

SALEM TO INVAD ALBANY SATURDAY

Efforts Being Made to Get Large Rooting Delegation for Old Rivals

The Salem high school football team will journey to Albany Saturday to clash with the team of the high school of that city. Albany is reputed to have a heavy yet fast team this year and have won all the games they have played so far this season by big scores. It is also reported that they have several lettermen back on the team this year.

The local boys will be in much better shape for the game Saturday than they were last week against Astoria. The vaccination trouble has all but disappeared and Tuesday the boys were able to hold a stiff scrimmage. Last Saturday the team was completely without a quarter, but the game was pulled in a victory in spite of the fact. B. Drager is in good shape again and unless the unexpected happens will be in the lineup once more.

The Salem team has enough fight for twice its number and is not the least hesitant at showing that fight in every contest. While the odds, considering the scores and the difference in lettermen, seem to favor Albany, the local boys are not going to Albany with the idea of holding down the score, but will actually be surprised if they do not return with the win.

J. Drager has been improving markedly at punting, and although his position is at tackle, he can be relied upon to take the ball through the line whenever occasion calls for it. Another surprising development in last Saturday's game was the work of Noeske at half. He showed ability to plunge through the line and to work on the defense, and is counted upon a good deal to make yardage against Albany.

Efforts are now being made at the high school to collect a goodly number of rooters to accompany the team on its conquest.

BEARCATS TO PLAY WHITMAN WARRIORS

Missionaries Have Jinx of Local Team; Willamette Always Defeated

The Bearcats are now sharpening their claws in deadly earnest in preparation for the game Saturday against the Whitman team. The game is between two of the oldest rivals in the northwest, and is to be the main feature of the Willamette Homecoming week-end to be held Friday and Saturday of this week. So far in its history Willamette has never been able to get the best of Whitman on the gridiron, but the students on the campus and the members of the team feel that Willamette has the best chance this year she has ever had to turn the tables.

The Missionaries have on their lineup seven men who have played against Willamette at least two or three years, as compared to three men on the Willamette squad that have played against Whitman. Besides, Whitman has the shade on Willamette in that she has always won Willamette's jinx, and seems to have remarkable reserve power when vying with the local school. But the Willamette team, according to those who have followed the game at Willamette, declare that the Bearcats are showing more fight this year than they have shown in many moons.

Out of a group of men who have never played varsity football before, Coach Rathbun has succeeded in whipping a crack backfield combination that must be reckoned with seriously by any team from now on for the rest of the season. This combination is C. Zeller at full, Collingsworth and McMullon at halves, and Winslow at quarter. In reserve Coach Rathbun has Baker, one of the fastest men on the team, and one who would be an offener except for injuries received; Stubb Zeller, an elusive open field runner and good defense man, and Schweinling, only experienced back on the squad, who has been unable to play regularly because of the heavy duties and studies he has been carrying this year.

The Willamette line is exceptionally strong this year and is showing such a virility that has not been seen at Willamette in a college lifetime. Houston is playing his fourth year at center, and is better than he has ever been before. Rhodes at tackle and his mate, Mudra, are showing class at tackles, and Woodworth and Mort are showing superbly well at guard. Riedell and Mumford are taking care of the end berths, but are as yet a bit green and can be slipped around occasionally. However, they have shown great improvement and will be in the prime of condition for the game Saturday.

An enthusiasm greater than any in the last three years is being manifested by the students on the campus because of the approach-clared that he was forced to accompany Weston to Krug's home on the night of the murder. He had no intimation that Weston intended to kill the old man, he said on the stand. When the Krug home was reached, Weston hit his victim on the head with a stick and then inflicted torture on him to determine where he had his money hidden, Stillwell declared. After Krug was found to be dead, Weston was said to have placed the body on a bed and to have set the mattress afire, burning the house down in an attempt to eradicate any evidence of the killing.

It was also indicated during the trial that the three men, Weston, Stillwell and Wilson, had been active in liquor operations and that Krug knew of their activities. The district attorney declared that while he believed the murder was committed primarily for the purpose of robbery, Weston had expressed a desire to silence Krug in connection with the liquor operations. Weston was said to have threatened Krug's life a short time before the aged victim was killed. The state also offered as evidence against the defendant a note for $300 made out to Krug by W. S. Fullerton. This is said to have been found in Weston's possession after the murder.

In appealing the case, attorneys for the defense declared that numerous errors of law had crept into the testimony and that hearsay evidence was permitted to get into the records and was considered by the jurors in arriving at their verdict. It was also said that Wilson and Stillwell had fabricated the evidence against the defendant in order to clear themselves from any material connection with the murder.

DEATH SENTENCE GIVEN YOUNG HALF BREED INDIAN MUST DIE FOR MURDER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 27.—(By Associated Press.)—Convicted of the murder of Frank Rossi, North Vancouver storekeeper June 22, Charles Henry "Sonny" White, 23, half breed Indian, tonight was sentenced to hang January 14, 1926.

The body of Rossi was found hacked to pieces in a room back of the store in which he lived. The condition of the body and the interior of the room indicated that a terrific struggle had taken place. Robbery is believed to have been the motive. White was trailed by bloodhounds and arrested within 48 hours of the slaying.

CHEMAWA INDIAN SCHOOL VISITED

Nearly 150 Students Are Now Being Instructed in Boy Scout Activities

A visit to the Chemawa Indian school last night revealed a large number of the boys, actively engaged in the program of the Boy Scouts of America. About 150 boys are being instructed in Scoutcraft under the very splendid leadership of Chief Bent and Capt. Stacy.

