OREGON WILL BE THE GREATEST WALNUT STATE

Oregon is bound to become the greatest walnut state in by 5 cents a pound-

This is the sixth annual walnut Slogan number of The Statesman.

As old readers know, these Slogan numbers, published each Thursday, are devoted to showing that we have here in the Salem district at least fifty-two crops or advantages in which we excel or may excel; which we may produce either exclusively or to better advantage or of higher quality or at lower cost than they can be produced in other districts; or in which we either excel or may excel because of either acquired or natural conditions superior to those possessed by other

And the walnut industry is a line in which we have what amounts to a franchise, in which we may follow the lines of least resistance, above the dead level of competition on equal terms; for we both grow a walnut of the highest quality than it may be produced elsewhere-

For instance, for 8 to 9 cents a pound here, as compared to about 14 cents a pound in California-

And yet we have perhaps less than 12,000 acres in commercial walnut orchards here-

While California has 70,000 or more acres in walnuts, and the acreage in that state had up to last year been doubling growing-

But there is no such limit in Oregon. Because of the fact that the Willamette valley can produce a superior nut, worth holm last month representatives of thirty-eight countries more in the markets, can raise more to the acre, and can produce them at a smaller cost, Oregon is bound to become cials, and public leaders in various countries have given this OWNER OF OLDEST the greatest walnut state, for we have an acreage sufficient observance of "Golden Rule Sunday" their endorsement. to supply more than the present whole demand of the United States, and the prices of land here are very low, compared international peace in the world during past or present. In addition, if properly observed, it pioneers and leaders in the industry are frank with their will create a world-wide atmosphere for peace and good will, living and high thinking; of self-measurement by the Golden advice to beginners. reading, and it is reprinted partly for the benefit of our public school pupils, having industrial subjects upon which The walnut is a very old tree. It is older than the hills. It was before they were. The testimony from the glacial drift in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois shows that forests containing the walnut tree grew throughout that vast section and were buried during the Age of Ice. So, throughout the great Mississippi valley it grew unnumbered thousands of years before the pyramids rose on the banks of the Nile, or the mythical deity for whom it was named-Jove-Jupiter-had his origin in the fables of men.

Walnut trees grew in Palestine when Solomon was king. It was known to the Romans as the royal nut and Jove's nut-ence its scientific name: Juglans; from Jovis glams-the nut of Jove or Jupiter. The Anglo-Saxon derivative signified "foreign nut;" coming from the continent. The supply coming to America through England, w get the term, English walnut. The walnut tree attains great age. Only its heart wood grows old. The life line is yearly renewed in every tree, and it is just as young in the tree that has withstood the storms of centuries as in the sapling of a single year. The living tree is always young.

In France (Gaul) it was called Gaul nut and possibly the name walnut is an English corruption.

In the days of old in Germany there was a custom that it would be well for us to heed. No young farmer could marry until he had grown a stated number of walnut trees. Think of the benefit such a custom would eventually yield.

A walnut tree estimated to be a thousand years old in the Crimes near Balaklava bears annually from eight thousand to a hundred thousand nuts; a ton or more. Italians in America remember trees in their native villages in their home land six hundred years or more old bearing bumper annual crops. There is a walnut tree over six hundred years old in the vatican at Rome. An English walnut tree on the Morris Estate on Manhattan Island bore choice nuts for more than a century. George Washington made his headquarters at the Morris mansion after his escape from the British on Long Island and doubtless ate the nuts of that tree; for it bore two cart loads annually It stood until 1895; giving way for the encroaching building oper ations of the great metropolis.

In California one large walnut tree has been sold for three thousand dollars. Two noted trees in that state have each borne as high as seven hundred pounds of nuts in a single year. The average yield for ten years from one large tree grafted fifteen years before has been 394 pounds. From the above the reader may form some estimate of the intrinsic value of a large walnut orchard properly put out and cared for-in the coming years. It will commence bearing the fourth to the sixth year and increase rapidly thereafter. Comfort, shade, beauty and value are created; and while walking beneath the ever spreading branches the spirit drinks from the fount of perennial youth. The consumption of walnuts is increasing in this country and all over the world. In millions of homes nuts are taking the place change. The range of dishes in which walnuts are used is as wide as that in which wheat flour is employed. It was well named when called "The Food of the Gods," the King of nuts. The analysis of the nut is: Water 2.8; proteids, 16.7; fat, 64.4; carbohydrates, 14.8; ash, 1.3. It is a real food. It is good for the digestion. The walnut ed the man. produced in the world, and we can grow it at lower prices is for health as well as for wealth and well being in the Willamette
