FAMOUS FARCE NOW ON AT THE OREGON

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," With Douglas MacLean, Meets With Success

Paramount made no error in choosing a vehicle for the proven comedy talents of Douglas MacLean when it settled upon George M. Cohen's famous farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which opened at the Oregon theatre last night, and which will be the Thanksgiving day offering there.

For the past decade the play has been one of the big successes of the stage and bringing it to the screen has, if anything, added materially to its amusing qualities. It is the same old story, except for the addition of a cleverly developed love interest and a surprise climax that is a knock out.

The story as it has been brought to the screen concerns MacLean as a young author who has been abroad supposedly writing a novel. He returns a day before the deadline date for publication without a line of his book written. His publisher, and incidentally his fiancée's father, is furious and forbids his marriage to the girl until he turns over the finished manuscript.

Doug, has twenty-four hours to turn the trick—a seemingly impossible task. He retires to the seclusion of Baldpate Inn, a hotel which has been closed for the season, and sets to it with a will. He is sure to be undisturbed, for he is told he has the only key to the place.

What happens to Doug, when a gang of crooks make the inn their headquarters and six other "only keys" put in an appearance, makes "Seven Keys to Baldpate" real screen entertainment.

It starts off with a laugh, ends with a laugh and there are no end of thrills and complications in between.

HEILIG VAUDEVILLE TAKES STAGE TODAY

Well Balanced Program Is One of the Best Offered by Heilig This Year

The Association Vaudeville unit show at the Heilig theatre today brings the inimitable Henry Catalano and a company of big time performers in their "A Timely Revue." Accompanying Mr. Catalano are the three Sturm Sisters and Tal Bishop. Mr. Catalano will give some of the character numbers that have made him famous and the Sturm Sisters, who are the embodiment of grace and beauty, will give their wide repertoire of dances, which include Spanish, buck and wing, soft shoe and Charleston.

Bill Telaar and Irene Dean developed an act, which has the somewhat ambiguous title of "Calling," from situations that have been dreamed of or imagined by most everyone, but which are seldom, if ever, seen in real life. They present an act that is one continuous howl.

To take an old violin and make it talk, is the somewhat arduous task set for himself by John Geiger. He not only makes his instrument impersonate the human voice but he imitates birds and animals equally true to life. With his portrayal of the old familiar country fiddler for the barn dance, and in other ways, he manages to work high class comedy into his act.

Maude Ellet & Co., known as "Girls of the Altitude," have not misnamed their act. This daring trio features a number of new and thrilling aerial stunts in which "teeth hangs" and "loop hangs" are amazingly demonstrated. They carry a beautiful stage setting, which gives the proper backing and atmosphere to their spectacular work.

A series of snappy and comical illusions is offered by Clarence Downey & Co. under the caption of "Mirth and Mystery." It is a presentation of tricks and mystery in such a manner as to emphasize the comedy end at all times. It can best be described as a humorous illusion spectacle.

GOT HIS TRAINING AT BATTLE CREEK

S. H. Logan recently took charge of the Hydro Electric Therapeutic Institute at 249-253 South Cottage st., and he has already accomplished some most helpful work.

Mr. Logan received his training at the Battle Creek sanitarium, which has patients from all lands, and which has some 2,000 people employed.

The methods of that great institution at Battle Creek, Mich., are employed here in Salem, by Mr. Logan, with the same kinds of electric and other appliances as are used at the parent institution. Mr. Logan uses a number of electrical machines and appliances, and he employs hydrotherapy and massage, both Swedish and German.

Mr. Logan undertakes to be of service to any one needing the kinds of treatment he employs. He is already becoming very busy, and is growing more so, as more people appreciate that Salem has a master now in his line.

M' MINNVILLE HOST TO BOYS' MEETING

Conference Will Open Today and Close Sunday; Several Boys to Attend

The Oregon state older boys' conference opens today at McMinnville, and will continue Saturday and Sunday. Boys from all over the state are planning to attend the conference, the main purpose of which is to discuss in general the various problems connected with boys' work in the different Y. M. C. A. organizations, such as the Hi-Y clubs, the Pioneer boys' clubs and the Friendly Indian organizations.

The boys attending the conference will be given free, their rooms, and furnished with breakfast. It will be up to them to provide for the other two meals of the day.

Several Salem boys and leaders are planning to attend the conference. J. B. Crary, secretary of the boys' department at the local Y. M. C. A., will head the delegation, and will be accompanied by three leaders, Hugh Bell, C. F. French and J. W. Moores. More than 25 boys will attend the conference from Salem. ### NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil). The inventor, V. M. Johnson, 161 North Union Ave., Portland, Ore., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

CUT XMAS TREES FORESTER URGES

Proper Regulation Held Aid to Forests; "Improved Thinning" Important

With the coming of the Yuletide season comes also the "evergreen" question of the right or wrong of Christmas tree cutting. According to Uncle Sam's foresters the cutting of Christmas trees may be a positive benefit to the forest. Far from forbidding the practice, they believe that the providing of this central symbol of the child's Christmas should be encouraged, under proper regulation.

"Conservation is wise use," said District Forester C. M. Granger, in commenting on this question: "Forest management grows successive crops of trees on the same land. If possible these tree crops should be used and not allowed to grow old, die, and rot."

One of the important requirements of forestry is the practice known as "improvement thinning" according to Mr. Granger. Nature starts six or eight trees in the forest for every one that survives. It is held to be good practice to cut out the inferior seedlings from thickets, to give the hardier trees a chance. For Christmas trees of average size in this region, it is well not to thin to a greater distance than eight feet between trees.

"Trees cut for improvement thinning are seldom symmetrical unless only the top of the tree is used," said Mr. Granger. "It is the demand for symmetrical trees which causes much of the abuse. Only the best of trees in open stands, or the tops of 20 or 30 year old trees are cut.

"If we could popularize the slightly misshapen Christmas tree, and create a demand for trees cut under proper forestry methods, it would do much to correct this abuse."

The forest service believes that by proper cutting a tree could be provided for every family in America, without harming the future forest crop. They also point out that one forest fire often destroys more young trees than the entire annual Christmas tree harvest, and urge that those who are interested in forest conservation should devote their energies to the main issue of preventing forest fires.

EDITORIALS OF THE PEOPLE

The Oregon Statesman: The cartoon in this morning's Statesman is insipid and inadequate; besides, we object to having our bacon tainted by association with such filth.

the chance in the world yet they seek fifth, become mentally and physically diseased and contaminate those who would otherwise remain clean.
