

FIRST NATIONAL HAS FINE PARTY

Fortieth Birthday Anniversary Fittingly Observed by Bank Last Night

The First National Bank celebrated its fortieth birthday last evening with a dinner given in honor of the officers, directors, stockholders and employees, at the Marjion Hotel.

Under the name of the Capital National Bank, doors were opened for the first time on Monday, November 23, 1885. Of the original signers of the articles of association, one only is living, W. T. Gray, now of Seattle. O. J. Fry, president of the bank, acted as toastmaster, short talks being made by virtually all present, guests numbering 25.

The Late R. S. Wallace, father of Paul B. Wallace, came from Chicago and founded the bank with J. H. Albert. Original signers of the articles of association were R. S. Wallace, J. H. Albert, J. M. Martin, W. J. Polley, Squire Farrar, uncle of John Farrar, present postmaster, W. W. Martin and W. T. Gray, the only surviving member.

According to the account published in The Oregon Statesman on the day following the opening, the first day saw 12 depositors enter the bank and five checks were listed. The late Dr. Skiff, father of Dr. Mark S. Skiff, bought the first exchange. George Morris, of Marietta, Ohio, was the first depositor.

When opened, the capital was then $75,000. It was increased to $100,000 in 1910, and again to $125,000 in 1912. In 1923, the name was changed to the First National Bank and new officers were added. The late George F. Rogers was elected president, and E. F. Slade, formerly of the Federal Reserve bank, was named vice president. Stock was widely distributed and new stockholders added, while the bank adopted a distinct community policy. It is believed to be the only bank in Oregon maintaining a farm representative, to assist and advise. Present officers are: D. J. Fry, president; E. F. Slade, vice president; J. H. Albert, cashier; W. I. Needham, trust officer and H. E. Eakin, assistant cashier.

teachers. Miss Mildred Christensen of the Salem high school has been engaged to conduct the French course, but as yet the Spanish teacher has not been named. The classes will commence Tuesday evening and will be held twice a week, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, until the completion of the courses. It is the purpose to make the courses of such quality that they will merit one semester's actual school credit.

Miss Race Dies—Dorothy Jane Race, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Race, formerly of Salem, but now living in Yakima, Washington, has died at the Yakima home, according to word received here Tuesday. Miss Race was but 13 years of age. The death followed on a very brief illness. Mr. Race is superintendent of the Libby McNeil and Libby company at Yakima.

Northwestern Leaves City—The Northwestern river steamer plying between Portland and Salem under the operation of the Salem Navigation company, has left again for Portland. The boat is carrying light loads, of less than 100 tons, until the river shall rise sufficiently to insure ample depth the length of the channel from Portland to Salem. It is hoped that the channel will be cleared sufficiently by this summer to allow the boat to continue its services the year round, instead of laying off for that period. The Mathloma, government dredge, is at work right now just below Salem working to clear the channel.
