Local Markets Are Filled With Dainties for Thanksgiving Day Repast

The markets and vegetable stalls at this season of the year are filled with the valley's most tempting produce, and the Salem housewife may give preliminary thanks that her preparation for the Thanksgiving feast isn't half the problem it was in the days of wooden trenchers and pewter, when Governor Bradford wrote in his journal "beside waterfoules there was a great store of wild turkey," as well as wild deer and shot doves.

Today—three hundred and four years since the first Thanksgiving—turkey still remains the "piece de resistance" of the banquet. The markets are quoting the turkey this season at forty-eight cents a pound, dressed. Duck and chicken are both somewhat cheaper, and are ordered in real preference by many housewives. Dressed chicken is selling at thirty-eight cents, while duck may be had for thirty-five.

The choice of fowl naturally defines the nature of the dinner completing the season's traditional feast. No dish more savory can be served with the golden fowl than a genuine Southern giblet gravy, which is made with mushrooms which may be obtained at sixty cents a can. For the duck one of the nicest and most flavorful dressings is apple stuffing, made with sour apples, chopped boiled onions, bread crumbs, and seasoning. If the house wife decides on chicken there is no better way to serve it than fricassee fashion with baking powder biscuit rings. Either an oyster cocktail or a cream of tomato soup may initiate the feast. Halves of grapefruit, each fruit selling at fifteen cents, are often served, as are the mixed fruit cocktails.

If the hostess is serving an elaborate dinner, say of five courses, Brussels sprouts, at twenty cents a pound would not be amiss. Celery from the Lake Labish gardens—of the same quality sent last week to President Coolidge, as a gift from Oregon—may be had at ten cents a bunch. Celery hearts are on sale two bunches for fifteen cents. Cranberries are selling this season at eighteen cents a pound. Sweet potatoes, a favorite vegetable for the Thanksgiving feast, may be had five pounds for twenty-five cents. Baked squash and cauliflower are other vegetables available for the Thanksgiving table less expensive than the sprouts.

The Thanksgiving dinner dessert course may vary with the preference of the hostess. Of course, pumpkin pie and plum pudding have both become proverbial treats. The pumpkin pie is delicious if made in individual crusts and served with a garnish of whipped cream. Indian pudding is an excellent dessert with which to finish out the duck dinner. Spiced nuts are an additional treat that are bound to find favor on the holiday table—try browning them in oil then dredging them in salt and spices.

Based on a summary on the somewhat general scale of prices it is safe to say that the competent Salem housewife could easily prepare a really elaborate turkey dinner, sufficient to serve twelve guests, for fourteen dollars, the menu including five courses. For the same number of people, but substituting duck for turkey, and making other appropriate changes in the menu, a Thanksgiving dinner quite as delicious is easily possible for somewhere around ten dollars. For six dollars and a half any confident hostess may serve chicken fricassee as her holiday fowl and have perfect assurance that the twelve persons seated at her table are far from fretting over their viands.

Backhaus' Piano Stool Was Thought Infernal Machine

DUNDALK.—Backhaus, the celebrated pianist, was detained by the customs officials of the Irish Free State at the local station under suspicion of being a bomb-thrower or a smuggler of machine guns.

Backhaus carries a special piano stool for use in his concerts. It has detachable legs which can be unscrewed and packed into a special case. This mysterious case with its strange contents was too much for the customs men. Backhaus and his manager were required to leave the train, but finally persuaded the officials they were not dangerous anarchists.

IRISH WOMEN SENATORS LOSE

DUBLIN.—There were four women senators in the last parliament and now there are none. Only two women M.P.'s the now left in Ireland, Mrs. Collins O'Driscoll, a sister of Michael Collins, is the only woman member of the Dail, and Mrs. Macmurdie, and alderman of Belfast City Council, sits in the Northern Parliament.

BOOTLEG QUEEN COMES TO PRISON

Mrs. Arthur Ziolk, Nee Dolly Quartier, Gets One Year for Arson

Mrs. Arthur Ziolk, better known as Dolly Quartier, pleaded guilty to a charge of arson in the Clatsop county circuit court before Judge Ealrin and received sentence of one year in the state penitentiary. She is expected at the institution today.

It was through the efforts of Sheriff Slusher of Clatsop county assisted by Will Moore and H. H. Pomeroy of the state fire marshal department and the investigations made by them covering many months which brought about the conviction. Dolly Quartier has had considerable experience in the different courts. She has been many times arrested and jailed although this is the first time that she has been sentenced to the penitentiary. She has usually managed through her own efforts and that of friends to wriggle out of all charges. However, in this case Sheriff Harley Slusher worked day and night to connect up the links which resulted in this conviction.

Arthur Ziolk, husband of Dolly Quartier, now Mrs. Arthur Ziolk, who was indicted jointly with Dolly Quartier in the arson charge and whom the courts claimed was merely a tool in the hands of the experienced Dolly and that there was no proof shown that he was directly or indirectly connected with this fire and ordered his release.

Sheriff Slusher will leave Astoria Monday evening with Dolly and expects to register Dolly in the Salem penitentiary.
