

SALEM WELL DESERVES THE NAME: THE CITY OF BEAUTIFUL HOMES

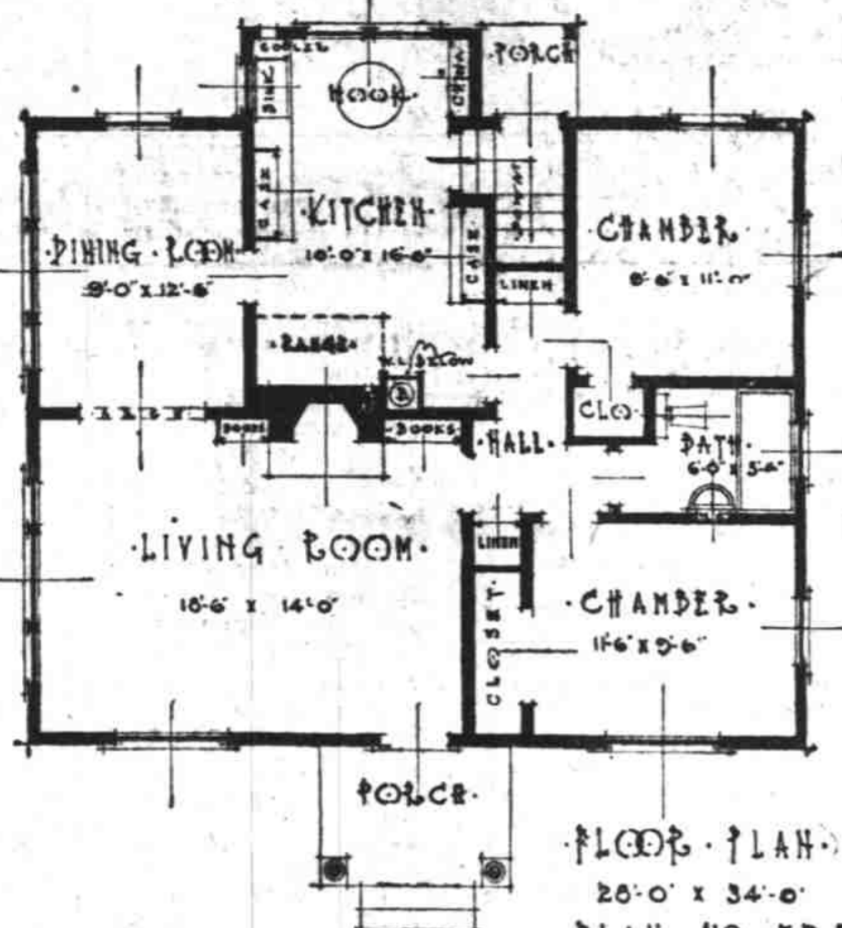

Plan No. 525
COTTAGE PLAN CALLS FOR SIX LARGE ROOMS

Floor plans for the accompanying simple colonial cottage call for six good sized rooms arranged for convenient housekeeping and comfortable living. A small hallway in the center of the house affords easy access to all of the rooms and to the two outside doors, insuring a degree of privacy lacking in many small dwellings.

The living room is large and well lighted. Dining room space is ample and its two windows promote a cheerful atmosphere. The kitchen with its breakfast table and other equipment meets demands of the modern housewife. Entrance through a screened porch to the basement and kitchen adds to the service equipment.

Two bedrooms, each with cross ventilation, and a large sized bath room complete the layout.

Two sets of blue prints and specifications for the above house or other houses will be supplied at nominal cost upon application to

ELSINORE GRAND OPENING PLANNED

Date Not Set, Though Construction Work Continues at Rapid Pace

Form to receive the concrete supports of the main floor have been constructed in the new Elsinore theater, under construction on High street between State and Ferry streets for George Guthrie, owner of the Oregon theater.

First floor, as the balcony, stage, and other construction, will be laid of reinforced concrete. The forms have also been placed to receive the concrete railing that will inclose the orchestra pit.

Forms are completely off the walls of the building now, the forms of the fire walls on both auditorium and stage having been removed.

There will be air ducts laid beneath the main floor to provide the best possible ventilation. The floor is to be laid in such a way each seat will afford an absolutely unobstructive view of the stage.

This plan has also been carried out in the main and mezzanine balconies.

Finished cement layer has been placed on the floor of the balcony and on the floor of the mezzanine balcony. The projection room lies just to the rear of the top of the main balcony.

Cast some finish work on the exterior of the building is progressing rapidly. It is understood that the remainder of the walls will be finished in stucco.

Latherers have placed metal lathing on the ceiling over the upper part of the balcony. The gigantic task of placing the metal lathing on the ceiling over the main auditorium still remains to be done. It is understood the plaster will be applied directly to the concrete on the walls.

Mr. Guthrie is negotiating plans for his grand opening, although the nature of the program has not yet been disclosed.

deign leaving it a wreck. Down the long "chestnut" lane came Mean Jim with the thills dragging after him. When he reached the barn he jumped over the barnyard gate stripping himself of harness. The crash woke father, who hastened out as soon as he could, in time to see brother coming up pretty much out of sorts. Mean Jim was standing by the barn door waiting to get in.

