WASHINGTON-CALIFORNIA SCORES WILL BE GIVEN BY RADIO

HUSKIES AND BEARS CLASH AT BERKELEY

Bears Are Slight Favorites; Scores Will Be Posted at Statesman Office

SAN FRANCICO, Nov. 13.—(By Associated Press.) — The north and the south declare "war" tomorrow on the Pacific coast and Washington and California will furnish the combatants. But the weapons will be footballs.

In other words the Huskies and Bears, only undefeated elevens of the Pacific coast conference, clash at Berkeley in a game which is expected to determine the champions of 1925.

Traditional rivalry and prospects of leadership in the conference race promise to make the contest colorful in the far west.

Officials in charge are making plans to handle a crowd of 100,000—75,000 in California stadium and 25,000 on the hills overlooking the bowl.

If Washington breaks through for a win, it has only to defeat Oregon to annex the title. And Oregon has not won a conference game this year.

Should California take the contest it has yet to overcome Stanford in the annual "Big Game" a week hence.

The Bears were slight favorites today to take the measure of the Huskies. This was due chiefly to a strange playing field and somewhat different climatic conditions confronting the northerners. Otherwise the teams compare favorably in strength.

play the best game of the year.

Seat sale for the game has practically stopped with nearly every ticket sold. Only a few hundred reserve seats in odd parts of the field remain and a block of unreserved seats went on sale Friday. From all indications a crowd of 19,000 to 22,000 will view the annual clash between the two Oregon institutions.

Probable lineup for today's game:

Oregon—		—OAC.
Smith	LE	Ward
Sinclair	LT	Jim Dixon
Leavitt	LG	Eckert
Johnson	C	Balcom
Cerus	RG	Olmstead
J. Dixon	RT	Dickerson
Capt. Mautz	RE	Logan
Anderson	Q	Edwards
Wetzel	LH	Denman
Vitus	RH	Schumerich
Jones	F	Snider

evidence, oral and documentary. The witnesses were J. Edward Cassidy, consulting engineer and Colonel of the Chemical warfare reserves and Major Herbert A. Dargue of the air service.

In making his request to Secretary Wilbur which was taken under advisement, Captain Foley said the charge made by Mrs. Lansdowne had made him an interested party in the Shenandoah inquiry and that consequently he felt he could not continue as the judge advocate charged with eliciting before that court all of the facts relating to the subjects under investigation.

Mrs. Lansdowne as the first witness before the navy body Monday will be questioned on the basis of her statement to the Mitchell court that Captain Foley had prepared and sent to her a statement she was o read to the naval court falsely represented her attitude on the Shenandoah matter and was an "insult" to her husband's memory.

Murine Co., Dept. H. K., 9 E. Ohio St., Chicago

It "fits" your MOTOR

The oil that "cushions" the moving parts of your motor would do a much better job and would last longer, if it could be more accurately "fitted" to the mechanism of automobile engines. And that is exactly what is done in the case of Cycol. A unique and exclusive process of petroleum distillation, enables a far more flexible control over the various "bodies" or grades of the oils produced. By this process, the distilled oils can be divided up into a greater number of different "bodies" or densities. Hence Cycol is "fitted" closely to the needs of the various motor mechanisms. That is why Cycol brings to your engine all of the inherent lubricating qualities of the oil—why it gives you such good service—why it "wears" so well and lasts so long. Next time you refill, try Cycol. Test for yourself this sturdy, dependable lubricant.
