Dad, Do You Care?

OF COURSE you do—but are you giving your boy the time and thought his health and future demand? Remember he's young and utterly incompetent to think and plan for himself, as he should. That's your job until he grows up.
So—watch him. You'll learn that many of his faults, deficiencies and handicaps are due to an unrecognized error of vision! One quarter of all the school children in the United States—five million of them—have handicapping vision, which is stunting their mental development and jeopardizing their health.

Science tells us that the eyes are intimately inter-related with the other bodily organs. When defective they cause headaches, nervousness, dullness, stubbornness, "lazier" and many other boyish ills and shortcomings. Because—in an effort to meet the demands of close, constant, arduous work imposed upon them by the rigors of class and home work, defective eyes usurp the extra nervous energy they need, from the other organs—which naturally "complain."

How about your boy? Do you know the actual condition of his eyes, or do you just "guess" they're all right? Better play safe—it means a lot to the boy. His health and success depend on your judgment. Have his eyes examined and get the actual facts. Don't "put it off" at the boy's expense. Care!