A neighbor told father to carry a lump of sugar in his pocket and when Mean Jim balked, to give him some of it. It is an honest fact that as long as father had the lump of sugar in his pocket, Mean Jim never balked once. I wonder what the sugar had to do with it. Then father got a chance to sell him to a man who was buying horses to ship to New York City to use on the street cars. In those days the street cars were pulled by horses. I have often wondered what finally became of Mean Jim.

You know sometimes the most beautiful and attractive people can be of the least good in the world, and sometimes they make the most trouble. To be good is better than to be beautiful, and I wonder if after all being good is not the truest beauty.

daylight was at hand. "Steam was required as an essential factor in navigating the boat and it was one of his manifold duties to feed the smoldering embers under the boiler with a few choice pitchy sticks of wood. This done the galley stove was fired and the sleepy ebony hued cook, known as Mose, was awakened from a short and fitful slumber caused by his endeavor to furnish the fiddle music for the dance on the prairie. "By this time the aroma of coffee began to permeate the atmosphere of the cabin, the engineer, mate and captain were called and the deckhands' feet were lifting the floor from the bunks tiered aft of the engine room.

"In anticipation of the dance the boat had secured her full complement of cargo the evening before the loading of passengers, mail and express was to be attended to in order that the steamer could leave at 6 a. m.

"Soon the cabins began showing activity in receiving the many people that daily left this section to trade and barter with the merchants of Portland, as at this period there were no railroads operating in the fertile valley.

"The customary two long blasts of the whistle, now obsolete but in vogue at that time were blown and soon the cheery call of 'All clear, sir,' accompanied by the final short blasts of the whistle punctuating the dense fog that obscured either bank, were the only evidence that the steamer had left for down the river.

"Drifting under a slow bell the Dayton, a valuable link in the Portland overland water and stage route, meandered down the narrow stream until the Ash Island bar was reached. Here the river made a short angle and it was not only a crooked channel but high bluffs on the bank formed a pocket to hold the fog.

"To this point the Dayton approached with barely headway enough to make steering way possible. The mate, perched on the captain in the capacity of general lookout soon found, although neither bank could be seen, that the steamer was in very shallow water and the wash of the water denoted that she was out of the channel.

"He voluntarily disclosed his view to the skipper who vociferously and profanely answered that he was in the channel and to demonstrate his geographical ability in a fog called the mates attention to the crowing of a rooster off the starboard bow as a fowl belonging to a farm on the south of the river.

"He followed this statement up by a vitriolic disclosure not only of the qualifications and morals of the mate's antecedents but a thesis on the duties of a mate that had not yet been duly licensed by his superiors to guide the destiny of a river steamer.

"The boat's mate was also an artist in word painting by means of the marine vocabulary and in an accomplished dissertation informed the skipper that the crowing rooster was neither his nor the one that foretold the infidelity of Peter, but a bantam in one of the coops of chickens on the starboard of the steamer.

"The sudden run of affairs had a tendency to clarify the atmosphere and by this time a new course was steered, the fog that had crippled navigation and caused extemporaneous hymns of late lifted and the next landing was in sight.

WIRING COMPLETED ON WILL BUILDING

Finishing Cement Applied to Front Wall, Plastering to Start Soon

Front wall of the two story concrete building under construction on Liberty street between State and Ferry streets for George C. Will, Salem Music store, has been covered with a coat of finishing cement.

Lathing has been completed on the second floor. Plaster work will probably be started on this floor by the middle of the week. The north room on the main floor has been plastered, and the other two rooms are about ready to receive the plaster.

Windows have been put in place on the second floor. Frame work is under construction to receive the show windows on the main floor rooms. Wiring of the building, it is understood, has been completed.

Our Health

A Russian doctor, Prof. Opell, of Leningrad, has announced that he has successfully transplanted a bone from a dead body to a woman patient suffering from tuberculosis of the knee joint. The disease prevented her from walking. After the operation the woman was able to walk freely. Dr. Opell claims he has performed a similar operation on a woman suffering from sarcoma of the femur.

Dr. Richard Cabot, of Harvard university, declares that three-fourths of all illnesses are cured without the victims even knowing they had them. Proof of this, he says, is found in post-mortem examinations, which time after time reveal traces of the disease conquered all unknowingly. He claims that 90 per cent of all typhoid cures itself as does about 75 per cent of pneumonia.

Pneumonia may follow an ordinary cold, warns Surg-Gen. H. S. Cumming, of the United States public health service. There are two types of pneumonia—bronchial pneumonia, which is more prevalent at the extremes of life, and lobar pneumonia, more prevalent among persons in middle life. From the age of five to adolescence this disease is relatively uncommon and often mild. At the beginning of adult life, however, the disease exhibits a steadily increasing severity until in old age it becomes nearly always fatal. Pneumonia is said to cause a tenth of all death in this country.

