

TWO FOOTBALL GAMES ATTRACTING FANS FOR ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM

ALBANY AND EUGENE SEND ELEVENS HERE

College to Meet Bearcats and High School to Face Salem High School

Salem fans will have the opportunity to witness two interesting gridiron clashes on Sweetland field today. At 9:30 o'clock the Willamette team will mix with Albany college, and at 2:30 o'clock Salem high school will meet Eugene high school.

Although Albany college is considered to be the weaker of the two colleges, the contest should prove of unusual interest as Albany is reported to have a strong team this year, and one that is especially adept in an offensive in which Willamette is weakest—namely, passing. The game will also bring out to a large extent Willamette's chances of taking the post and perhaps the most important game of her schedule, that with Pacific, to be played November 21. The Willamette men will be playing in earnest today to retrieve their loss with Linfield, and will be working out with the idea in view of getting ready for Pacific. As for that game, the chances for Willamette were somewhat brightened Tuesday when it was found that Fasnacht's shoulder has healed to such an extent that his doctor is willing to let him play in the Pacific game, although no chance will be taken by letting him play today.

The students at Salem high school staged a pep rally as is seldom seen at any high school. During the course of the program a funeral was held, proper rites and ceremonies being enacted in the disposal of Eugene's sarcophagus. The assembly was nearly an hour in duration, and fervor was at its height during the entire time. Practically every student in school will be at the game, and it is expected that a large representation of townsfolk will also be on hand, as Salem and Eugene are evenly matched, with the local boys the slight favorites. Every ounce of energy and ability the team possesses will be used in today's game in an effort to keep the victory in Salem.

Eugene and Salem are the two oldest high school rivals in the Willamette valley, and in spite of the scores each team has to show up to date, no hope can be compiled, as the two teams both have new life when they face each other and show football that is a revelation.

The local boys are well prepared for the conflict, though neither Lang, superb full, and Eckert, regular end, will be out of the game because of sprained ankles. A. Lyons has been showing well at full, and Adams can be depended upon to hold up the berth of end in place of Eckert.

Salem so far has not lost a high school game this season, and if it wins this afternoon, the valley championship will practically be between Corvallis and Salem. If Eugene wins, the valley championship will in all probability go to Corvallis high school. The latter has already defeated the Eugene team by six points, gained on two field goals. All of which goes to show that Salem is bucking up against a real strong team this afternoon, for a team that can hold Corvallis from making a touchdown has a line that is going to be hard to penetrate. If Salem can only shove over a touch down this afternoon, and hold Eugene from doing the same, the chances are more than likely that she will be the favorite in the game against Corvallis. If, on the other hand, Eugene should win, Corvallis would be the favorite in the tilt with Salem. Due to the points at stake, it is expected that a large crowd will be attendant at the game, whether it rains or not.

OAC BOXING STAR NAMED INSTRUCTOR

Clayton Frye, Son of Salem Man, Is Leaving for Los Angeles Soon

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Or., Nov. 10. (Special.)—Clayton Frye, former student and boxing star at OAC, is the new boxing instructor at the Los Angeles Amateur Athletic club, to succeed George V. Blake, most famous of all boxing teachers. Blake has given up his position as active instructor of the club because of the time he is required to devote to Fidel LaBarba, his world champion pupil.

Frye, who is only 23 years old, is probably the youngest teacher of boxing at any representative club in the country. He is the 1925 national amateur champion, also a student of the Blake school, having turned professional in order to succeed Blake. Blake has had the position since the close of the World war, succeeding Dewitt Van Court, a real veteran instructor in the game. Van Court has remained as an instructor at the club, and with Blake will remain in an advisory capacity to Frye. The board of directors of the L. A. A. C. unanimously elected Frye to his position because of his knowledge of the game and gentlemanly qualities. Frye started his boxing under Tom Louttit of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club, Portland, in 1919, but three years ago went to Los Angeles and joined the Blake school. In the meantime he had attended OAC, where he worked under the instruction of M. H. "Dad" Butler, boxing instructor at the college.

