RADIO DAILY DOZEN CONDUCTED BY 'Y'

Local Men Follow Tri-Weekly Directions of Tom Gawley in Portland

Physical education by radio is the last word in the "daily dozen." Tom Gawley, physical director of the Portland YMCA, broadcasts physical exercises of his own concoction every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from station KGW at Portland.

Only those who are in the habit of rising before breakfast are aware of these unique radio class rooms. For the sessions begin at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

Business men throughout the northwest have taken widely to the exercises, using them as preludes to the morning coffee. Salem fans are not immune. It is known positively that Joe Alberts, local banker, indulges regularly. Dr. X. Beechler is also an avowed pupil.

Several other Salemites, it is understood, are also "enrolled" in the radio class.

Gawley is well known in Salem. For the last two seasons he has had charge of the swimming campaigns here for school children. Local YMCA officials are endeavoring to bring him here for an extensive campaign when the association moves into its new Court street home.

C. A. Kells, general secretary of the Salem YMCA, and Bob Boardman, physical director of the local association, were classmates of Tom Gawley at the YMCA college in Springfield, Mass. Tom and Bob played on the same football team together.

A special chart of the exercises, compiled each month, is sent to all fans requesting them, free of charge. Some of the "Rules for Health," Gawley suggests for 1926 are set down in the January chart.

Included in these are:
 Ventilate every room you occupy.
 Sleep in fresh air always, in open air if you can.
 Do not attempt exhausting feats of strength.
 Never take vigorous exercise directly after a meal.
 Eat only plain and wholesome food.
 Keep serene. Worry is the foe of health.
 Stand, sit and walk erect.
 Drink sufficient water daily.
 Take a physical examination at least once a year.
 Keep clean in mind and body.
 The exercises to be used during the month are explained on the chart, and are illustrated. Following are a few typical exercises:

Position. Hands at side, standing erect. Count 1, raise arms to front horizontal, at same time shaking wrists and hands downward on each beat. Sideward, vertical, overhead, and down to hips.

Position. Hands at side, standing erect. Count 1, step left foot sideward 28 inches, at same time swing arms overhead to vertical position. Count 2, bend body forward and swing arms downward and backward beyond hips. Count 3, return to count 1. Count 4, lower arms to side and bring left foot to position.

Position. Sitting on floor, legs straight. Lean body slightly backward supported by placing hands on floor to steady body. Count 1, raise body off floor, keeping body straight. Count two, lower to position.

Position. Lying on floor face downward, arms extended forward.
