Branch Meeting Next Week

The 33rd annual session of the Columbia River branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church is to be held in Salem, covering the four days, October 8 to 11, inclusive. The meetings will be held at First church, with all the other Methodist churches assisting.

The conference brings about 200 delegates from Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, consecrated women who are devoting their lives to carrying the gospel to others in foreign lands. The whole advancement of woman-kind's standing in society is the fruit of the Gospel enlightenment and equality, and the grateful, devoted women of today are prepared to carry the same cheering message to the still unenlightened world where women need its help so terribly.

Seven former missionaries to foreign fields are to be present, to tell at first hand of the foreign needs. One is Miss Ava Milam, now dean of women at OAC, a former missionary with a wonderful record. Another is Miss Ruth Warner, a graduate of Willamette university of recent years. Still another is Miss Elizabeth Carlyle, a graduate of Pacific university at Forest Grove. Four others are Anna Louise Godfrey, Florence A. Sayles, Ethel Butts and Maude Cone. Most of these missionaries are home on furlough, or retired for one reason or another.

The first executive session is to be held at 1:15 Thursday afternoon, though an appropriations committee meeting is to be held at 10:30 and a general prayer meeting at 11 o'clock. Three regular programs are to be held each of the three week days—morning, afternoon and evening—with capable speakers to present the gospel needs and progress. On Saturday afternoon the visitors are to be given a tour of Salem and its surroundings. Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon the young people and children of the Salem churches are to present attractive pantomime and dramatic programs showing the missionary work in foreign fields.

Dr. Norman F. Coleman, president of Reed college, Portland, is to speak on Friday evening, on "The Missionary Situation in the Orient." Dr. Carl Greg Doney, president of Willamette university, is to speak Thursday night, following the informal reception at 7:40. Dr. Fred C. Taylor, pastor of First church, is to preach the annual sermon Sunday at 11 a. m. Other Salem pastors will assist, and some of the visiting delegates are rated as thrilling speakers, and whose lives are touched by a great mission.

Miss Florence Hooper, national treasurer from Baltimore, will be present and give the address on Sunday evening, and will also be presented to the conference on Thursday afternoon. She is a speaker of renown.

The public will be welcome at all sessions. A wealth of social information that has a profound bearing on business, politics, peace and war, will be offered in the inside stories that will be told of the relations of America to the partly-closed Orient, and a real treat is promised all who attend.

Salem homes will be opened to entertain the visiting guests. Mrs. M. B. Paroungian is in general charge of the local arrangements, with all the Methodist churches of Salem as hostesses.

Art Class Meets

Prof. N. B. Zane conducted a stimulating class in color harmony and design on Thursday evening in the auditorium of the public library with 32 members, out of a larger number that have enrolled present for the meeting.

Professor Zane gave the fundamental basis of all color through the elements as far as physics and physiology are concerned. Afterward he distinguished carefully between physical color blindness and psychical color blindness, the former which cannot be prevented, and the latter which is only a numbness. He further dealt with the source of pigments in nature, and showed the color wheel which should be learned like the A. B. C's. The first hour of the course will be devoted exclusively to the study of color harmony, not as colored lights, but through pigments.

The second hour, on practical design, was freely illustrated with slides. A great deal of attention was paid to Rookwood pottery and the designs and artistic ideals it embodies. At the next meeting of the class members will bring drawing paper and pencil. Registration will close next Thursday. Up to that time those desiring to join this class should register with Miss Vivian Hargrove or Dr. Mary C. Rowland.

D. A. R. To Meet

An interesting program is in store today for the members of Chemeketa chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when they meet at the home of Mrs. Russell Catlin, corner of Chemeketa and Thirteenth streets. Congressman W. C. Hawley will give a talk on "Some Phases of International Relations" as the feature of the afternoon. The Daughters feel themselves very fortunate in securing the services of Congressman Hawley.

The paper which it was announced Mrs. Ellen Fisher would give has been postponed until later in the year.

Church Supper

Members of the women's missionary society of the First Congregational church will give a supper for their husbands on Thursday evening, Oct. 8, at the church parlors at Center and Liberty streets.

Young People To Take Part

A delightful feature of the foreign missionary conference, to be held in Salem beginning October 8, will be the part taken by the young people and children. Mrs. Hugh Cummings will have charge on Saturday evening at 5:30. The informal reception will be featured by stunts, prizes, pantomime and addresses, followed by a banquet at which Miss Mary Findley, director of religious education, will be toastmistress.

On Sunday at 2 p. m. children under the age of 14 years, from all the churches, will have a section reserved for them. The two organizations of smaller children will march in with uniform insignias. Mrs. C. W. Aldrich will preside and Mrs. A. A. Lee will have charge of a pageant, "Lightbearer," presented by 30 children, with Mrs. W. B. Mintier as Liberty.

Film To Show At Church

One of the most interesting religious films available has been secured by Rev. Charles E. Ward, pastor of the First Congregational church, for Sunday evening, Oct. 4. "The Stream of Life" it is by name, and a Plymouth Film corporation. The general theme of the picture is the consolation of faith.

Notable press reports have been released concerning this master life drama. For instance, Bishop William F. Anderson of Cincinnati, Ohio, says of "The Stream of Life" that "it has a high moral purpose and a powerful appeal." From Jersey City a pastor writes that the audience which heard it there "left the auditorium spell-bound."

An interesting synopsis of the story as it will be shown is, in part, as follows:

Born to the simple life of a country farm, Philip Maynard is fortunate in having a father and mother who bring him up with a proper sense of his duty to others and a love and reverence for truth and religion. He is happy in the little district school, romping with the other children at their play; happier alone on a shady bank with his line dangling in a quiet pool, and happiest of all when, through summer leaves, the sunlight falls in a softened radiance upon him and his boyhood sweetheart.

