

INGERSALL-LEWIS WILL FIGHT HERE

Ingersall will fight Lewis in Salem on Thanksgiving evening according to word received from Astoria by Harry Plant, local matchmaker, late last night.

For some time efforts have been made to bring these two men together in Salem and Ingersall's decision has just been made known. These two boys have met three times, but never in Salem. Lewis took one decision and wanted to even the count on Thanksgiving.

Phil Bays, according to Plant, states that he will fight anyone of his weight and the next match scheduled will be between him and Midge Smith, of Portland.

Ingersall called Virgil Hamlin of Portland Friday and asked him to get a fight for him in Salem. Hamlin called Plant and wanted to match him with Lewis at the first opportunity. Plant told Hamlin that he was willing to arrange the two boys for the next card if he could be certain that Ingersall would be here on that date. Ingersall agreed last night.

The Indian fighter made one of his best showings here on the first card and if he puts up the same class of fight as he did then he will likely get the best of the Astoria fighter.

Plant is also trying to schedule "Shadow" Gratz for the semi-wind up. Gratz fought Russell Green on one of the cards here and made a good showing so Plant is anxious to match him with some other good boy. Two snappy preliminaries are also being arranged by Plant.

WASHINGTON ELEVEN

VICTOR OVER BEARS

The Bears could not put the ball far enough into Husky territory. When Washington got the ball on its own 30-yard line, a lateral pass to Wilson gained 12 yards. He then plunged through for five more, and he and Tesreau made it first down. The Huskies had to kick, however, and California punted back on the first down.

At the opening of the second period Washington had the ball on its own 48-yard line. Wilson then skirted end for nine yards. Two bucks failed, but a pass, Wilson to H. Brix, netted 20 yards. Wilson tossed to Cutting for nine more. Passes, varied with line smashes, finally took the ball to the 10-yard line where Washington lost the ball by failing to complete a pass over the goal line.

Later in the period Washington recovered the ball on a punt. Guttermen received a pass from Wilson and sped 16 yards. Wilson failed another pass and ran 15. The big Husky back added nine more. By short advances the ball was taken to the California two-yard line. It was fourth down and the bars held like granite. Tesreau could make but a yard. The ball went over to California and the Bears kicked out of danger.

Just before the half ended Sherman, the Husky's place kicker, replaced Guttermen, but failed to make a field goal from the 27-yard line. Guttermen returned in the second half.

The third period developed into an almost continuous California offensive, with occasional punting. The Bears backed the Huskies up close to their goal several times, but somehow the finishing punch was not delivered. Once Imlay got away for 21 yards before a Husky caught him from behind. California completed two out of four passes, one of the passes gained four yards, the other nothing. Washington passed 10 times, completed four and had one intercepted, the net gain being 79 yards.

California made 199 yards from scrimmage and lost 21. Washington made 192 and lost 16. Each team made 11 first downs.

Wilson gained 102 yards from scrimmage. Jabs accounted for 61. Elmer Tesreau made 42. Imlay made 52 and Griffin 53.

California lost 15 yards on penalties, Washington 20. Each team fumbled twice, California recovered both times while Washington lost the ball once.

A long pass placed OAC in striking distance with Schulmerich driving through right tackle for a touchdown. Oregon launched a desperate aerial attack in the closing minutes of the game. A pass was intercepted and the Oregon goal again threatened. Because of the shortness of the time, OAC elected to try for a goal from field and converted three additional points.

During the first half Oregon gained 127 yards from scrimmage and 19 yards on passes to only 50 yards from scrimmage and nothing from passes by the Aggies.

pants to their feet while all faced the east as Old Glory was raised above the field.

Clad in bright orange sweaters, the OAC football squad, nearly 40 strong, were the first to make an appearance. What had been considered noise paled with the welcoming roar given the players. The men warmed up and the substitutes seated themselves on the bench while the varsity retired in favor of the home team.

The welcome given OAC was a mere whisper compared with the din created by the appearance of the Lemon-Yellow players. Lacking the dash of their opponents' playing apparel, the Oregon team appeared the more business-like of the two, as the blue jerseys showed unmistakable signs of previous encounters.

OAC came back for the second half of the game with dry suits and sweaters while nearly all of the Oregon men were wearing the same outfits. Seven of the Oregon players rid themselves of their sox in order to relieve themselves of additional weight caused by the rain and contact with soggy sawdust which covered the field.

A feature of the event was the junior football game staged between halves. These two teams averaged around eight years old and only a few of the players were taller than the bolts of the two lengthy students who acted as officials. Both Oregon and OAC staged a new version of spelling the names of their respective schools by means of colored cards.

Oregon elected to receive the kick-off. An exchange of punts found the ball on Oregon's 17-yard line and a poor kick netted only 15 more. Launching a powerful attack, the Aggies crossed the goal line nine minutes after the game started. For about the same length of time in the second quarter, Oregon scored after a steady march from the 35-yard line. A pass on the fourth down was completed for the necessary yardage by inches and Jones was sent across for the marker.

Coming back for the second half the Aggies opened an aerial attack that carried the ball to the 10-yard line. Snider going over on third down. Mautz broke through the Aggie line after the kickoff, blocked a punt, grabbed the ball in the final minutes of play, and made six yards before being downed. Vitis, on the third
