

BANKER'S BODY FOUND

SEATTLE, Oct. 26.—(By Associated Press.)—The body of a man found on Peace river, in northern Canada, the first of this month, has been positively identified as that of John Woodard, banker of Loomis, Wash., who disappeared from Seattle July 3. It was learned here today. Identification was made by his son, Ross Woodard, who left for the north several weeks ago. He is returning home with the body.

MacDowell Club Opens Season With Inspirational Concert Last Night

Dorothy Pearce, Pianist, Wins Favor; Mrs. E. C. Peets of Portland Speaks on Club Ideals; Next Program Announced for November 30

By AUDRED BUNCH
Something that Salem wants, with an increasing realization of the fact, is embodied in the triumph of numbers which made up the first program of the local MacDowell club this season given last night in Waller hall, a large and responsive crowd patronizing the event.

The distinct success of the evening was the piano work of Miss Dorothy Pearce who, literally, every time she stepped in sight, was greeted by a clamor of applause. Many favorable comments concerning the splendid assurance and the vibrant, new expression with which she plays, were uttered in and out of hearing of this talented pianist. Miss Pearce has a clarid touch and plays at once inspiringly and accurately.

Two beautiful instrumental numbers, "With Sweet Lavender" and "To a Wild Rose," both MacDowell compositions, opened the program, Miss Pearce at the piano accompanying the two artistic violinists, Mary Talmadge Headrick and Viola Vercler Holman. With agreeable ease, and delightful naturalness, Mrs. E. C. Peets, president of the Portland MacDowell club, spoke briefly, but informally, of "The Aim and Purpose of MacDowell Clubs," outlining the life of America's greatest composer, in relation to the accomplishments therein. She was introduced by Mrs. Phil Newmyer, president of the Salem club. In opening Mrs. Peets said that the very name of MacDowell ought to be an inspiration to all, and in closing, that the MacDowell clubs and the MacDowell colony are great not only because of MacDowell, the composer, but also for reason of Mrs. MacDowell, his wife.

Miss Pearce appeared in her first solo group immediately following Mrs. Peets' greetings not only from the Portland club but also, in telegram, from Mrs. MacDowell, herself. As an encore to improvisation, Rigaudon, and the celebrative A. D. 1620, she gave "To a Waterlily" and received an immense bouquet of vivid roses in token. Her second group included "Scotch Poem" and that piece of key-splendor, the Etude de Concert, with a Maykapar "Serenade" in encore.

Trista Wenger Powers, possessor of a fulsome contralto, sang "The Sea" and "The Swan Bent Low to the Lily," both revealing the qualities that make Mrs. Powers' voice as unforgettable as it is engaging. Miss Josephine Brass played Mrs. Powers' accompaniments with a sure and authentic understanding.

The MacDowell quartet sang with rich harmony "Thy Beamful Eyes" and "At Parting." The personnel of the group includes Ada Miller Harris, Ruth Emory Riddle, Blanche Chamberlain Galoway, and Margaret Kosecrans.

The success of last night's program leaves the audience looking forward with interest to the numbers scheduled for next month, the second program, especially featuring Indian music, being announced for November 30.

CITY STREETS ARE GOOD INVESTMENT

Phil Metschan Declares Duplication in Portland Would Mean Millions

"If Portland had streets as wide as Salem's, it would mean millions of dollars to her taxpayers, and would mean Portland's supremacy in the northwest," declared Phil Metschan, manager of the Imperial hotel of Portland, at the weekly luncheon of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Metschan was formerly a student of Willamette university, and spent a goodly share of his speech proving to those present that the university is a vital part in the growth of Salem. He declared that nearly every student that goes to Willamette comes to consider Salem as his home when he has graduated and gone into his life's occupation elsewhere. And among those who have gone out from Salem after having obtained their education at Willamette are Edgar L. Piper, editor of the Morning Oregonian; B. F. Irvine, editor of the Oregon Journal; the chief justice in the Philippine Islands; five supreme court judges of Washington and Idaho, and eight supreme court judges of Oregon. Besides this, he declared, there have been men attending there who have entered practically every profession and business. "Few schools in the west can boast of a greater record," he said.

Those who go to Willamette, he said, are there for the primary purpose of study, although the urge is, and was when he was attending the university, to have a good time. Mr. Metschan recalled the days when he was in Salem, and was particularly clear in his memory concerning the time he taught G. Stolz the art of playing poker.

MUSIC CONTEST SLATED

PHONOGRAPHS OFFERED AS PRIZES FOR SCHOOLS

For the purpose of instilling in the school children of Salem love for better music, the H. L. Stiff Furniture company of this city is planning to hold a contest at the local Armory during the first week of January. Preliminary contests will be held in all of the school before the final contest. The nature of the contest is to play 30 phonograph records, after hearing each of which the pupils are to write what information they can concerning the piece played on the record.

A Victrola will be given to the school furnishing the most contestants; winners in the final contest of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades will also be awarded Victrolas. Several Red Seal records will be given as other prizes.