The chief gave a most interesting talk on outdoor activities and stated further that he had recently received letters from boys who had attended the school asking for books and other information on Scouting as they desired to organize troops and give back to the boys the knowledge and benefits they had received. This bears out the statement so often heard that the Scout program trains boys for leadership.

Capt. Stacy told of two boys who made a most heroic effort to save a companion from drowning. After the body had been removed from the water one boy used artificial respiration for over two hours and only gave up after he became exhausted. Scouting teaches boys to save life and to be prepared in emergencies. Another boy in doing his "Daily good turn" assumed the duties of the matron at the time she had met with an injury.

In addition to the interest of boys who were former Scouts at the school and the good turns they have done, Capt. Stacy said that all of the Scouts believed in clean speech, and clean living. They have a decided effect for good among the 900 now at the school.

Arrangements will soon be made for an indoor meet at which Salem boys will compete with the Chemawa boys. There are three troops at Chemawa and a large class is expected at the Court of Honor in the near future to advance in Scoutcraft. Chemawa has signified her intention to send the patrol leaders to the convention to be held in Portland November 27 to 29.

LOGS THREATEN BRIDGE RAILWAY SPAN IN DANGER OF DESTRUCTION, SAID

SEATTLE, Oct. 27.—(By Associated Press.)—The Seattle Times was informed today that boom men from all the saw mills in Snohomish county, lying north of here, were being rushed to Snohomish City on the Snohomish river to save a highway bridge and a span of the Northern Pacific railway. A log jam menacing the bridges was estimated to contain 3,000,000 feet with more being added hourly.

These logs were cut in the summer and assembled along the bank of tributary streams. When 75 hours of rain swelled the streams

OREGON ELEVENTS TO MEET HARD RIVALS

U. of O. Meets Stanford, OAC Plays Montana in Big Game Saturday

EUGENE, Or., Oct. 27.—The University of Oregon football team will leave here Wednesday night for Palo Alto, Cal., to meet Stanford university Saturday afternoon.

There is no "crabbing" on the part of the coaches against the team at the hands of U. of O. crushing defeat on Multnomah field last Saturday. There is more dogged determination than ever, and the men are actually working harder, the coaches declared.

All the men are physically fit to meet the strong Stanford team, says Trainer Bill Hayward, who also declared that they learned something more about football in last Saturday's game.

ESSEX CARS PLACED AT SALEM'S BEHEST

Fleet of Five Cars Take Part in "Ask for a Ride" Street Campaign

A fleet of five brand new Essex coaches was at the disposal of Salem people yesterday, offering to take them to any point in the city in the courtesy cars. Just how many people availed themselves of the opportunity is not known, although a large number was carried. The cars were driven along routes and combed every section of the city.

In the evening the five cars lined up for a parade, each machine bearing a letter of the word "Essex." This unique spelling array then paraded through town.

The cars were from the stock of Fred M. Powell Motor company, 350 North High, dealer in Hudson and Essex cars.

Marked Success Scored Last Night When Forrest Taylor Players Appear in Salem

Vincent Lawrence's Comedy, "In Love With Love," Proves Less Popular Vehicle Than Offering of Previous Week

By AUDRED BUNCH

Again the Forrest Taylor Players scored a marked success before a filled theater when they played, as their second Salem engagement last night at the Heilig, Vincent Lawrence's comedy "In Love With Love." The general consensus of opinion was that the players had a less popular vehicle for their acting than on the week preceding, all of which means that the lines of the playwright's inventing did not strike quite so far home.

There are a good many in Salem who still wince at the thought of a girl proposing so wholeheartedly to an acquaintance of scarcely a week's standing. But, then, of course, on the stage, what's dramatic, what will bring the denouement effectively to the denouement desired, is the important thing.

The Forrest Taylor players are proving a vast entertainment resource for the throng of people who plan to attend the Tuesday attractions, anticipating each time new roles for the characters as they come to know them like friends. Both Anne Berryman, the company's leading lady, and Forrest Taylor, the leading man, were accorded hearty ovations when they reappeared in Salem last night.

Anne Berryman, this time the dangerous, the darling, the flirtatious Ann Jordan of the play, was an tantalizing as ever, and her clothes even more irresistibly debonaire. She is as naive as a child and as sophisticated as a divorcee, with admirers planning a continuous attack.

The biggest "battle" of the play brought Frank Oakes (Cecil Drummond) and Robert Metcalf (Alvin Baird) to an insensate state. And the audience would not greatly have cared had the fight demolished both rivals. A large bit of the humor of the play lay in the supreme manner in which these two members of the company depicted the two varieties of the "saw," namely, the forceful, brutal type, and the ineffectual, maudlin kind.

Miss Fanchon Everhart as Marion Sears again added to the strength of a pleasing cast. William Brewer took the part of William Jordan, Ann's father, with the stability befitting a character at the head of a household. Miss Franc Hale, remembered for her splendid work in "The Best People," took the part of the maid upon whom the ever-burring doorbell played the extremity of demand.

The players will return to Salem again next Tuesday.

by a Seattle minister is not enough to base a grand jury inquiry on vice and graft conditions, Prosecuting Attorney Ewing D. Colvin declared here today.

Colvin's statement followed a denunciation of the city administration by the Rev. Ambrose Bailey here Sunday. Bailey declared he obtained startling evidence of police graft and vice conditions on a recent slumming expedition through Seattle's underworld.

"I doubt that any minister in Seattle has concrete proof outside of hearsay that might result in indictments," Colvin declared. "We went through that with the grand jury two years ago and there wasn't a single graft indictment returned."