Clayton Frye is the son of Paul Frye, guard at the penitentiary, and is regarded as a Salem boy. He visited his father here last summer, making many friends while in the city.

SCHOOL GYM BAN ACTION IS TAKEN

Town Teams Will Not Be Permitted Use of Floors for Practice Games

The Salem school board, at its regular meeting last night, ruled that the gymnasium in the high school should not be opened to the public for practice as it was last year. Reason for not letting various town teams practice on the high school gym floor this year was given that the board is facing a serious shortage of funds, and must maintain a policy of rigid economy in order to keep from facing a deficit for the year. Light, heat and janitor service for such practices, it was held, would represent an outlay of considerable money. The matter invoked action when it was brought up that the American Legion basketball team had asked for the use of the gym two nights a week for practice.

The board approved of the appointment by Superintendent Hug of Margaret McLeod as English and history instructor at Parrish junior high school at a salary of $120 a month. A report was read to the board, submitted by County Superintendent Mary L. Fulkerson, to the effect that the school district of Marion county is now completely out of debt.

FORGOTTEN DIARY TELLS OF ILLNESS

Author of "White Cargo" Draws From Own Experiences in Torrid Zone

"Men may come and men may go, but the damp rot in Africa descends forever," wrote Leon Gordon in paraphrase of Tenny-son, and then he shut his diary and hid it among his few remaining possessions under his bunk aboard the SS Zealand bound for New York.

A year ago, with recognition as a leading actor practically in sight, Leon Gordon, who wrote "The White Cargo" coming to the Heilig theatre on Thursday, November 12, for one night, decided to establish a residence in New York and sent for his treasured odds and ends which he had left behind in Africa in a hurry to fill an American engagement. It was midnight when he opened a battered trunk in his new apartment in the West Fifties.

But to hasten the Americanization of each object he placed the contents of the trunk on a rug on which he knelt, preparatory to final arrangements. An old sun hat, lifted abruptly, yielded the diary, and as it fell to the floor it opened to the page from which is quoted the introductory sentence.

The trunk was abandoned for the diary, Gordon picked it up tenderly, as if it were something sacred and stared at the words that might have been written by a feverish, palsied hand. It was fever, he remembered, the white man's fever to which he had succumbed in Africa—the damp rot!

He turned back a few pages of the diary, but they revealed nothing beyond the neatly printed late and unfilled blue lines. There were 14 of them—14 days of fever and agony and slow poisoning! He turned back other pages and read he untold story of his past. How many people, he wondered, could imagine that he once played the unfortunate hero in one of life's little plays and that his reward was more ignoble than for any of his villainous roles on the stage? Heilig one day only, November 18, Thursday.

Model Home Built of Clay Hollow Tile

CLAY HOLLOW TILE was selected by Architect C. D. James for the walls of the Model Electric Home erected in Portland by the Light Educational Committee of the National Electric Light Association, for Miss Julia Groo, Portland high school girl, who won the home as a first prize in the national home lighting essay contest.

Clay Hollow Tile was chosen because it keeps out the heat, cold and dampness, making it more comfortable, healthful and economical to heat than a home of less enduring material.

Also it is the best base for stucco, with which the walls of the home, just completed, are finished.

It cost but six per cent more to build the walls of Clay Hollow Tile than with lumber and the saving in heating and painting will make up this additional cost in three years.

For permanence, comfort and economy, build of Clay Hollow Tile or Brick.

The Paths of Glory Lead to Immortality

The poet said: "The paths of glory lead but to the grave." Can this be true? Are we, who sacrificed sons, brothers, husbands, fathers, to be satisfied with ignominious death as finale to their efforts. A thousand times NO!

In their glorious stand for Liberty they perished, and so passed from the finite to the infinite.

Now, our boys will live forever! On this day let us show how immortal is their glory by standing in reverence to the unfading memory of our Heroes.
