

INDIANS TO PLAY ALBANY COLLEGE

Chemawa Team Annexes Four Victories This Year Under Coach Downie

The Chemawa Indian school football team, embued with the spirit of victory from four successive games this season, will meet the Albany college eleven Friday, October 23. A big celebration was held Wednesday night following the defeat of the Salem high school aggregation.

Reginald Downie, coach of the Indians, has developed a formidable crew this year and is deserving of much credit for his work. George Bent, athletic director of the school, has given what assistance he has been able to in helping develop a strong football team this year.

Thompson, who received a broken finger early in the Salem high game, will be in the line-up against the Albany eleven while Solomon Fleurish, who was going strong against Salem, is reported to have developed even greater speed. At the time of the game here Wednesday he had been out in uniform but a few days.

Chemawa has met and conquered four teams so far this season. Victories were obtained over the Commerce and Benson Tech high schools of Portland; The Dalles high and Salem high schools.

French West Indies May Come to U. S. as War Loan Payment

The French West Indies may be offered to the United States as part payment of France's war borrowings, it is reported from Paris, as M. Caillaux and his commission prepare to open negotiations in Washington for refunding of the loans. Map shows location of the islands, considered of strategic value to U. S. Inset is a Martinique belle.

The entire court session yesterday was taken up by summaries of the case by the state and the defense and the instructions to the jury by the court. Will R. King, defense counsel, spoke for four hours in summarizing his case. John Carson, district attorney, summed up his rebuttal arguments in less than an hour, while Judge Kelly took about the same length of time in instructing the jury.

"The jury may return any one of five verdicts," Judge Kelly declared in his instructions. "First, they may find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree; second, guilty of murder in the first degree, with a recommendation of life imprisonment; third, guilty of second degree murder; fourth, not guilty, based upon an insanity plea; and fifth, not guilty."

When insanity is taken into consideration," the court instructed, "the insanity must have been such as to have dethroned the defendant's reason and to have rendered him unable to distinguish between right and wrong. If he is capable of distinguishing between right and wrong, insanity is no plea. The law also recognizes partial insanity, that in which the reason has been dethroned at the time the action was committed."

In making a summary of the defendant's case before the jury, Will R. King discussed the statement dictated by Murray while he and the two other escaped convicts were at the Newman home in New Era. "This statement was made under most peculiar circumstances," the defense counsel stated. "It was written more to throw a scare into the Newman family than anything else."

King also justified Murray's escape in that the defendant believing his life was in danger, acted in self defense in making the break for freedom. "The inhuman treatment the defendant suffered while in prison, developed paranoiac tendencies in him. He stood the inhuman treatment as long as possible. The state itself is a contributing cause to the escape in that it conducted the prison inefficiently and retained an insane guard on the wall knowing that he had a mania for killing," King said. "During the break unforeseen incidents arose," the defense counsel continued. "Murray found himself in a position where to return meant death, and to continue meant the same thing. He chose rather to die outside the prison walls than inside."

The state attorney, in rebuttal, evidently scored heavily in refuting some of the declarations made by the defense. "The statement that Murray was in danger of his life on account of conditions in the bull pen is ridiculous," Mr. Carson said. "Tom Murray had not been in the bull pen for over nine months previous to the fatal break."

"If you say that Tom Murray can murder a guard at the Oregon state prison in cold blood and not pay the death penalty for it, then the 485 other prisoners in the institution can do the same thing. There are 65 men in the penitentiary now, doing life terms. Any one of these men, then, could commit murder and never add a day to their sentence."

"You have seen nothing," Mr. Carson said, "to indicate that the defendant is sorry for his crime. Neither he nor his counsel has offered any indication that Murray is contrite for the terrible murder. Murray has folks—they are here in this court room. My heart goes out to them—but the rights of the people of the state of Oregon are paramount."

Mr. Carson ended his brief rebuttal to the jury with the plea: "Let your verdict be swift and let it be certain: guilty as charged in the indictment."

During the close of the trial yesterday, with the net closing around him, Murray appeared more nervous than at any previous time. He sat with his legs crossed tapping one foot continuously. He toyed with a pen and paper, throwing little ink blots on the paper. Once or twice his attorneys conferred with him and his face broke into a smile only to quickly remain its former solemnity.

His father, mother and sister sat in the front row of seats in the court room. Once the senior Murray broke into tears and only after much effort recomposed himself. Mrs. Murray sat with bowed head during the entire testimony, constantly pushing aside her spectacles to wipe tears away. The defendant did not glance in their direction.

DIRIGIBLE PROBE ENDS

SAFETY OF NEW VALVE INSTALLATION DEBATED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Investigation of the wreck of the airship Shenandoah was practically concluded today with the hearing of the chief signer of the craft, an engineering expert in the bureau of aeronautics and the technical director of the Aluminum company of America, which furnished the metal framing for the craft.

