A BOOM IN SUGAR FACTORIES

England has a veritable boom in the building of beet sugar factories. Reports from the ten sugar factory districts already in the industry in that country show that the production for this year, or from the crop of this year, will be about 60,000 tons; better than was expected—

And this is only a start. There are a number of factories under construction, to be ready for the 1926 crop; running into many millions of cost for the factories—

And the farmers are more enthusiastic than it was expected they might be over their new line. They recently had a great fair, in which improved machines for cultivating and harvesting sugar beets were exhibited, and prizes given. The people engaged in the industry there propose to have the advantages of labor saving machinery to the utmost.

It is now announced that Anthony Rothchild has provided a site and is promoting still another beet sugar factory, in Bedfordshire, to cost $2,500,000.

How does this all come about? It comes about through the decision of the British Parliament to make their country self sufficient in sugar—

By putting on a protective tariff about as high as the wholesale cost of sugar in the United States, and by granting a subsidy on every ton of sugar turned out—a high subsidy, growing less each year, for a term of ten years.

Of course, England will become self sufficient in sugar, and soon —

Just as the United States would quickly do, if our Congress would give sugar beet manufacturing half the protection accorded by Great Britain, without any subsidy—

And Salem would have several beet sugar factories, and there would be a score or more of them built in the Willamette valley.

OUR PROTECTED COAST SHIPPING PROSPERS

"In the daily newspapers, last week, it was stated that the International Mercantile Marine company, which owns and operates a half dozen steamship lines in foreign trade, is to spend $21,000,000 for three ships to run between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States—ships larger and finer in every respect than ever before were built in this country. Foreign ships are excluded from the carrying between our coasts; the competition is confined entirely to American built and owned ships. One of the finest ships ever designed in this country, for our trade with Hawaii, is under construction at Philadelphia. Foreign ships are not permitted to engage in our trade with Hawaii. An east coast steamship line, operating many ships on our coast, is to have several fine ships built to run to Nova Scotia—in our foreign trade. The prosperity of the company in coast trade enables it to venture into nearby foreign trade. Another of our great American coastwise lines, operating ships from New York to Florida, is having three fine ships built for the Florida trade at a cost of $12,000,000, with others to follow—ships it declares that are equal in size, speed and accommodation to transatlantic liners. But foreign ships do not operate ships between New York and Florida. Our prohibitively protected domestic shipping prospers and grows by leaps and bounds, but our unprotected ships in foreign trade shrink and disappear—that's the difference between free trade and protection, in one industry. It is an object lesson."

The above is from the current issue of the American Economist—

And it points to what would happen to our American merchant marine if it were protected by preferential duties in favor of goods carried in American bottoms—

It would build up our fleet of merchant ships until it would be the envy of all other countries, just as it did in the 61 years prior to 1850.

It is so plain that one wonders what the members of the two houses of Congress are thinking about, in neglecting to provide for the preferential duties, but who go mooning after ship subsidies in one for or another.

ALIENISTS TESTIFY IN DOCTOR'S TRIAL

pounded to alienists in an attempt to trip them from their previous testimony brought frequent objections from the other side that the questions "were unintelligible." Spectators laughed frequently as the tongues of counsel tripped over the treacherous technical phrases that flew about with abandon while the experts gave their diverse opinions on insanity, physiology, psychiatry and psychoanalysis.

Smiles appeared on the face of Mrs. Frances Bishop, daughter of Dr. Blazer, for the first time during the trial as she joined in the titters that ran around the room frequently.

Dr. Blazer himself sat leaning forward in his chair during the early portion of the alienists' testimony, but later appeared to become "bored" and slumped back in his seat, allowing his gaze to stray around the court room and out of the windows.

Going north to Court on Church street, the parade will go a block west to the intersection of Court and High streets, turning south on High. The head of the parade will stop at the corner of State and High streets for the special exercises of the day, which will be held in front of the monument on the court house grounds. Everyone in the entire parade will face toward the grounds, the parade itself extending from the intersection of State and High streets north to High and Court streets and from there on around the court house block as far as the parade happens to extend.

REVIVAL MEETING GAINING INTEREST

Wet Weather Fails to Keep Large Crowd at Home; Special Sermon Today

Revival meetings at the First Baptist church drew a good crowd last evening, when the pastor preached on "Play Ball!" the occasion being the Salem-Eugene game today. Those present enjoyed the message and its practical application to the "game" of life.

The Father and Son banquet preceded the evening meeting. There was a large company of "dads and lads" out for the banquet. H. S. Gile was the toastmaster and spoke on the origin of the movement. Stanley King spoke on "What I Owe Dad," Ed Schunke responded with "What I Owe Son." Clark Durham gave a toast on "What Dad Owes Me," and G. Ed Ross responded with "What Son Owes Me."

Two piano selections were given by Robert Alexander. Appropriate songs were sung, including patriotic numbers. After the banquet the men assembled in the auditorium for the evening meeting. The singing was led by Fred G. Fisher and a men's chorus. A duet by Mr. Fisher and Ed Schunke followed.

In speaking on the subject, "Play Ball," the pastor used the rules of the game as applied to the work of life, especially Christian life. The players must play according to rules, play clean, obey the signals and hold the line. A description of a hotly contested football game was given to illustrate the work of the church. This evening the subject will be "From Belleau Wood to Locarno," appropriate to Armistice day, and there will be special music by the large chorus choir and the soloist, Mr. Fisher. Meetings continue all this week.

SALARY INCREASE ELECTION CALLED

According to Superintendent Hug, is to encourage the teachers that are found to be of high value to remain in the Salem schools instead of leaving for elsewhere after having reached the end of the raises in salary after three years as the present schedule stipulates. The teachers' committee appointed for the purpose of looking into the matter of a readjustment in the salary schedule assured the board that they are in earnest, and that the teachers will get out and work for the election. "It was held that if each teacher can secure five votes, the measure will pass. Confidence was expressed by the members of the committee that the raise would be sanctioned by the taxpayers in face of the fact that at present Salem teachers are paid lower than most teachers in the state, and are even outpaid by towns the size of Silverton and Woodburn. The committee for the teachers announced that they are organized and are ready to plunge immediately into the fray. They will compile data to submit to the Salem teachers at a special meeting of all the teachers called by Superintendent Hug for Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. To start the campaign, all the service clubs and every organization in Salem will be urged to sanction and to back the proposed raise. Meetings will be held at the various schools and the matter will receive special attention at the meetings of the various Parent-Teacher meetings. The members of the teachers' committee that have been highly instrumental in winning the right to go before the public for the readjustment of the salary schedule are Miss May Rauch, chairman, Miss Carlotta Crowley, Miss Beryl Holt, Miss Lena Heist, Mrs. Lela Newmyer, Mrs. Eula S. Creech, Miss Helen B. Hamilton and Prof. U. S. Dotson.
