BALKAN AGREEMENT OBJECT OF LEAGUE

morrow morning, Paris time, and it is then that the council's military agents must telegraph to Paris whether in fact evacuation has been carried out.

The council will meet tomorrow or in the afternoon in accordance as word is flashed as to whether its edict has been obeyed. After that comes the designation of the special commission which will proceed to the zone of conflict and later report its findings on the "profound causes of the outbreak."

Both Greece and Bulgaria have accepted this proposed inquiry, which is expected materially to help the league in its furtherance of the creation of a Balkan security pact.

ENEMIES FLAYED IN MUSSOLINI ADDRESS

arena of world civilization, he continued.

Alluding to "the currents abroad which are not yet resigned to the accomplished fact of our frontiers," Mussolini declared:

"I must say once for all time that our sacred frontiers are those reached with war, and I must add that if tomorrow these frontiers are in any way placed at stake I would ask the king to draw his sword."

The premier concluded:

"The last century was the century of our independence; this century must be that of our power; power in every field, materially, spiritually, achieved by disciplined will. Every one of you must consider yourself a soldier, a molecule, feeling and pulsating with the entire organism.

"I believe firmly in the destiny of the power of our young nation. We will succeed because this is our will. The government is the general headquarters of the nation; it is severe because it does not consider that its enemies have a right to citizenship."

NEW CABINET TO BE FORMED BY PREMIER

sary measures to lift France out of its present sorry situation can be put through only by national concord and a truce between the parties. The president decided, however, that the tendency to majority in the chamber must first be consulted, and he asked M. Painleve to constitute a new cabinet on the terms imposed by the groups on which he will rely for a majority.

CANNERIES NEAR CLOSE OF SEASON

Pumpkins About All Done and the End of the Apple Supply Is in Sight

The Salem canneries are nearing the end of the 1925 season.

The Hunt cannery has finished its pumpkin supply. It is still running on apples, but the end of the supply will be reached in a couple of weeks or so.

The Oregon Packing company is still going on pumpkins, but the supply will not last more than a few days longer.

The Starr cannery is going full handed on apples.

The Northwest cannery is running on apples, and will be for a little while yet.

After the apple supply is finished, all the Salem canneries will be idle until gooseberry season opens next spring. But the managers and office forces will be busy preparing for shipment and shipping the 1925 pack, and making preparations and contracts for the 1926 season.