Counsel for the survivors of the Shenandoah and the bureau of aeronautics scored important points today in their efforts to break down the theory of Capt. Anton Helsen, former German zeppelin pilot, that structural changes in the airship contributed measurably to her destruction. C. P. Burgess, an engineering expert in the bureau of aeronautics, conceded that, in the way of new gas valves, installation was operated by the crew during the storm, probably less stress was exerted on the structure than would have been the case had the original automatic system been in operation.

He refused to concede, however, that the new installation was superior to the original, explaining that he did not concur in the decision of the bureau to make the alteration because he did not like to change from a mechanical to a human element for the safety of the ship.

FIRST INITIATIONS HELD IN NEW TEMPLE

So at last night's meeting. The officers of the visiting lodge are M. D. Shanks, exalted ruler; Frank Sielgnacher, leading knight; Clarence Collins, loyal knight; Joe Barrett, acting lecturing knight; J. Joseph Myer, chaplain; Walter Stewart, esquire; Frank Horsky, assistant esquire; W. T. Patterson, inner guard; Joe Taucher, tyler; and A. C. Jensen, secretary.

There were 26 men in the class to be initiated, 21 of whom were from Salem and five from Albany. Those initiated into the Salem lodge were: Francis Aline, Elbert Bussell, J. L. Bartlett, P. T. Goffe, W. H. Elgin, B. I. Ferguson, L. O. Herrold; Keith M. Harris, I. A. Eppahahn, Robert W. Kelly, J. B. Lewis, G. P. Sharkey, Paul Simpson, Dr. B. L. Steeves, Richard Uschman, Fred Viesko and Elmo White.

After the lodge meeting had been held, and the initiation was over, the Elks were served a Johnny Jones feed.

STUDENTS OFFER BLOOD

SEATTLE, Oct. 15.—(By Associated Press.)—In an effort to save the life of Paul Thiry, a University of Washington student who was injured in an automobile accident yesterday, 30 of his fellow students today offered themselves for the blood transfusion operation ordered as a last resort by physicians.

VERSATILE PROGRAM OFFERED AT HEILIG

Five Excellent Vaudeville Acts Are Presented on Bill for Today

Arnold and Florence, from the English Music Hall, do a lot of balancing, a little dancing and some comedy. Arnold will prove one of the best balancers seen at the Heilig theater this season, and today with the hearing of the chief signer of the craft, an engineering expert in the bureau of aeronautics and the technical director of the Aluminum company of America, which furnished the metal framing for the craft.

The making of smoke pictures has reached the stage of perfection where the art is more interesting than the old style of making pictures with crayon or paint. Stuart Darrow is deservedly reckoned the foremost artist in this line. His latest and original novelty is to cover two large plates with smoke, and pictures are produced by rubbing out the background. Some very remarkable shadows are cast from his fingers and hand.

A brilliant company of six graceful girls comprise the Elida ballet, one of the most sensational dance offerings in vaudeville. The program they deliver runs the entire gamut of terpsichore. While several names are featured in the billing, it would be an injustice to classify them as principals and the rest as subordinates, for every member of the company contributes generously to the success of the production. Special mention, however, must be made of Adele Jeanne, the premiere danseuse, who contributes some sensational Oriental numbers. The act opens with a doll bandit, introducing stolen dolls, and as the curtain rises the Dutch Soldier, French and Raggedy Ann dolls are shown, and they go right into a mechanical doll dance.

Trout and Heff, two men who call themselves "Two Black Snasmas," are a sure cure for the blues. They have style and manerisms all their own and intermingling their special comedy songs make the turn one of the best two-man blackface acts on the road. They indulge in the low-brow type of colored comedy, singing special comedy songs that are distinctly original and humorous, especially, the closing duet in which they work in topical verses on local conditions and events. They seem to have an endless array of these verses for they are ever ready to respond to as many curtain calls as they receive, and which is usually plenty. One member of the team works as the well, over-dressed colored "punch," while his partner is the typical down-south back alley "good-fol-athin' moker."

WIDER CHANNEL ASKED

IMPROVEMENT WANTED IN COLUMBIA AND WILLAMETTE

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 15.—(By Associated Press.)—At a public hearing here today before Major Richard T. Colner, United States engineer in charge of the second Portland district, arguments were presented in support of the need of the Columbia and Willamette rivers for a channel 35 feet deep and 500 feet wide. How future development of trade would be augmented through the availability of such a waterway and how shipping prestige of the district would be enhanced by ability to accommodate the largest type of passenger and cargo carriers plying routes of the Pacific ocean were presented at the hearing at which the issue was an enlargement of the government's existing project for a 30-foot channel 300 feet wide.
