair. Another car which will vie for honors is the beautiful two-tone sage green Marmon brougham, also on display at the fair this week.

All automobiles entered in the Motor Style Show will meet on South Commercial street, in front of the Marion hotel, at 11:30 Saturday morning to be lined up according to classification. Windshield stickers will be furnished all dealers for their cars, this making the car an official entry and admitting all occupants free to the grandstand for the afternoon.

Judges for the show are Mrs. Rose Babcock, Mayor John B. Giesy and A. H. Lea, former secretary of the fair board.

Cars which will be seen at the show include Dillys-Knight, Oakland and Overland cars entered by Vick Bros., Salem; Chevrolet cars, entered by the Newton-Chevrolet company; Diana, Moon and Star cars entered by the Salem Automobile company and Condit & Conser; Franklin and Studebaker, entered by the Marlow Auto company; Hupmobile and Nash, entered by Kirkwood Motor company; Chrysler cars, entered by Gingrich Motor company and Chase Garfield company of Portland Jewett and Paige, by Trumm Motor company; Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Rickenbacker cars, entered by the Pettyjohn Motor company; Cleveland, Marmon and the new Locomobile automobile entered by the McDonald Motor company; Gardner cars, entered by Burdett-Albee company; and Auburn cars by Lawson Motor company; Jordan, by Jordan Motor company.

Never blame a "spoiled" child. You would act that way, also if the method so invariably paid dividends.

STATEMENT RESCINDED CHICAGO, Sept. 30

(By The Associated Press)—Colonel A. A. Sprague, treasurer of General Leonard Wood's 1920 presidential campaign, today testified that statements he had made before the senate committee which investigated campaign expenditures of presidential aspirants in 1920, were not correct in all details.

Millions have been spent by Eastern scientists in trying to approximate the non-detonating quality which is inherently Union.

Because of this quality, motorists have sought the Union Oil sign since the time of the first service stations.
