Early in 1924 the directors of the Chamber of Commerce figured it would be good business for the organization to own sufficient flags for street decorations.

In 1924, when the Seattle firm came to Salem to ask another $315 from merchants in the business district, no contract was made. Merchants were not asked to contribute a dollar towards any street flag decorations. The chamber pays for the placing and taking down of the flags.

Troxell will give his great lecture on demon possession as he had seen it in the center of China. Some of his accounts are very graphic, indeed. He shows very plainly that everything that is miraculous is not divine. The name of his subject is "Chained." The church is located down town at the corner of Center and Liberty streets.
