SALEM POOR NEED PROPER CLOTHING

(Continued from page 1) these things we can get, and we never have too much. We can use anything. Old hats are re-trimmed and given to women. Cast off clothing is given to those who can wear it best.

"We have almost no repeaters and those who receive are deserving. We investigate all calls for help immediately. Anyone who needs aid is given it at once. Even torn clothing and bedding is used. It is cleaned and turned over to women who make very good quilts with the material."

So the interview continued. Case after case was outlined. Particularly the need of the elderly poor.

What can be done to provide for these deserving persons?

Through membership gifts to the Associated Charities, money for food and emergency use is secured. But there are not funds enough to buy clothing.

Yet within Salem and its territory there is enough good, cast-off clothing lying away in spare rooms, and packed in old trunks in the basement, to completely clad all the children, and all the old people who now have insufficient to keep them warm.

How can this used clothing be collected and handed over to the Associated Charities, that the organization may distribute it wisely?

Read tomorrow's Statesman. This paper has arranged for a party to which all children are invited. It will be a big party, because it will be a good party, and the only price of admission will be a bundle of used clothing, or a bundle of bedding.

The day after Thanksgiving, all children of the Salem territory will have a chance to make those who went without Thanksgiving turkey, and who have no Thanksgiving cheer, rejoice too.

PILL MAKERS FIND SALEM IDEAL CITY

Demolays Declare Down Town Demonstration Must Soon Be Held

George B. Nettleton and T. Boggs Johns, New York city, co-partners in the great Eureka Digestive Pill company, which supplies the east and south with its manufactured product, were in Salem yesterday looking over the city with a view of establishing in this section of the northwest a distributing center.

The business of the Eureka Digestive Pill company has grown to such proportions and the product has met with such favor in the east that the company has decided to invade the west.

"Salem," declared Mr. Nettleton, after a short trip about the city, "is charming and is located in a highly satisfactory part of the northwest from an ideal distributive standpoint."

"A down-town location," said Johns, "is what we want. In fact it is a necessity."

After looking the city over carefully, Mr. Nettleton and Mr. Johns declared it was their opinion that it would be to the best interests of the company to have a big demonstration at the Heilig theater on the night of December 16. This demonstration will be in the nature of a presentation of that highly successful farce-comedy by Edwin Peple, "A Pair of Sixes," which is now being rehearsed by the De Molay commandery.

Beryl Myers will be seen as the irascible Mr. Nettleton, and Earl Douglas as the good-natured, hard hitting T. Boggs Johns.