Scientists of the National Nutrition Institute of Japan have reported that they have been able to produce cancer in rats by giving them food deficient in vitamin A. According to Dr. Bliss Dayton, dean of the Yale medical school, this is the first time so close a connection between cancer and nutrition has been established, and the second time cancer has been produced experimentally in living organism.

The peculiar shuffle of the Charleston dance causes affliction affecting the bottoms of the feet. This affliction is called papilloma, but in reality it is nothing more than a corn or a wart that forms on the bottom of the foot. It is caused by the continual smacking of his soled shoes on a dance floor. And the peculiar shuffle of the Charleston is its greatest aggravator. According to Dr. Edwin Crow, of the California college of chiropody, papilloma consists of epithelial tumors, formed by the hypertrophy of the papillae. He says they have treated more than a hundred cases at the college clinic in the last few weeks and that most of them were the result of the Charleston. As a warning he adds that papilloma is a "painful affliction and difficult to cure."

New York City.—"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start." Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects. At all Druggists. —Paid Adv.

Russian Folk Songs Are Gathered in Big Volume

OMSK, Siberia.—Folk songs of the various nationalities making up the Soviet Republic are being revived and printed to a very considerable extent and are affording much interesting material for modern composers. Alexander Zatareyevitch recently published an unusual volume called "One Thousand Songs of the Kirghiz People." This is said to be the first time the songs of these 6,000,000 nomadic people which roam over a great empire in Siberia, Mongolia, Turkestan and European Russia have been recorded for the use of modern musicians. The Kirghiz are supposed to be a blending of Mongolian, Tartar and Finnish blood, and their language is Turkish basically but has been much influenced by Chinese and Russian. A Kontchevsky has also published a collection of songs of the Crimean Tartars and Tehuvash are being prepared for publication.

SOME OF THE NEWS OF CHEMAWA SCHOOL

Song," by Miss Pearl Eyre. We are indebted to these people for their kindness in giving us their program of Christmas music. The Sigma Phi Deltas held their annual Christmas pledge meeting in the home of Mrs. Hall on Wednesday evening. A grab bag proved of great enjoyment for those present, each one receiving some small gift. The following girls were pledged: Nellie Rinehart, order by the president, the roll called, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The following Christmas program was rendered and greatly enjoyed: Song, Society; recitation, Gertrude Caisé; dialogue, Mary Hoskin, Ivy Dupuis and May Donnelly; trio, Ramona Tripp, Emma Sexton and Maybelle Bremner; readings, Virginia Brickell; solo, Anna Peratrovich; recitation, Catherine Sisson; debate, "Resolved, That Christmas is more important than New Years." Affirmative, Agnes Parsons and Florence Evans; negative, Vera Korter and Nellie Sanderson. The judges decided in favor of the negative side. A closing song by the society ended the evening's program, after which a business meeting was held. After our advisor gave an interesting talk the house adjourned.

Gertrude Caisé, Wilhelmette Blakeslee, Ivy Dupuis, Elsie Adams, Anna Augusta, Susie Polk, Esther Gulney, Odessa Johnson, Clarinda Quinal, Violet Mahone, Oxcenia Hendrickson, Evelyn Roberts, Margaret Pimmis, Marietta Davis, Emma Sexton, Jennie Allen, Norma Douglas, Vina Smith, Martha Kinninook, Emma Echolt, Nellie Marcell, Irene Lupton and Eve O'Brien. The Winone literary society held their Christmas meeting on December 18, 1925, at the usual time. The house was called to

The girls of the Y. W. C. A. planned a delightful surprise for a group of Hawley hall girls on Sunday afternoon. Each older girl chose a little girl for whom she prepared a Christmas package. The "Y" room was decked in holiday colors, with a large Christmas tree as the center of attraction. Both older and younger girls participated in the program of songs and recitations. Preceding the distribution of presents Miss Judd sang "That Sweet Song of Old," then Anna Peratrovich explained to the little girls the "big sister" plan, and presented the package and bags of candy. The girls included new dresses, beads, handkerchiefs, dolls, and many other things to delight the heart of a small girl. The real spirit of Christmas was manifest in the meeting, and it is the wish of all present, that it may continue long after the holiday season is past.

THEOSOPHIST WILL DEIFY NEW "CHRIST"

Liberal Catholic church. These "apostles" have been appointed "by command of the King," declares Mrs. Annie Besant, who has been training Krishnamurti for years for the role of prophet which he now assumes. Mrs. Besant is seen by her followers in England as performing for Krishnamurti the functions exercised by John the Baptist for Christ. She is leader of the Order of the Star of the East, founded on the theory of the new Christ. Although a Theosophical organization, its sponsorship of Krishnamurti is not universal among the Theosophists. Many thousands of them, however, are convinced that the heavenly spirit is about to descend on the young Hindu at Adyar. They have read into political, scientific and artistic happenings the arrival of the appointed time.

L. W. Rogers of Los Angeles, president of the American Theosophical society, is in India for the dedication ceremonies. Bend—More than 1 1/2 miles paving laid during 1925, costing $34,780.