Life's tiny rill swells into a volume of the meadow brook. And then, at the very point where brook and river meet, we find him standing by the furrow, his elbow resting on the handle of the plow, beholding in a vision the great city, with its lure of fame and fortune.

Philip leaves the farm. He carries with him the paternal blessing, the benediction of the pastor of the dear old country church and a leather-bound volume of the Holy Writ, lovingly inscribed, "To Philip from his Mother."

In the city he searches vainly for the kind of a position he would like and in his desperation is glad enough to obtain a job as a boy of all work. From the start his rise is rapid because he sets his whole heart in the task before him. The stream of life flows on. Success is his, but he little dreams of the price he has paid for it. Rich, happily married, courted by society, he drifts from his spiritual moorings. Doubt merges into unbelief.

The remainder of the story will be told to those who will doubtless fill the church to capacity tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Smith Is Honored

Mrs. U. G. Smith of Gresham, who is superintendent of the art department this year at the state fair was complimented with a delightful 10-cover luncheon yesterday noon at The Spa. Golden marigolds gave a decorative note on the table.

Covers at the luncheon were placed for Mrs. U. G. Smith, Mrs. C. P. Bishop, Mrs. W. E. Kirk, Mrs. F. G. Franklin, Mrs. C. A. Kells, Dr. Mary C. Rowland, Mrs. Robert C. Paulus, Miss Grace Elisabeth Smith, Miss Rosalia Keber and Miss Audred Bunch.

VETERAN REPORTER DIES

"SQUIRE" HUBBELL, 82, PASSES AWAY FROM ILLNESS

TACOMA, Oct. 2.—(By The Associated Press)—Philo G. Hubbell, 82-year-old veteran newspaperman of Tacoma, died at his home here this afternoon after an illness of more than a month. Not quite a year ago, after many years of splendid health "Squire" Hubbell suffered a breakdown. Several times he was confined to his home for protracted periods but each time returned to his desk at the News-Tribune where he continued his duties as a reporter. He was a resident of Tacoma 24 years, coming here from Wilson, Minn.

Bored "Heir" to French Crown Seeks Adventure in Africa

Bored with his long exile, imposed on him because he is the legitimate claimant of the French crown, Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans, is preparing to leave London for Africa where he will attempt to bolster up his fortune by finding the romantic "Valley of Ivory," where elephants are supposed to go to die.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE FAIR

Tex A. Schubach, reptile expert of California, is attracting considerable attention with his snake exhibit near the automobile pavilion. He seeks to educate the public concerning the nature of snakes and reptiles. Protection of harmless types which destroy harmful insects is urged. Several poisonous specimens are on display, but these are carefully handled and away from the audience. One of the "pets" of the display is a gila monster.

Exhibits by various state institutions are excellent this year and are the center of attraction in the pavilions. The deaf school, under the direction of John Carpenter, head of the manual training department for several years, has a fine display of furniture, while toys of various kinds are shown. Both the domestic science and printing departments have extensive displays. O. L. McIntyre is superintendent of the institution. Dresses designed by blind girls are a feature of the state blind school booth, in charge of Superintendent and Mrs. J. W. Howard. The boys' training school has much fine work turned out, under the direction of W. W. Craig, head of the manual training department. Mrs. L. E. Hill is head of the tailoring department and Mrs. Hazelwood of the shoe department, both of which have fine displays. Needlework articles are featured by the girls' industrial school, with Mrs. C. J. Bright in charge, assisted by girls from the school. The temple minded school has a display of arts and crafts under the direction of Mrs. L. D. Idleman. The state hospital has a large assortment of baskets this year.

Supervised by Mrs. Raleigh St. James of Portland, the Oregon Parent-Teacher association has been holding a successful kindergarten in the east wing of the educational building this week. An average of 25 pupils a day has been maintained during the week.

Headquarters have been maintained during the week by members of Chemeketa chapter, D. A. R. in the Educational building. Mrs. Seymour Jones, state regent, has spent considerable time in the booth, assisted by local members. Nineteen chapters through the state have been registered through Cleary horse, third, and Mrs. Stanley C. E. Smith's Daisy Deane, fourth.

In the gentlemen's three-gaited saddle horse event, Aristocrat, of the McCleave stables, placed first; Armament, owned by Mrs. Stanley C. E. Smith, second; a second McCleave horse, Van Buren, third; and Mrs. E. D. McElhinney's Black Diamond, fourth.

Lack of competition in last night's show at stadium.

James Dryden's "Lottie Lou" receives light harness roadster championship.

Grafton broad jump feature of the evening.

Final award in the driving competition to be announced tonight.

MISSING BOY SOUGHT

HIGH SCHOOL BOY DISAPPEARS THURSDAY

Evan Hines, 16 year old boy who is registered at the Salem high school, has not been heard from since Thursday morning, when he started as usual to the high school. He did not report at school all day, and has not returned to his home with his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ayres, who live three miles east of Salem.

was very fond of his home and his studies, and was unusually well behaved, she says she cannot account for his disappearance. If it feared that he has been the victim of either hazing or kidnapping, and any one hearing of his whereabouts is urged to notify the police.

NEW LAMP BURNS

94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, V. M. Johnson, 161 North Union Ave., Portland, Ore., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

J. C. Nelson, principal of the high school, and George Hugg, city superintendent of schools, declared that to their knowledge there has been no hazing this year.
