en tonight said the two pilots had been invited to Detroit to give their opinion on the feasibility of the trip. Both men are reported to have told sponsors of the plan that it would be entirely feasible and that information gained from it would be invaluable. They also said they would like very much to make the trip.

Lieutenant MaReady with Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly, made the first trans-continental airplane flight a few years ago, and at present is head of the flight test section of McCook field. Lieutenant Doolittle holds several air records. Both men are among the best known pilots in the army air
