SALEM IS MOVED BY OREGON FUND

Hundreds Move Into District Declares T. M. Hicks in Portland Letter

Hundreds of families have settled in the Salem district during the past year as a result of the Oregon development campaign, according to a letter from T. M. Hicks, president of the Salem chamber of commerce endorsing the development campaign.

"We are surely interested in Portland's effort to work for the general good of the state," declared Mr. Hicks. "Our records show that we have gained hundreds of families in and near Salem the past year, and we give credit to Portland and the other Oregon development fund for our rapid growth, especially in the fruit districts surrounding the city."

"More people are buying farms, more tourists have stopped in Salem than any year past, our building permits this year will break all past records, and we feel that the funds expended by the Oregon development fund has done much towards this very satisfactory business conditions."
